FATHER CONFESSES KILLING BOY

Today

What, the Dole? Yes Indeed.
$125,000,000 Monthly.
Very Poor Advertising.
Who Struck First? Eve?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

DO YOU REMEMBER when Americans used to say

"Britain may sink as low as a dole system, but none of that for proud America; the American wants nothing that savors of charity."

Now Donald R. Richberg, director of the President's executive council, says officially five million American families will be on relief lists before next February.

WAR AND DEPRESSION have taught this government one thing, and that is how to spend money. 100,000,000 Americans shuddered in unison when the Panama Canal was suggested, to cost two or three hundred millions. Now the government spends $125,000,000 per month on relief work alone, or at the rate of a Panama Canal every two months, and the $125,000,000 monthly for relief is a mere petty cash item in the total national spending.

But, before shouting "reckless extravagance," ask yourself what might have happened if there had been nobody to make the government spend, and the 5,000,000 families had been told to go out and feed themselves.

MATTHEW WOLL, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, is not satisfied with what the government is doing and says labor, disillusioned and disappointed, is showing "a greater and greater interest in Communism."

It would be bad for important labor leaders if Communism should come, for Communism has a habit of calling union leaders "betrayers of the workers," and often jails or executes them.

THE ADMINISTRATION promises to support all workers on strike, be their cause just or otherwise: "The hungry must be fed." What more could labor suggest? Perhaps that workers on strike be automatically transferred to government payrolls, with such pay as the strikers demand.

MR. UPTON SINCLAIR, stopping in Chicago on his way to discuss matters with the President, will have, doubtless, many suggestions for the latter. He says the President's program is "a step in the right direction, but only a beginning."

Mr. Sinclair, nominated for governor of California by the largest primary vote ever cast for a Democratic candidate, is not exactly a good walking advertisement for his adopted state. He calls his program "EPIC," meaning "end poverty in California," and tells Chicago crowds that might be expected to buy California real estate later "people in California are tired of starving."

MR. SINCLAIR is not keeping step with California Chamber of Commerce that tells the world California is THE happy land.

This writer can testify that eggs can be bought in California below twenty cents a dozen, broilers three for a dollar, one hundred oranges for twenty five cents, lemons even cheaper, and this writer has been selling, from his Mohave Desert ranch many carloads of highest grade alfalfa "rabbit hay" with the blue blossoms thick in the hay for eight dollars a ton baled. Losing about that amount on every ton sold.

You need have no coal bill in California, anything you plant will grow. Rents are amazingly reasonable. He who straves in California would strave in Rasselas' Happy Valley.

Chambers of commerce will tell Mr. Sinclair that his kind of advertising might keep new industries with new jobs to offer OUT of California, and that is a poor way to end starvation, even the imaginary kind.

JAPAN KNOWS how to do things quickly. Our bandit-hunting forces might take lessons.

Two Americans, seven Japanese were kidnaped by Chinese bandits after wrecking a train. Japan sent fliers, killed twenty-five bandits, rescued the prisoners.

NORTHERN STRIKERS, of the "hard-boiled, he-man type," may cry "crisis," reading of a strike meeting in North Carolina that turned into a religious camp meeting with prayers and loud cries of "amen." Mr. Lawrence, eloquent strike leader, telling his followers:

"Trust in God, for He is with us, as He is with all those whose cause is just."

Scoffers may remember that Cromwell also prayed and took the Lord for his partner on all occasions, and what he did to privilege and power was a good deal. He is one man that never lost a battle, he cut off the king's head and his enemies feared him long after he was dead.

THE ELOQUENT Mr. Lawrence told his strikers "the first strike on record was the strike in which Moses led the children of Israel out of slavery, from Egypt," the first strike, some would say, is described by Milton, telling of Lucifer and his attempt to rule in Heaven. Others would say that Eve was the first striker, bored, with no one but Adam to talk to, delighted to meet the serpent, although she was sorry later and wished she had not struck against the rule concerning the forbidden tree.

LEGISLATURE TO CONVENE SEPT. 10 TO VOTE CASH

Governor Puts Blame For Meeting on Hopkins

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 4.—Declaring no other course was possible, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today announced he will call the Legislature into special session Monday, September 10, at noon, to deal with the relief crisis.

Uncertainty later developed over the hour set for the convocation, as the Jewish New Year also falls on Monday. Because of this the session may not convene until evening.

In a brief statement, issued shortly before his arrival here from his estate at Milford this morning, the Governor said:

"It is perfectly clear from Mr. Hopkins' statement to the newspapers that my proposal of August 31 for avoiding an extra session has been rejected and that without an extra session the unemployed will not be fed.

"The Federal Emergency Relief Administration has been paying the piper and obviously it can call the tune.

TO FEED JOBLESS

"Since the unemployed will not be fed without it, an extra session will be called.

"I give notice that I will call an extra session of the General Assembly to meet at 12 o'clock noon, Monday, September 10, at the state capitol. The official proclamation will be issued in due course."

The proposal rejected by Hopkins was one by which the Governor sought to offer $6,000,000 from liquor store profits and $14,000,000 from the motor fund as the state's share of the relief cost for the four months until the Legislature convenes regularly in January.

Hopkins stated, however, that a convocation of the General Assembly would be accepted by him as evidence of the intention of the state to share the relief costs and upon its call federal funds would continue to flow into Pennsylvania.

HOPKINS TO ACT

With funds on hand to continue relief for only a week, the Governor's action in calling the special session was believed to have prevented a break in aid to the jobless and unemployed.

Upon notice of the Governor's action, Hopkins was expected to make an announcement of the allocation of federal funds to the state for September.

Because of recent developments in the relief controversy, the Governor was expected to limit his official call to relief and taxation.

He has been advised that a "wide open" call such as he threatened to issue would aid Democratic state candidates in their election campaign. Because

CONNIE SPEEDS TO ILL MATE

By MICHAEL WILSON

International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudraye, ex-husband of Gloria Swanson and now the spouse of Constance Bennett, is gravely ill at the American Hospital, it was learned today.

The Marquis

He is suffering from auto-intoxication, a poisoning of the system in which toxic matter is generated within the body of the patient himself, and grave fears are felt it may reach his heart.

Miss Bennett is now aboard the liner Paris on her way to France. She plans to speed to his bedside when the liner docks.

Recent reports have stated Miss Bennett was coming to Paris for a divorce, but only this morning rumors flooded Paris that Winfield Sheehan, movie executive, would be her next mate. This report Sheehan branded as "absurd."

The Marquis, better known as "Hank" to his intimates here and in the United States, was married to Miss Bennett following his divorce by Gloria Swanson, who charged abandonment.

Bishop's Wife Hurt As Bus, Auto Crash

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The Most Rev. James Dewolf Perry, presiding Episcopal bishop of the United States and Bishop of Rhode Island, was shaken up but escaped without serious injuries, in a collision between his automobile and a motor bus.

Mrs. Perry was painfully injured. They were on their way from their summer home in Princeton, Mass., to their home at Providence, when the collision occurred yesterday.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Grave anxiety was expressed here today over the fate of Dr. F. Hillis Lumley, 27, of Columbus, O., former resident of this city, who is lost in Glacier Park, Mont.

Dr. Lumley is member of the staff of the Ohio State University.

Alarm Saves Liquor In State Warehouse

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Sounding of a burglar alarm early today frustrated an attempt to loot a huge state warehouse in which liquors for 50 state liquor stores and valued at $2,000,000 are stored. The intruders had chopped away part of the large door of the warehouse when the burglar alarm went off.

175,000 OUT IN TEXTILE STRIKE

Unions and Employers Both Claim Victory In First Big Test

Associated Press.

At least 175,000 textile workers seemed today to have obeyed a union order for a general strike to make 650,000 workers idle in 22 states.

The exact number was a matter of dispute between unions and employers as both sides claimed the victory in today's test after the first skirmishes yesterday on the Labor Day holiday.

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee of the United Textile Workers of America, hailed the strike as a "tremendous success."

Peter van Horn, chairman of the Silk Code Authority, said that a survey as applied to silk, rayon and synthetic fabric industries showed the strike was "almost a complete failure."

SLOAN SEES FAILURE

George A. Sloan, chairman of the Cotton Textile Code Authority, said his survey of New England indicated "the majority of workers are not in sympathy with the strike movement."

Sloan claimed that in New England—feeling the strike for the first day, since the holiday was observed yesterday—100,000 were working and 25,000 idle, basing his estimate on incomplete reports.

Sloan said that in the South, in some parts of which mills operated yesterday, 126,000 were working and 38,500 idle.

McNair 'Covers' Own Story For Seasick Correspondent

Mayor Gives Ship's Captain Stogies, Buys Drinks, But Quaffs Ginger Ale

By MAYOR WILLIAM N. M'NAIR

Pinch-hitting for Reporter William Pfarr, who is not as good a sea traveler as the Mayor, Mr. Pfarr is reporting Mayor McNair's European trip and his dispatches will appear daily and exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

ABOARD THE CONTE DI SAVOIA (via radio), Sept. 4.—Pfarr is pretty sick, so I guess I had better do his work.

I have been Mayor and City Solicitor and have acted as the head of a lot of departments, and I guess I can be a reporter.

First off, Mrs. McNair and I want to send our love to Betty and Ellen (the McNair children).

I met the captain of the ship today and gave him a fistful of Pittsburgh stogies. He said I was the third Pittsburgh Mayor whom he has carried but the first one ever to give him stogies.

MR. PFARR (passport picture)

I suppose folks are surprised that I did not mention single tax once. I am trying to figure out a way to apply the single tax to the Atlantic Ocean.

I met a Pennsylvanian on deck who is going to vote for Earle and Guffey. I argued with him for half an hour, but I do not think I did any good.

Pfarr tells me he does not think David Lawrence will have the nerve to put in a ripper bill if Gov. Pinchot calls a special session, but if he does, I will do every town in Pennsylvania speaking against it.

I am for a special session if they adopt my relief tax. I am against any other relief tax.

Come stai to all my Pittsburgh Italian friends.

Johnston, Acting Mayor, Plans Series of Conferences

Johnston had a number of conferences scheduled. In addition to holding down the Mayor's post, he is directing the affairs of the Public Works Department.

Meanwhile, City Council was scheduled to meet and may take up Mayor McNair's veto of the Liberty tunnel tolls plaza plans, a veto which threatens the entire $24,000,000 proposed loan from the Federal government for public works here.

Unless Councilman Charles Anderson, who has been "lost" in the West for some months, returns in time to help the proponents of the tolls plan, the Mayor's veto may be sustained in Council.

'POISON PIE' DEATH PLOT REVEALED

Tells of 'Feast' to Wipe Out Family; Blames 'Nagging'

Stanley Grabowski, 30, of 5406 Berlin way, told homicide detectives today that he had put poison in a pie which killed his 9-year-old son Raymond.

Calmly the father signed a long confession detailing a plot to wipe out his three children and himself.

He blamed his wife's "nagging" and domestic discord for the lethal attempt.

Meanwhile a second son, Stanley, Jr., 9, is fighting for his life in St. Margaret's Hospital, where Raymond died yesterday.

The third child, Anna Marie, 4, was little affected by eating the poison pie.

CALMLY RELATES DEED

The "break" in the case came suddenly today. After grilling the father for a short time, Lieut. of Homicide Detectives Franklin T. McQuaide abruptly asked Grabowski if he had not poisoned his children.

Grabowski remained silent for a few tense moments. Then he said, according to detectives:

"Yes. I'll tell you all about it."

Grabowski then asked for a cigaret. When he had lighted it, he commenced his story in an unemotional voice.

It was only after he had finished the statement and had read it over that he broke down for a few moments and sobbed. But he soon regained his composure.

DESCRIBES FEAST

Grabowski's statement told how he had gone to the store on Saturday and purchased a pie. He borrowed 35 cents from a store proprietor to purchase the poison.

Then he went to a drug store and bought a tube of the poison in the form of a paste, getting it at a bargain price, 32 cents, he said.

The statement then recounted how the father returned to his home, assembled the three children around the kitchen table, cut the pie in portions, and lifted the crust.

Underneath the crust, the father placed the poison, according

$200 Jewelry Loot From Doctor's Home

The home of Dr. N. A. Alexander, 2033 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale, was robbed last night and jewelry valued at about $200 stolen. Dr. Alexander reported the robbery to Swissvale police.

BONSALL O. K.'D BY COUNCIL

Ward Bonsall was confirmed as City Solicitor this afternoon by unanimous vote of seven councilmen attending a meeting of Council.

He assumes an office vacant since August 15 when Mayor McNair forced Cornelius D. Scully to resign.

Bonsall's appointment was sent to Council some time ago. He had been serving as special utilities counsel on appointment by Scully at McNair's request.

One of the first activities of Bonsall as city solicitor will be, it is understood, legal action to determine whether O. B. Hannon and John Murphy are city assessors. Appointed by McNair, the pair were fired in June, but the Mayor failed to send reasons considered by Council as satisfactory. McNair had said the discharges were "for the good of the service."

Hannon and Murphy report every day, but are not on the payroll. Two new McNair appointees, Albert C. Stoehr and Charles L. Brinton await judicial decision as to the case.

100 More Bad Men Arrive at Alcatraz

RICHMOND, Cal., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—One hundred more "bad men" arrived here today from the Levenworth (Kan.) federal prison. The prisoners were heavily shackled to their seats in a six-car federal convict train which was speedily shunted onto a barge and taken to the Alcatraz Island Penitentiary in San Francisco Bay.

RacketQuiz Ordered by McNaugher

War was declared today on "an organized ring of numbers racketeers" operating in Pittsburgh by forces of the law.

Without waiting for District Attorney Andrew T. Park to return from his vacation, Judge William H. McNaugher took the helm in the fight with the promise of a sweeping investigation.

His promise was made in his opening charge to the September grand jury, sworn in this morning with a list of 1,350 cases scheduled.

VIOLATIONS CITED

The "widespread and organized violation" of the law cannot continue, Judge McNaugher told the 19 men and 12 women members of the jury.

The racket, he told the jurors, was on such a "wholesale scale" that it could not be the work of amateurs.

Indicating that the move was made without knowledge of District Attorney Park, he explained:

"We have not had an opportunity as yet to consult with the District Attorney to learn

BLIND TORTURE INDICTS TWO

Two Homestead youths were indicted by the grand jury today for the blinding of an Oakland bowling alley proprietotr and for 16 other charges of robbery and violation of the firearms act.

Nicholas Derembets and John Arendash, of 425 Fifth avenue, Homestead, gouged out the eyes of George Stratigos, 200 Cornell street, West View, when they robbed him of $15 last April 12 during a holdup in his Oakland bowling alley, the mayhem indictment charges.

Both men were involved in overlapping indictments for several gas station holdups.

Otto Secretly Betrothed To Princess Maria

VIA REGGIO, Italy, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Aristocratic members of the entourage of Zita, former Empress of Austria, said today that an engagement for the Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne of Austria, to marry Princess Maria, of Italy, has been definitely concluded, but that the betrothal will not be announced officially for some time.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena, of Italy, came here today with their daughter, the pretty Princess Maria, who, many atime before, has been rumored as Otto's intended.

They drove by automobile to the villa, where Zita has been living. Their visit had not been announced publicly.

The royal couple and their daughter left their summer residence at San Rossore in a closed limousine without an escort and drove direct to Zita. Zita welcomed them inside the villa.

With the former Empress was her brother, Prince Felix.

HOOVER ATTACK ON NEW DEAL HINTS AT 'COMEBACK'

HURLS BARBS AT ROOSEVELT POLICIES

Ex-President Believed Eyeing White House For 1936 Term

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Washington wondered today if Herbert Hoover planned an attempt to return to the White House.

The speculation was stirred by an article by the former President published in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

This was the first time since he left the White House on March 4, 1933, that Mr. Hoover has publicly expressed his views on political questions. He has written a book giving his opinions in greater detail, which will be published late this month.

The former President asserted the New Deal is a usurption of liberty, and was challenged promptly by Secretary Ickes.

Other officials remained silent pending a study of the article. The Hoover views were eagerly sought by both Republicans and Democrats.

Mr. Hoover has given no inkling of his ideas as to seeking re-election in 1936, but to the politically minded a one-time President is always a possible contender for the office—especially if he has served but one term.

Hoover Lashes Out At New Deal Program

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover condemned the New Deal today in the name of liberalism.

The former President, writing in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, describes the foundation of "the American system" as individual liberty, and the base of "economic regimentation" as "the very theory that man is but the pawn of the state." Mr. Hoover writes:

"It is my hope to show that to resume the path of liberty is not to go backward; it is to return to the path of progress from following the will-o'-the-wisps which lead either to the swamps of primitive greed or to political tyranny."

From the Pilgrims at Plymouth to the army in the Argonne, he says, Americans have died "that the human spirit might be free."

He continues:

"The origins, character and affinities of the regimentation theory of economics and government, its impacts upon true American liberalism and its departures from it can best be determined by an examination of the actions taken and the measures adopted in the United States during recent months.

"The first step of economic regimentation is a vast centralization of power in the Executive. Powers once delegated are bound to be used, for one step drives to another.

"The whole thesis behind this program is the very thought that man is but the pawn of the state. It is a usurpation of the primary liberties of man by government."

COUNCIL TO ACT ON $8,000,000

More than eight million dollars worth of city bond issues were to be submitted for City Council's approval this afternoon. It will be up to Council to decide whether to put the issues to a people's vote at the November election.

Estimates submitted by the Public Works, Public Safety and Welfare departments total $8,147,000, of which $5,860,000 represents the Public Works Department's requests.

In addition to $2,500,000 for street paving, the works department's estimates provide for sewage, drainage, dirt street grading, new swimming pools and other park and land improvements.

The Public Safety Department's estimate of $350,000 is based upon the proposed rebuilding of the North Side city hall for $150,000, and installation of a new North Side fire alarm system to cost $110,000.

Two new engine houses in Oakland and Beechview are also on the construction schedule for the Safety Department.

Request of the Welfare Department for $2,037,000 is founded on a new building program at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview.

Miss Perkins In Peril as Her Auto Upsets

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, arrived in Boston several hours late for a speaking engagement last night, making light of an automobile accident in Brunswick, Me., which caused her delay.

SECRETARY PERKINS

Advices from Brunswick said her automobile overturned on a state highway there when the driver turned into a ditch to avoid a collision. Miss Perkins and her secretary were shaken up, but they went to a nearby inn to rest and then proceeded to Portland by taxi. Later she came to Boston by train.

The Secretary of Labor merely laughed when asked about the accident and she refused to discuss it. She showed no sign of having been injured.

SEEK RELEASE OF 26 'REDS'

Release on a habeas corpus writ of 26 men and women arrested Saturday night in the McKeesport riot, was sought today by Arthur Rock, acting secretary for the American Civil Liberties Union.

The men and women were arrested after police used tear gas to disperse a crowd of alleged Communists and sympathizers who gathered at a street meeting in defiance of Mayor George S. Lysle.

Rock told Common Pleas Court Judge Frank P. Patterson that he attended the meeting and failed to see any "rioting" or disorder. He charged that the men and women were being held incommunicado in jail.

Judge Patterson fixed tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock for a hearing on the writ.

PARK IN CANADA

District Attorney Park is on a fishing trip in the Kawartha Lake district in Canada, fi attaches of his office said. He is expected to return tomorrow.

Office aides explained that he had not returned for the grand jury's opening session because jury trials could not begin until next week, after indictments had been handed down by the grand jury.

No particular investigation of the numbers racket here has been made by Park's office, it was reported from reliable sources.

Eighteen murder cases, accumulated since the June grand jury adjourned, are among the 1,350 cases to be acted upon by the September jury.

The lists of cases to be acted upon by the jury will require at least four weeks.

BLAMES 'RING'

Appointing Le Roy Lyon, 55, of 308 Evergreen avenue, Shaler township, as foreman of the jury, Judge McNaughter then told them:

"If you are aware of any subject of public import meriting investigation, you should report it to the court, and we will instruct you as to how we will go about its consideration.

"There are reports of widespread and organized violation of the law.

"I refer to the numbers racket and the operation of lotteries on a wholesale scale of such an extent as to warrant the idea that it is not the work of amateurs but of an organized ring."

SINCLAIR TAKES HIS 'EPIC' PLAN TO ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt had an engagement today with Upton Sinclair, Socialist and Democratic gubernatorial nominee of California.

Sinclair sought the conference and the summer White House again repeated today it would be confined to economics, probably the New Deal and its relation to California. Sinclair is bringing with him his "epic" plan to end poverty in California. He will be the President's guest at tea.

President Roosevelt has repeatedly stated that he is taking no part in state contests and this was emphasized in the case of Mr. Sinclair.

Joseph Kennedy, chairman of the new Federal Stock Exchange Commission, reported to Mr. Roosevelt the commission would take over control of the vast securities market on October 1 and he added he saw no harmful effect to legitimate business in it.

Asked by newspapermen what the effect of federal control on the market would be, Kennedy, who himself was formerly a trader, said:

"It may cut down the manipulative volume, but I can see no effect upon natural prices and no harm to legitimate business."

He saw no reason why federal control would prevent either "bull or bear" swings, but he believed the elimination of pools would go far to end manipulation.

Mr. Roosevelt also conferred this morning with J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, presumably on railroads. He also talked with his former intimate, A. A. Berle, economic authority and now city chamberlain of New York City.

SINCLAIR WANTS TO BUY PLANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Upton Sinclair, in the East to visit President Roosevelt today, said he would ask whether federal relief funds could be used to put into effect his plan to end poverty in California.

The author and Democratic nominee for Governor of California said it was not his purpose to "make use of the President in the campaign, or hang onto his kite tail." He expressed willingness, however, to "work with the national administration to the limit." He added:

"The real purpose of my trip is to ask the people in Washington if relief funds advanced to California can be used to buy, not products for the unemployed, but the means of production by which they can support themselves. The more money we get to buy or rent the means of production, the less public charity there will have to be in the future."

He intimated the decision would be "up to Roosevelt."

Pullman Official's Wedding Revealed

ATKINSON, N. H., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Edward A. Davenport, of River Forest, Ill., assistant general passenger agent of the Pullman Company, and Mrs. Carey Preston Rittmeister, of Los Angeles, were married here Saturday at the home of the bride's daughter, Mrs. Harry Wallace, it became known today.

HUEY'S FOE NOT TO BE DANIEL IN LION'S DEN

At Any Rate, Mayor Dodges 'Star' Role At Inquiry

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley is uncertain about playing the role of Daniel in the lion's den.

State Senator James A. Noe, chairman of the legislative committee investigating charges of "lottery and vice graft" under Walmsley's administration, said the Mayor would be called to testify. Senator Huey P. Long, arch enemy of the Mayor, is directing the inquiry behind closed doors.

Asked last night whether he would testify if summoned, Walmsley tersely replied:

"I'll make that decision when I'm subpenaed."

Witnesses before the first session Saturday testified that the Walmsley political faction collected money from gambling and vice elements.

A woman identified by George Reyer, superintendent of police, as one of the witnesses at Saturday's session, was arrested by the police on a charge of accosting. The witness testified that she paid off the police, but the woman arrested said she was "drunk" when a friend of hers escorted her to "some bank building" and that she was not responsible for such testimony.

Mayor Walmsley issued a denial that he had any connection with gambling or vice collections. Noe replied:

"Mayor Walmsley will have a chance to tell his story before the committee. So will everybody else who has been named as receiving money for protection of vice and corruption in New Orleans."

Senator Long and Gov. O. K. Allen, his political ally, continued National Guard patrols at the voters' registration office, the investigation quarters, Long's residence and Jackson barracks after an arbitration committee of citizens failed to effect an agreement between the forces of Long and Walmsley on peaceable conduct of the September 11 primary.

DOUGLAS RIFT AIRED BY FRIEND

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Lewis W. Douglas, young Arizona Democrat, was reported today to have resigned as director of the budget because of a conflict with President Roosevelt over the administration's financial program.

A friend of the former Representative who is familiar with budget matters, said the administration was planning to ask the next Congress for additional large sums for relief and other purposes which Douglas considers unjustified.

Declining to be quoted, Douglas' friend said it had been an open secret around the Treasury and among members of Congress that Douglas did not approve of the President's financial program. It was stressed, however, that Douglas maintained his high personal regard for Mr. Roosevelt and had offered to help his successor in any way he could.

Fugitive Picks Sheriff's Car For Ride

BLUFFTON, Ind., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Homer Croy, 21, "thumbed" a ride shortly after he fled from the state school at Butlerville.

Out of all the motorists on the road, of course, his benefactor had to be Sheriff Ora C. Lantis, of Bluffton, who took him to the school two weeks after Croy's sister reported he had sold a watch stolen from her.

Croy is going to make another trip with the Sheriff—back to Butlerville.

SENATE INQUIRY SHOWS ARMS 'TRUST'

U. S. Using Submarine Devices Sold World, Probers Told

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Evidence that Sir Basil Zaharoff, European mystery man, received commissions from the Electric Boat Company, of New London, Conn., frm 1919 to 1930 amounting to $766,099 74 was placed before the Senate Munition Court today by Senator [illegible] (Rep.).

The Senate Committee was also told that the Electric Boat Company and Vickers, Ltd., of England, had divided the world into exclusive areas for the sale of submarines and that the two companies interchanged patents for building boats.

SERVICES SOLD WORLD

Chairman Nye, of the committee, read into the record copies of the contracts.

Carse said Vickers was a customer rather than a competititor of Electric Boat.

Other testimony went into the record that the boats were sold to foreign countries and that the United States Navy used some of the basic patents owned by Electric Boat.

Carse said his company made a profit every time Vickers sold a submarine because of the use of Electric Boat patents. He added that his company lost about $40,000 a submarine on 400 German submarines built during the World War because of patent infringement.

HINTS LONG PROBE

Senator Nye said at the outset the hearing for the next three weeks would be devoted to a general study of the munitions industry, and that the inquiry would be continued for several months.

The large caucus room in the Senate Office Building was only partly filled when Nye rapped for order, but spectators, many of them women, continued to filter into the chamber.

The members of the committee, besides Nye, were George (Dem.), of Georgia; Pope (Dem.), of Idaho; Bone (Dem.), of Washington; Clark (Dem.), of Missouri, and Barbour (Rep.), of New Jersey. aVndenburg (Rep.), of Michigan, was absent.

EXPLAINS BUSINESS

Carse in reply to the first question asked by the committee, said he was president of the Electric Boat Company with headquarters in New York, and a plant at Groton, Conn.

Nye asked Carse what was the business of the company.

Speaking in a husky voice, Carse said the company designed and built submarines, boats and diesel engines.

Carse said his company formerly held small stock in affiliated companies, including the Holland Torpedo Company, but that he knew of no other company that owned stock in Electric Boat.

Carse explained in some cases the Electric Boat Company had arrangements with Vickers whereby its equipment was used on the payment of royalties.

He added that there was no direct connection between his company and the English government. All their arrangements were with Vickers.

Mass Attack on New Deal Launched by Coalition

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—A new mass attack on administration policies was launched here when the "American Coalition" called upon the nation to unite to retain its "constitutional liberties."

The call, issued as "an open letter to the American people," followed close upon organization of the American Liberty League for a like campaign.

The American Coalition, however, has been in existence for a decade and is composed of 98 patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations.

Accompanying the letter with a "declaration of principles," President John B. Trevor declared that "assaults upon the Constitution and the institutions of freedom and liberty" constitute an "emergency situation which challenges the patriotism of every loyal American." He added:

"The time is ripe for united, vigorous, organized effort in defense of the rights and liberties guaranteed to the individual under the Constitution of the United States."

"Academic theorists" are advocating a legislative program which would "involve the regimentation of our lives on a basis hitherto undreamed by the most extreme reactionaries," the letter declares.

Fall of Recovery Program Seen in Coal Code Fight

Danger of a complete breakdown of the coal code, which might easily extend to the entire national recovery plan, was seen here today by coal code leaders, following resignation yesterday of all members of the retail solid fuel industry and authority in Washington.

R. W. Kiser, chairman of the regional code authority of the solid fuel industry, declined to comment on the resignation of the board. He explained:

"Out of courtesy to Gen. Johnson, we have been asked not to comment until he has considered the full report of the resigned members."

But leaders here, it was learned, feel that the entire set-up of the industry under the coal code is threatened by Johnson's ruling that prices can be changed without consent of the industry.

One leader explained:

"If employers do not have protection for their prices, and price wars result, they can't keep up and pay the high wages to the workers.

"There are other industries faced by similar threats of collapse, and there is danger the entire setup of the NRA might crumble unless the administration of the code is changed."

Mass defiance of the NRA by the nation's coal dealers is threatened as a result of the code dispute, the Associated Press reported. No NRA code now provides for price fixing, but some have the provision that if ruinous price wars are going on an emergency can be declared in a particular area.

DEATH CHEATS DARING FLIER OF THIRD MAJOR AIR TROPHY

DOUGLAS DAVIS KILLED IN SPIN OF PLANE

M'Darment, Pittsburgh Ace, Sees Friend's Fatal Dive

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Death caught up with one of America's most famous airplane pilots late yesterday as 1934's national air races roared to a close before nearly 100,000 persons.

With two major aviation triumphs to his credit in four days and a third almost within his grasp, Douglas Davis, Atlanta (Ga.) veteran of a million miles in the air, crashed to death in the final racing event of this year's program.

Davis was on the eighth lap of the 12-lap, 100-mile Thompson trophy race, and was leading the field by an eighth-mile margin when the wreck occurred.

CIRCLES PYLON

Witnesses said he had just cut inside a pylon about three miles to the rear of the grandstand when he suddenly swerved to the left as if planning to circle back and take the pylon on the outer side.

His plane was traveling about 250 miles an hour when it shot out of control, twisted crazily through the air and plunged its nose into the ground.

Davis was practically decapitated in the crash, and his body badly mangled. His parachute was still strapped to his back, and in one hand was clutched a package of air mail letters.

Uninterrupted by the hand of death, the race went on to a finish, with first place honors going to Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood, Cal., at a speed of 248.129 miles an hour. He received the coveted Thompson trophy and a $4,500 cash award.

TWO RACES WON

Davis won the Bendix trophy race in a dash here from Burbank, Cal., last Friday and only a few hours before his death attained his second triumph of this year's races by exceeding the world's land plane speed record of 304.98 miles an hour.

Only five years ago he won the event of the national air races which corresponds to the contest in which he died. He is survived by a widow and two children, Douglas, Jr., 6, and Darlene, 4.

Friends of Davis recalled that he had feared a tragedy two days ago. They quoted him as saying:

"The course is too short. I've a notion not to enter at all."

M'Darment Sees Friend Plunge to Death

Sitting in the cockpit of a ship awaiting the end of the $10,000 Thompson trophy race at Cleveland O., yesterday, Lieut. Corley McDarment, Army aviator stationed at the County Airport, saw his friend, Douglas Davis, 35, of Atlanta, Ga., plunge to his death.

McDarment said:

"Davis was rounding one of the pylons that mark the race course when his plane swooped into a high swing. From that it looped into a spin, making two quick turns, and then shot to the ground. Doug tried to bail out, but his parachute did not open."

"He told me a couple of days ago he would not have entered the races this year had it not been for financial reverses."

2 Killed, 1 Burned In Army Plane Crash

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A bi-motored monoplane which struck a tree while less than 100 feet from the ground near Danville, La., carried to death its pilot, Cadet Neal Caldwell, 26, and an enlisted man, Betz Baker, 23, both of the 12th observation squadron.

Privt. V. K. Martin, 25, a second passenger, escaped with serious injuries when the ship burned

HOURS BEFORE DEATH: HIS WERE THE HONORS FOR SPEED

SCREAMS ROUT MT. LEBANON PROWLER

Girl's Cries Summon Rescuer, But Man Eludes Capture

There is a leper man and he'll get you if you don't watch out. At least that is how Miss Emma Simpson, 28, a domestic in the Embassy Apartments, Beverly road, feels today after an unidentified man sprang at her from bushes along McFarland road, Mt. Lebanon, early today.

The man seized her by the neck. She screamed while he continued to strike her. Her cries attracted the attention of neighbors and the badly frightened girl heard an unidentified woman's voice cry for a "Mr. Wood" to go to her rescue.

The "Mr. Wood" chased Miss Simpson's assailant along McFarland road. But guilt and fear lent speed to the unidentified culprit's heels and he disappeared.

Nervous and shaken today, Miss Simpson declared:

PLOT CHARGED BY SPINSTER TO TITOS

Miss Remaley Seeks To Save Properties From Foreclosure

Three Tito brothers, well-known brewers, of Oakland, were charged today by a 67-year-old spinster, Rebecca Remaley, with "unjustly trying to deprive her of $60,000" in two pieces of property in South Evaline street.

Miss Remaley, who for over 30 years was known to many through her restaurant in Sixth avenue, asks that a stay be granted on the foreclosure action taken last month. She thereof's sale is slated this month.

Judge Frank P. Patterson granted a rule on the Titos to show to show cause why the judgment should not be reopened. Attorney John J. Kennedy, former special city solicitor, opposed the stay in behalf of the Titos, while Attorney Howard Neely represented the woman.

The petition states that Miss Remaley sank her life savings, $60,000, in the property and that the Titos, Joseph, Anthony and Robert, have mortgages totaling $21,000 on the buildings.

The Titos claimed their Latrobe Brewery Company needed the mortgage money, she stated.

ILL, SHE CALLS FOR DEAD SON

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Hovering between life and death, Mrs. Julio Columbo called today from a hospital bed for her son, Russ, but no answer came.

She did not know that the son, Russ Columbo, golden-voiced singer, was dead, the victim of an accidental discharge of an old dueling pistol. For the third day he had failed to visit her as she lay suffering from heart ailment. Word of her son's death was withheld from her.

Lansing V. Brown, Jr., photographer, will be the chief witness at the coroner's inquest tomorrow.

Life-long friend of Columbo, Brown, 31, held the cap-and-ball pistol which sent a leaden pellet into the singer's head as the weapon discharged accidentally while the two men were examining Brown's firearm collection.

From the relatives came no expression of resentment toward Brown. One described it as "an act of God."

General Booth To Stay U. S. Citizen

International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—While her duties will keep her in London, Evangeline Booth, newly-elected general of the Salvation Army, will remain a United States citizen, she announced today. She said:

COMMANDER BOOTH

"I shall not resume British citizenship. It will be advantageous for me to retain my American citizenship.

"I will retain supervision of the Army in the United States but will give more liberty to my commissioners there as I will be removed from the country.

"There will be no change in our dress.

"In these days of changing fashion, when dressing is perfect agony for most women, the lassies have a distinct advantage with their trim blue uniforms and bonnets, which suit all ages and all faces.

"They do not use cosmetics because they have neither the time to use them nor the money to buy them."

Referring to the army's long-standing regulations against smoking and movies, Gen. Booth said:

"We build all the defenses around youth that we can."

MOONEY DENIED TRIP TO RITES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Tom Mooney will have the "freedom" of the prison during his period of mourning for the death of his mother, Mrs. Mary Mooney, but he will not be permitted to attend her funeral, Warden James B. Holohan, of San Quentin, said today.

The gray haired convict, convicted and serving a life sentence for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, will be restricted in his movements only by the prison walls until his mother is buried, Warden Holohan said. He will be relieved of his routine duty of peeling vegetables.

Holohan said he had no authority to grant a request of Mooney's brother and sister, John and Anna, that he be allowed to leave the prison for the funeral.

The brother and sister said they planned to carry the request to Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam, but State Attorney General U. S. Webb said in an informal opinion there was no way the Governor could release Mooney for his mother's burial.

ASK LIFE TERM IN CO-ED DEATH

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Life imprisonment—not the death penalty—will be asked by the state for Neal Myers, 19, University of Oklahoma student, charged with the death of his beauty queen sweetheart, Marian Mills, prosecutors disclosed today as the youth's murder trial opened.

The selection of jurors began before a crowd that packed the little courtroom, only a few blocks from the university campus where the romance of the 19-year-old professor's daughter and Myers, a junior in pharmacy, began.

More than a dozen bailiffs, deputy sheriffs and policemen maintained order.

Young Myers, entering the courtroom with his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Myers, of El Reno, was outwardly serene. He wore a trim, double-breasted gray suit, with a gray shirt. His parents sat on either side of the youth.

Miss Mills died here July 10, allegedly as the result of an attempted criminal operation, and Myers surrendered after a three-weeks' flight.

DILLINGER JINX LURES 2 BOYS

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The "jinx" that dogged the Dillinger gang brought an ironic finish to two youthful gunmen.

They walked into two traps yesterday, Howard Allen, 16, dying from shotgun wounds inflicted by a cafe employe, and Harry Walder, 18, cut down by police bullets.

Walder, police said, called himself Dillinger, while Allen adopted the sobriquet of "Baby Face." A third youth was being sought.

In Walder's lodging house police said they found two submachine guns, several sawed-off shotguns, automatic pistols and revolvers, and 400 rounds of ammunition.

Early yesterday when the three invaded a North Side restaurant, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and pistols, they were lured by the owner to the rear where the chef, Alex Speros, waited with a shotgun. Suddenly he blasted a full charge into Allen's chest.

Allen's companions dragged him to their car, and at a hospital they terrorized an intern and a clerk, forcing them to carry Allen inside.

Police awaited Walder's arrival at his rooming house late last night. Walder fired, but a stream of lead dropped him, mortally wounding him.

Police Capt. Thomas Duffy said the two escaped six months ago from St. Charles' Reformatory and were members of a gang which committed nearly 100 robberies recently.

Wife Finds Husband Shot Dead in Home

Prolonged ill health caused Charles Lynn, 28, of 2011 Brighton road, North Side, to shoot himself shortly before noon today, according to a coroner's report. Hearing a short from the third floor of their house, his wife, Helen, found him dead, a wound through the right temple.

NEW TIPS GIVEN ON 'BABY FACE'

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Federal authorities held secret today the contents of a 21-page statement signed by Theodore Bentz, bank robbery suspect, shedding further light, according to police, on the operations of John Dillinger and his murderous band of desperadoes.

Bentz was arrested in Portland, Me., and is being held in jail at Grand Haven, Mich., in connection with bank robberies at South Bend, Ind., Danville, Me., Haverhill and Gardner, Mass.

According to United States Attorney Fleming at South Bend, Bentz was with Dillinger, Homer van Meter and George (Baby Face) Nelson when they raided the Merchants National Bank at South Bend June 30, killing one policeman, wounding three others and escaping with $28,000.

Information obtained from the prisoner was used to bring charges here against Attorney Louis Piquett, Dillinger's lawyer, and six others, including two physicians, accused of harboring the notorious outlaw.

Further arrests were forecast following the statement given by Bentz.

Motorcycle Rider Hurled from Machine

STONES ROUT 100 DANCERS

More than 100 patrons of a dance hall at the National Amusement Park, Blawnox, scurried to cover early today when a gang of young men and boys stoned the place.

The front of the building was wrecked.

Several shots were reported to have been fired from the building into the assailants.

The attack was said to have been made to avenge the ejection of a member of the band, known to police as the "Larimer avenue gang," from the hall earlier in the evening.

Samuel Collinger, who said he was the owner of the dance hall, told police two attacks had been made on his dance hall during the evening.

In the earlier melee the attackers left after hurling several stones, promising to return.

Their numbers augmented, they came back half an hour later. The gang was met by a barricade hastily erected by friends of the dance hall and the seige was repulsed.

SHARK DEVOURS GIRL BATHER

SUSAK, Jugo-Slavia, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A giant man-eating shark weighing 3,800 pounds devoured Agnes Novak, beautiful 18-year-old blonde, while she was swimming in the Adriatic Sea, local police reported today.

The shark was captured after fishermen fought it three hours, the police said. Its huge stomach, ripped open, disclosed the girl's mangled body.

Jugo-Slav newspapers were ordered to suppress the story, because it was thought tourists would be frightened away from Adriatic beaches.

HOME 'TORTURE' PROBE NEARS

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The Butler County grand jury, charged with an investigation of the Butler County Home, started today to dispose first of 45 routine criminal cases in its way.

District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, who conducted his own investigation of alleged mismanagement at the home, said the jury's routine work probably will delay start of the probe until next week.

Among the cases to be considered are assault and battery charges filed by two home inmates against Fred C. Herold, home superintendent, who resigned while the District Attorney's investigation was in progress.

Shortly before Herold's resignation, he was suspended by the County Commissioners, who named County Auditor James C. Barr as his acting successor.

MRS. ROSS SEES RECOVERY SIGN

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Nellie Taylor Ross, director of the United States mint, said today demand by private business for silver coins, greater during the past year than in the 10 preceding years combined, shows America is whipping the depression.

MRS. NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS

The former Governor of Wyoming is visiting friends here. She said:

"I have been interested in going over figures of the mint and it is satisfying to note that in past generations the mint quickly pointed to a resumption of business activity just as it does now.

"This demand for silver coins, coming from private business, entirely voluntary and indicating business activity, tells a happy, gratifying story, I think."

PINCHOT URGED TO LIMIT CALL

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 4.—The Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce today called upon Gov. Gifford Pinchot to limit the scope of the special session of the Legislature to the question of relief.

Commending the Governor for his unsuccessful efforts to avoid the special session, the chamber, in a letter signed by George E. Poss, general secretary, pointed out:

"The state chamber's committee on state taxation and expenditures, of which Ralph E. Weeks, of Scranton, is chairman, has discussed the scope of the proposed special session and concluded that a wide-open call would unduly prolong such session without yielding corresponding benefits to the state. In this point of view our Board of directors concurs."

SCHOOL DROPS BANK SUIT

Judge R. M. Gibson today signed an order in FFederal Court discontinuing a suit brough by the South Fayette Township School Board to prevent the Bridgeville National Bank from paying dividends to other depositors until a claim of $3,854 of the board had been settled.

The school district had sought an injunction against the newly opened bank to restrain it from making the dividend payments on balances of depositors of the closed First National Bank of Bridgeville.

Ice Box Death of 2 Girls Blamed on Baby's Prank

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Childish play was blamed today for the ice box deaths of Maryann Paiva, 6, and her sister, Mary, 7, of Wilton.

Sheriff's officers said they were convinced the girls crawled into their parents' bright new ice box Saturday and were suffocated when their 2-year-old brother, Alfred, slammed the door.

Theories that the little girls had been attacked by an intruder and their bodies crammed into the refrigerator were abandoned, investigators said, as a result of a confession made by their 15-year-old brother, Civerino.

He said he left the two girls washing dishes in their home when he went to rejoin his parents in the hop fields. He denied shoving his sisters into the box, where their bodies were found when the family returned from the fields.

Civerino was jailed. Deputy Charles Ogle said an insanity complaint would probably be sworn against him.

Ogle said the accidental death theory conformed with all details, including the report of Dr. C. H. McDonnell, who had announced the girls were attacked. Death was caused by suffocation.

FATHER ADMITS 'POISON PIE' KILLING

to the story which detectives said he told them.

He then served Raymond, Stanley, Jr., and Anna Marie with a piece each and told them to eat it. He himself joined in eating the pei, he said.

HALTED WIFE'S EATING

One piece of pie remained when his wife came home. She went to eat and had already placed it to her mouth, according to Grabowski, when he interfered and said:

"Don't eat that pie, I want it for myself."

A short time later Raymond and Stanley became ill.

Anna Marie was not affected much, according to the father because she did not eat the crust of the pie but just dug out the apples.

Following is the text of the confession which detectives say Grabowski signed:

"First, JJennie Kolb, my sister, we had a party there last year and it was around July or Labor Day. I don't remember, and we had a little trouble then —that I was a no-good bum.

TELLS OF THREAT

"They began nagging me ever since I was out of work, and I got mad and I picked up my little girl and I said, 'I am going to drown myself.' Somehow I changed my mind and came back to my sister's place. Then I didn't show up at her place. It is a year, I am pretty sure.

"Then my wife, she also started riding me, that I didn't want to work, that I didn't want to help, that I wanted welfare. But in June this year I went under a different name, which my wife knew.

"I worked in June until the twenty-seventh, and then I got laid off and I didn't work for seven weeks until this day Thursday a week ago, the twenty-third, and my wife says, 'The hell with you and your brats.'

"She also said that she was sorry that she ever permitted children to me. Then that Wednesday night, the twenty-ninth, she claimed she went to the meeting which I went to and I didn't find her there. That was the U. C. L. meeting. After the meeting, when she came home, I asked her where she had been. She said, 'At the meeting.'

'I SLAPPED HER'

"I slapped her in the face, which I thought what she said was a lie, and she ran out in the yard to her godfather's place, by the name of Masturnick. They live in the same row there at Forty-fourth street.

"She told her story there: That we had that trouble by me hitting her in the face. Then from there she went to her aunt's place, Pauline Nametack on Fifty-fourth street. Then she came home with her aunt and slept in my place until Thursday morning. Thursday morning she went out to her aunt's place and she came back with the three youngsters, Raymond, Stanley, Jr., and Anna Marie, to get a hair cut for the boys to get prepared for school, and that I got mad about Wednesday's fight that we had and I went to Schell's meat market at 5330 Butler street for an apple pie and I loaned 35 cents of Mr. Schell and went to the druggist to get that rat poison, which I fed the four of us. And it didn't work on me. It worked on the little boy, Raymond, first.

"And I also was telling my wife that some day I would break it up, keeping house with my wife, for reasons that my wife had no use for me, and she is not to blame for nothing, only me.

'WE MADE UP'

"At 5164 Natrona way I was going to break up the house there also, but I didn't want to leave the little ones behind me. But somehow we made up and I forgave her and she forgave me. Also at 4518 Plummer street, where I lived for two years and 11 months with my mother, my brother, Joe, and his wife.

"Then my other sister came from Lorraine, O. She also stayed with us. Her name is Martha Lipinski. But before that I had trouble there with my wife also. I throwed a knife from my mother from madness and I turned around and hit my wife in the face and my wife went out for about two hours and came back home, but before she came home I called up the store to come and take the furniture and I told my wife about it and she called up my sister's place, Jennie Kolb.

"She was paying my furniture bill and she told my wife to make up then, which my wife made up with me. We lived happy, then up to 5164 Natrona way; just like I said, we lived happy there until we moved to 5406 Berlin way.

"She suspected me of being out with somebody else, and last Tuesday night she accused me of being out with another woman, and on Wednesday night when she said she was at the meeting I thought she was out with somebody else as I was at the McCleery school at 9 o'clock and she was not there I decided to end it all and put the rat poison in the pie between the apples and I fed it to the children and myself.

HUNT FOR AID

"About 10 o'clock that night me and my wife took Raymond to the hospital and about 3:30 p. m. he took sick and about 6 o'clock I started and I took him to Dr. Nevin and asked him what could be done. He gave me a little white pill and claimed that the pill was milk of magnesia, and so about 8 o'clock I took Raymond to Dr. Finegold and he prescribed a white medicine and I went to Young's drug store at Fifty-second street and got the medicine.

"But somehow I was saying to her aunt that I am going to take Raymond to the hospital and she said she don't think anything would be wrong and I don't remember if it was 10 or 5 minutes to 10, but I got some Italian woman who owns a fruit stand at Fifty-fourth street and I asked her if she could do me a lift with a sick boy.

"She took me to St. Margaret's Hospital at Forty-sixth street and a doctor examined Raymond. So I asked him, 'What about the other two sons, the boy and the girl?' And he said, 'If they get sick to bring them in at any time.' So I agreed on that, to bring them to the hospital.

"At about 25 minutes after 10 I was arrested and that is the last I know until today that I found out that Raymond was dead and I wish the same. That's all I remember."

18 U. S. Fliers Will Vie in $50,000 Race From England to Australia

MRS. KEITH-MILLER

Ruth Nichols and Louise Thaden Entered

International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Hatfield airport, 18 miles northwest of London, has been selected as the starting point of the England-Australia air race, for which 64 pilots, including 18 from the United States, have entered.

Competitors will make a mass start at 6:30 A. M. Saturday, October 20.

It has been announced that nine planes are entered for the speed contest only, 27 for the handicap race and 28 for both speed and handicap events. The two races are to be flown concurrently over the same course, and both will start from Hatfield.

Competitors in the speed race, for which a first prize of $50,000 is offered, will be required to land only at five places en route: Bagdad, Allahabad, Singapore, Port Darwin and Charleville, Australia.

The handicap event will be based on a formula in which the commercial load carried is the main factor. For this race there will be compulsory checking and control points at intervals of roughly 500 miles throughout the course.

The winner, who will receive a prize of $10,000, will be the pilot who completes the course in the fastest handicap time.

Six women are among the pilots of international fame who have entered for the contest, four of whom are American and two British.

Ruth Nichols, of Rye, N. Y., and Laura Ingalls, of Beechurst, L. I., are flying their own machines, and two others, Jacqueline Cochran, of New York, and Mrs. Louise Thaden, of Kansas City, Mo., will be accompanied by male pilots or co-pilots.

The two British women competing will be Mrs. James Mollison, who will accompany her famous husband, and Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, both well known to American flying circles.

SCHOOLS ASKED FOR COURSES IN ITALIAN

Pennsylvania's public school authorities are to be urged by the Italian Sons and Daughters of America to teach the Italian language.

In convention at the Fort Pitt Hotel today, delegates of the organization adopted a resolution requesting the study of Italian in the state's high schools.

It was pointed out that very few Italian courses are available in high schools and that the language should take its place with French and German.

Delegates also adopted a resolution supporting the League of Decency in its fight for cleaner motion pictures.

The convention will end tomorrow with election of officers and a banquet.

Work among the youth was described at the session late yesterday by John S. Aldisert, of Pittsburgh, state grand master. He said in part:

"We are urging the association to adopt a youth movement which will provide education, sport activities and the spirit of fellowship among children from 15 years of age up. We hope to instill in our American-born children the fullest sense of Americanism and feeling for fellow citizens. We went to develop a fraternal feeling among Italian youths."

Reports on the progress of the organization were made by John B. Fortunato, also of Pittsburgh, supreme master of the state organization.

BIRTH CONTROL ADVOCATED BY HEALTH CHIEF

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Birth control, not only for the sake of the mother, but for the future of the nation, is advocated by Dr. Haven Emerson, president of the American Public Health Association.

Dr. Emerson, speaking before a dinner meeting at the annual convention of the organization, said the United States stand twenty-third in the maternal mortality rate among civilized nations of the world.

Although this country is higher than most nations in public health work, he said this needless sacrifice of mothers is a "disgraceful condition which must be remedied in the future."

Three scientists declared the drug dinitrophenol assertedly used by more than 100,000 women in the United States for reducing, should be placed on the poison list and issued only on prescription of a physician.

Dr. J. L. Pomeroy, president of the western branch of the association, advocated a national plan to provide adequate health service for all men and women earning $1,500 or less a year.

'CORPSE' SEIZED AS FUGITIVE

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—After waiting two months, Union County (N. J.) authorities served their warrant on a human "corpse" who has been buried eight feet underground since July 4.

The "corpse"—Herbert Hannagan, of North Plainfield, N. J.—came out of his grave only to be arrested as a fugitive.

Hannagan makes a business of being buried underground, and the curious are permitted, for a fee, to look at him in his grave through an iron pipe leading from the surface.

Pittsburgh Awarded Health Work Praise

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 4.—The American Public Health Association, in convention here, has awarded honorary mention to the city of Pittsburgh for its health work.

WIFE IN CHAINS STARTS FIGHT AT FETE

Universal Service.

CANNES, France, Sept. 4.—The fashionable end-o-the-season fete at the Palm Beach Casino here with everyone dressed in pirate costumes, ended in a fist fight.

It was all because of the devotion to realism of Emile Mathis French automobile manufacturer.

Mathis insisted on bringing his wife chained to him, as was done with slaves in olden days on the Mediterranean. The combination was so effective that the couple was cheered by the assembly of prominent persons, including the Marchioness of Milford Haven, a cousin of the Princess Marina of Greece, Sir Hugo and Lady de Bathe, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gould, Jules Bache, Hope Hampton and Rose Dolly.

But the cheers turned to consternation in the wee sma' hours when Mathis and the nephew of Leon Bailby, owner of the newspaper Le Jour, became involved in fisticuffs with the result that Mathis rolled on the floor, dragging madame with him.

Mathis challenged his antagonist to a duel, but the elder Bailby declared that duels are out of date and friends intervened to hush up the affair.

DR. DANIEL W. BELL.

Douglas' Successor Dual-Title Man; Began as Clerk

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Twenty-three years of service to the Treasury have brought Daniel M. Bell to head of the Budget Bureau.

From a clerk and bookkeeper, Bell climbed until he claimed the confidence and respect of numerous Treasury secretaries and was advanced to the post of commissioner of accounts and deposits. He will retain this job of keeping the books of the government.

When Lewis Douglas handed in his resignation as budget director, Bell was given that job, too. The Budget Bureau is the agency which estimates the governmental expenditures as a basis for congressional appropriations.

Douglas quit because of dissatisfaction with administration policy on expenditures.

Aliquippa Man Killed by Truck

Steve Sitalitas, 45, of 227 Station street, Aliquippa, died last night in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, from injuries suffered when he was struck by a truck in the Big Sewickley Creek road, near Fair Oaks, Sunday. Joseph Peits, of 122 Maplewood avenue, Ambridge, the driver was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office, it was reported.

15-YEAR CHASE FOR ALIMONY STILL GOING STRONG

International News Service.

WARSAW, Sept. 4.—For the past 15 years, Mrs. Regina Kleinmann, has been in constant pursuit of her husband, Josef Kleinmann, and finally she cornered him by his mother's grave.

The Kleinmanns were married in 1911 at Frankfort-on-Main. In 1915, while they were spending a winter holiday in Switzerland, Josef suddenly vanished. He left one evening and never returned.

She engaged private detectives and with their help she began her long chase. Josef Kleinmann was traced from one European town to another. Wherever he went, the detectives found him. And as soon as they found him, Kleinmann hurriedly departed for another town.

Once in 1925 Mrs. Kleinmann succeeded in having her husband brought into court in Berlin. Josef promised the judge that he would make his wife an allowance. But as soon as he was free again, he once more disappeared.

Now the Kleinmanns have met again in highly dramatic circumstances in Warsaw.

Josef Kleinmann's mother died here and he arrived for her funeral. At the same time Regina Kleinmann heard of her mother-in-law's death and hurried here, expecting to meet her husband.

She met him suddenly appearing at the graveside and taking up a position near the dead woman's coffin, she demanded that her husband should wear on his body of his mother's to pay her an allowance.

There was an embarrassing pause in the funeral service. It seemed, however, that the Kleinmanns would come to some arrangement at last.

CHICAGO'S FAIR OUTWITTED ON QUINTUPLETS

TORONTO, Sept. 4 — (AP.) — The Rev. Father Routhier, parish priest of Corbeil, Ontario, revealed today that the contract for the appearance of the Dionne quintuplets at A Century of Progress in Chicago was never valid, since it was not signed by Mrs. Oliva Dionne, mother of the five girls.

The priest issued a statement saying that a check for $100, received June 4 from the Tour Bureau of Chicago, was returned uncashed the same day.

He said the bureau offered $30,000 to exhibit the quintuplets in Chicago, but that "their proposition did not please us at all," since "the father and I were repugnant to the idea of the children leaving Corbeil."

SAW PUBLICITY'S VALUE

Father Routhier said that at the time of the offer there was no assurance that there would be sufficient money to give proper care to the quintuplets. He continued:

"Looking forward to the large publicity that the signature of Dionne would give to the case, and hoping that the government or the Red Cross would step in, when seeing the pressure from Chicago, I explained the whole thing to Mr. Dionne and advised him to sign. On leaving Orillia on our way back I said to the father: 'When you are back home tonight you can throw the agreement in the stove; it is absolutely invalid.'

"The next day I sent a telegram to the promoters advising them that we were not going any further with the agreement, and I also had the lawyer, Mr. Valin, of North Bay, send them a legal notification of invalidity.

Three months have passed. The government has stepped in. The Red Cross has adopted the quintuplets. They are building the hospital. Roads will be fixed or built. The eyes of the whole world are looking towards Corbeil."

Wee Sisters Growing: Move to Hospital Nears

CALLENDER, Ontario, Sept. 4 —(AP.)—The Dionne quintuplets have teamed up to demonstrate to their physician, Dr. A. R. Dafoe, that they are ready to be moved to their new home.

From tiny Marie, the smallest, to husky Yvonne, the largest, the famed sisters all gained weight. Marie, Yvonne, Cecile and Annette all added two ounces, while Emilies stepped up one and one-half.

Dr. Dafoe, pleased with the gains, was almost ready to take them from the farm home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, to the hospital being erected for them 100 yards down the road.

The weight table:

Yvonne	7	13½	2
Annette	7	13½	2
Cecile	8	1½	2
Emilie	8	1½	1½
Marie	8	2½	2

NEW 'TRAGEDY' LAWYER NAMED

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 4 —(AP.)—An attorney with a perfect score in saving more than 100 murder suspects from the electric chair will direct the defense of Robert Edwards, young mining engineer, charged with the slaying of his neighborhood sweetheart, Freda McKechnie.

The appointment of Frank A. McGuigan as Edwards' chief counsel was announced yesterday as District Attorney Thomas M. Lewis disclosed the accused killer's trial will be delayed at least beyond the first week of the September term of court, which opens Monday.

McGuigan's appointment resulted from the court's refusal to postpone the trial due to illness of Evan Jones, veteran criminal lawyer, friend of Edwards' father.

McGuigan has been a member of the Luzerne County bar for 40 years, and during that time has defended more than 100 murder cases, in none of which his clients were sentenced to death.

ARMY'S LEADER GROOMED AS HITLER HEIR

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A great pageant of Nazism opened in this Bavarian city today with the German army at last unreservedly following the leadership of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

An announcement that Gen. Werner von Blomberg minister of defense, and other Reichswehr officers would participate in the National Socialist convention led to a belief in some quarters that von Blomberg will be named Hitler's deputy and political heir.

Until then recent oath of personal loyalty to Hitler officers of the Reichswehr considered themselves above party politics. Now they have become an integral part of the Nazi machine and Hitlerites today are proclaiming the definite conversion of the army another example of Germany's unity behind the fuehrer-chancellor.

Since the "blood purge" of June 30 Hitler has cultivated the support of the regular armed forces, and some believe that he now reposes more confidence in them than he does in his own storm troopers and the schutz staffel.

The conclave is the sixth convention since the founding of the party, and the second since Hitler came to power. One Nazi organ observed that it is the first since "the crowning of the totalitarian state"—since Hitler's assumption of the powers of the Reichs President.

Hitler is the star of the mammoth show. His seven speeches, one to be delivered each day, are expected to chart the course of the party.

It is regarded likely by some that he may make some surprising statements concerning such matters as the League of Nations, the Saar and pacts with other nations.

Hitler Goes on Pedestal With Martin Luther as 'Hanfy' Hails Press

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 4.—An American opened the first act of the National Socialist Party Congress today in Nuremberg.

While the standard of 538 cities and towns poured into the stadium at the rate of one every three minutes bringing an army of 600,000 to almost triple the population of this "jewel box of Germany" Hitler, Ernst Hanfstaengl, Harvard graduate and descendant of an American Civil War general, started the show.

He received the foreign press in the German Museum and, surrounded by medieval relics, told his auditors that Hitlerite National Socialism marked as great a period in world history as Luther's Reformation.

Nazi Germany, he declared, has entered on a renaissance comparable to the renaissance that awoke the world to culture after its long sleep during the Middle Ages.

ADVICE TO WRITERS

He admonished the journalists to give up the idea of covering the news day by day with interest only for insignificant daily events and bespoke the example of Goethe who preferred to read a newspaper 20 years old in order to get the proper perspective.

The actual beginning of the Congress take place tonight when Hitler addresses high party officials in the rathaus.

But it is important to note that this is no party congress in the sense of a Republican or Democratic convention in America.

This is merely a huge get-together and resembles more a convention of the American Legion than that of any political party outside of Germany.

Fort Hitler is insistent upon the "Fuehrer principle"—that is absolute domination of his party from above and from his own person leaves no room for decisions by anybody else and hence there is no need for discussion.

In this respect Hitler's organization differs vitally from the Communist party in Russia which at its party congresses permits discussion of policies and only after the congress has voted a fixed policy is further discussion forbidden and deviation from the program punished.

Mussolini, too, has his grand council, which is completely dependent upon him but which does a great deal of debating and legislating.

There is no central committee and no grand council in the Nazi party. Hitler long ago planned to have a party senate and built 40 red leather seats in the Senate room of the Brown House at Munich. But those seats still are unoccupied.

'HEIR' KEPT SECRET

The purpose of the party congress is declared this year to be to demonstrate "an unshakable unity among the Nazis. Last year the most important thing that happened at the party council was Hitler's announcement that Germany does not have to fight to regain her honor on the battlefield, as she has now regained it by driving out her "traitors" at home.

This year what the congress would most like to hear would be Hitler's choice of a "vice leader," who will be Vice President, Vice Chancellor and successor to Hitler's power.

But it is unlikely that the Congress will be told, for this is Hitler's secret and he is showing no sign of revealing it until he is ready.

Next, however, in importance for Germany, is Hitler's announcement of what his plan is going to be to get the 10 per cent "no voters" in the last prebiscite to become Nazis.

U. S. WILL JOLT REDS ABOUT THAT DEBT

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The State Department intends to ask Soviet Russia in effect if it is going to do anything more about the American debt and damage claims.

The negotiations collapsed a week ago following Moscow's insistence on a substantial amount to be a credit for the United States to give it the money with which to pay the American claims.

Officials said it was up to Moscow to come forward with a more reasonable suggestion. Soviet Ambassador Alexander Troyanovsky said it was up to Washington to make a counter proposal.

There the matter has rested.

American officials now have decided to forget for the moment negotiations and a final effort to induce the Russians to accept reasonable terms.

JAP PREMIER DODGES RIDE 'ON WAGON'

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A delegation of the Japan Prohibition League visited Premier Keisuke Okada and urged that the new cabinet-forming official give up the use of alcohol.

The Premier listened long enough to ascertain the object of his visitors and then turned away without answering.

Premier Okada's fondness for sake and his ability to dispose of impressive quantities of the strong drink have long been a subject of comment by Japanese newspapers which displays little reticence in discussing the intimate affairs of distinguished citizens. Okada started building his reputation as a drinker when he was a young naval officer and his reputation in that respect grew as he climbed to the position of admiral.

When he was named Premier newspapers published cartoons showing him clutching a bottle. Such pictures were not presented maliciously, or with an idea of disparagement. They were rather, as a tribute to his stamina.

The delegation of prohibitionists yesterday urged that the Premier promote alcohol "at this time when Japan is facing a grave international crisis."

Picnic Truck Upsets Causing Injury to 6

Six Negroes were injured when a truck on which they were returning from a picnic last night upset in Simpson Hollow, near Elizabeth. Four were taken to McKeesport Hospital and two were sent home after receiving treatment at the office of Dr. O. L. Howder.

LACK OF FUNDS CURBS NAZIS

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The flood of Nazi propaganda abroad is menaced by a serious drought because of lack of funds, it was stated in reliable quarters here.

It was reported that Halmar Schacht, minister of economics, has notified Paul Joseph Goebbels that in the future no public money will be available for propaganda in other nations. It was understood that Goebbels, propaganda minister, has been expending not less than 200,000,000 marks annually for this purpose.

German professors and other prominent persons making visits to other nations frequently have been granted handsome allowances for spreading the Nazi gospel abroad.

NEW NAZI SCARE ROUSES VIENNA

VIENNA, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—"Rescue Rintelen from prison immediately. Failing which, blow up the wing of the Criminal Court Building on Wickenburggasse."

Vienna police said they intercepted this short-wave radio message last night when it was sent from Nazi sources to Austrian rebels, apparently trying to start a fresh insurrection.

The message brought immediate police and army action and threw Vienna into a fresh panic. Authorities threw a strong armed guard around the Criminal Court Building.

Fearing bombs below, the police searched the canals under the building, but discovered no explosives.

It was said the wounded Dr. Anton Rintelen, former Austrian minister to Rome, who was announced as Chancellor at the time of the abortive Nazi putsch July 25, had been transferred from a hospital to a cell overlooking the gallows of the Supreme Court. Police are still questioning him on the part he was to have played if the putsch had succeeded.

Ban Horn Sounding, Taxi Drivers' Strike

MADRID, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Taxicab drivers of Madrid called a strike today to protest against an order forbidding them to sound their motor horns at night.

SCHNADER EXIT IF SESSION IS 'OPEN' LOOMS

By MARK SHIELDS

Decision of Gov Pinchot to call a special session of the Legislature may bring about the resignation from his cabinet of Attorney General William A Schnader, Republican candidate for Governor.

Today in Harrisburg, Schnader refused to comment upon reports that he had told friends he would resign. From other sources it was learned the decision of the Attorney General probably would rest upon the contents of the official legislative call to be issued later.

SCOPE MAIN QUESTION

If the call should be confined to unemployment relief measures it is considered improbable that the Attorney General will leave the cabinet.

If the Governor throws the session wide open to social legislation, consolidation of government and economic problems it is more than likely that the Attorney General will resign.

He would be able to say that attention to so many legislative details would take him from his campaign which will be launched officially Saturday when the Republican State Committee adopts its platform.

WANT CALL RESTRICTED

Republican leaders are bringing pressure upon the Governor to confine the call to relief and are encouraged by his recently acquired antagonism to George H. Earle, Democratic opponent of Schnader.

It is recognized that there is more danger to the Republicans than to the Democrats in a wide open call.

On the other hand, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern has been pressing the Governor for some time to open the call to government consolidation and is understood to have an implied promise from the Governor that this will be done.

Hatfield Attacks 'New Deal' Policies

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Sept. 4.—United States Senator Henry D. Hatfield, of West Virginia, in a Labor Day address under the auspices of the East Liverpool Trades and Labor Council at Rock Springs Park, urged a higher tariff, collective bargaining, restricted immigration and old age pensions.

He attacked the "New Deal" as a "raw deal" and declared opposition to the Tennessee Valley improvement project.

News Behind the News -:- By PAUL MALLON

Douglas Resignation Seen as Sign of New Deal Breach

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The President and his ex-director of the budget are gentlemen. They handled their last farewell in such a gentlemanly way as to prevent the thing from getting into headlines a foot high.

Mr. Mallon

Nevertheless, all insiders here recognized the development as only a symptom of a peculiar inside administration situation, which may, or may not, ultimately crack wider.

It is hardly a secret that Mr Douglas resigned because he was squarely up against the preparation of a new budget based on governmental principles he does not like. He and President Roosevelt have been strong personal friends. They still are.

As long as a direct issue between them could be avoided, Mr Douglas went along quietly. When the time came to choose between friendship and principle, Mr. Douglas took the one which honorable men usually select.

In his place, President Roosevelt is getting a capable man who will prepare the kind of budget Mr. Roosevelt wants.

ROOTS

There are a number of other Douglases still high in the councils of the New Deal here. They are going along loyally, but they are not exactly satisfied with all New Deal policies. They are just as devoted to President Roosevelt personally as the liberals are. They have not resigned or raised their voices because they have not come squarely up against the issue which confronted Mr. Douglas. They may never come to it, but it is certainly fair to say they are growing increasingly restless.

To get the proper understanding of their personal situation, you have to go back to the last presidential campaign.

At that time, such specific issues as government spending, silver, NRA, AAA and PWA were never thought of. A lot of young conservatives, practical politicians and middle-of-the-roaders then joined the Roosevelt army only to find out later that President Roosevelt was taking them places they did not want to go.

Some went the way of the Achesons, Bpragues, Warburgs, et al, and resigned. Virtually all have cleared out of the treasury and government financial agencies. More have gone quietly from the NRA (young businessmen whose names did not mean much to the public).

Yet many remain in the commerce and other departments around town, the RFC, the post-office and possibly even one in the White House.

METAMORPHOSIS

If you could probe the private thoughts of these people, you would find that they believe a fundamental change of view has taken place in President Roosevelt and some of his right-hand men during the last year. They have noticed that the change is more striking in reference to political than to economic policies.

Initially, President Roosevelt started out by making political concessions in probably half of his appointments. He got his college professors into some key positions, but he also got some conservatives and some good Democrats, picked from the right states. He had at least half an eye for the vote.

In the last six months, virtually no political concessions have been made. Apparently, President Roosevelt selected his new path when he chose Mr. Morgenthau to replace Mr. Woodin. He has followed it without deviation down to his latest appointment of Mr. Bell to replace Mr. Douglas.

Most insiders ascribe this to what they say is a change in the political philosophy of Louis Howe, the President's right-hand man. There is no question but that Howe has changed. All his associates know it.

Apparently, he now believes the President is so strongly entrenched that concessions in politics and in economic policy, are unnecessary, or, at least, for any other reason undesirable.

ROPE

This is of utmost importance because of the basic political technique on which the New Deal has been working. As one New Dealer described it recently:

"President Roosevelt's scheme has been to pull a tight rope for reform. Whenever the right wing crowds him, he gives a little rope, but he gives it reluctantly and sparingly."

The New Dealer might also have added that President Roosevelt lately has been giving practically no rope.

The dissatisfied followers in his ranks are holding on in the belief that he may change his mind again and get back nearer to what they want. They are doing all they can to urge him that way by making speeches interpreting his intentions moderately and by running their own jobs that way, but frankly, they are not as hopeful as they once were.

GERMANY

There is a growing conviction among our international economic experts that Germany is headed toward another economic relapse.

That is a contributing reason why the State Department has been so diffident about opening trade negotiations. The excuse publicly offered is that Germany has failed to promise non-discrimination against American bondholders.

International advisers here considered it highly significant that Finance Dictator Schacht recently announced that a complete moratorium on all foreign debts could be expected and that debts would have to be reduced at the expiration of the moratorium several years hence.

WAR

The next war apparently will be between the War Department and the House Military Affairs Committee. In fact, it has already started under the surface.

The committee virtually ordered War Secretary Dern to drop Gen. Foulois as head of the air service. Dern's published refusal was politely diplomatic, but he dropped a few asides, suggesting that the Congressmen were not running the War Department. And he dropped them in places where he knew the Congressmen would find them.

Pinchot Calls Assembly To Meet Relief Crisis

of his openly expressed anger at George H. Earle, Democratic gubernatorial candidates, for refusing to attend the bipartisan relief conference with Hopkins in New York, the Governor was expected to reverse himself and limit the call.

Opposition to convocation of the session has been plentiful and has sprung from many sources, including the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association and many other local and state-wide groups.

SESSION OPPOSED

In political circles, only the Democrats were willing to advocate calling the Legislature. Republicans unanimously condemned the session and Gov. Pinchot made repeated attempts in an effort to bring about a compromise of the federal government's ultimatum that the state must begin to share in the relief expenses in September.

His final plea was made last week even after both President Roosevelt and Hopkins had expressed themselves in favor of a special session if there was no other way of raising state funds. The offer of $6,000,000 from liquor profits and $14,000,000 from the motor fund was summarily rejected by Hopkins.

The executive's offer of cash followed the failure of the scheduled bipartisan meeting in New York last Friday to come to an agreement in the absence of George H. Earle, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, who refused to attend. Both major party candidates for governor and the two state chairmen were invited to attend the meeting.

Previously, Attorney General William A. Schnader, the Republican nominee, pledged himself, if elected, to make certain that the incoming executive took up the relief problem in January and promised to obtain supporting pledges from G. O. P. legislative candidates, at the same time asking Earle to do the same thing. Earle ignored the offer.

WATERS' PROGRAM

These two plans to avoid a session—Governor Pinchot's and Schnader's—followed one suggested by State Treasurer Charles A. Waters, who was appointed by the relief board to draft a program to obtain state funds. He offered five suggestions including programs for the transfer of funds from the motor fund and borrowing by local governments. Immediate protests were lodged against the latter.

The principal argument advanced by Governor Pinchot and others against a session was the contention that Pennsylvania has been discriminated against in the allocation of federal funds. It also was contended vigorously that so close to election time, the Legislature would be unwilling to impose further taxation on the people and that even if a new tax were passed, it could not be collected at once.

Until the state exhausted its available relief money at the end of April of this year, the dollar-for-dollar agreement between the state and federal government had been followed fairly closely, the state spending $67,000,000 to the federal government's $74,768,123.

Since May the federal government has advanced $54,325,203, including $21,020,000 for works relief.

Relief Taxes Proposed Stir Bitter Opposition

HARRISBURG, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's Legislature faces a difficult task in attempting to agree upon a method of financing relief in this state at the special session of the Legislature, a survey of proposals advanced thus far revealed today.

Not a single suggestion for raising jobless-aid funds has been offered without bringing almost instant objection.

Half a dozen embryo plans are in the making. Briefly, these plans are:

1. Legislation to put into effect Gov. Gifford Pinchot's plan to utilize $6,000,000 in liquor profits and $14,000,000 from the motor license fund. A legislative act is required to appropriate the $14,000,000 for relief; the $6,000,000 is appropriated as part of $20,000,000 the 1933 session earmarked from liquor profits for jobless aid.

2—An occupation tax levy on all classes of jobs, ranging probably from $1 to $100 with an average of $5. Proponents claim the tax would be paid by about 4,700,000 Pennsylvanians, netting the state about $23,000,000.

3—Reincarnation of the sales tax. This levy brought about $10,000,000 revenue in the six months of 1932 when the levy was one-half of 1 per cent.

4—A boost of 2 or 3 cents tacked onto the gasoline tax which is now 3 cents a gallon. The gasoline tax nets about $1,000,000 monthly on a yearly average for each cent of tax.

5—A boost on corporation and stock and loan tax levies or a levy on electric or gas output, or both. There are no estimates available to indicate how much this would bring.

6—A state lottery or legalization of pari-mutuel betting. There are no estimates available for revenue from these proposals although pari-mutuel betting would bring in next to nothing this year since the racing season is practically over in the East.

The Liquor Control Board already has expressed opposition to spending money from liquor sales until more of their obligations have been paid.

Motorists' organizations were expected to oppose vigorously any transfer of motor funds for relief as well as any plan to increase the gasoline tax.

The Pennsylvania Retailers' Association and the State Chamber of Commerce have laid plans to fight a sales tax.

The general public might be expected to oppose the occupation tax, corporations would be expected to fight additional taxes on their business and church groups likely would oppose state operated lotteries or betting.

Charles A. Johnson Better After Stroke

STEEDLE GOING TO SESSION

McKees Rocks' political leader Dr Joseph G. Steedle intends to attend the special session of the Legislature here Monday, despite his pending appeal from a two-year federal sentence for a vote fraud conviction.

Representative Steedle, when asked if he would carry out his duties as chairman of the House Appropriation Committee, said:

"I will."

To embarrass the Republican party political observers here Democratic strategy calls for introduction of a resolution demanding Steedle's loss of membership as soon as the House convenes.

Pittman Fights For Renomination

RENO, Nev., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Nevada went to the polls today in its primary election featuring a spirited three-cornered race for the Democratic Senatorial nomination.

Betting odds favored United States Senator Pittman, New Deal stalwart whose opponents were Attorney H. R. Cooke, of Reno, and Robert Moore, a Southern Nevada businessman.

$500 EXTRA PAY TO LEGISLATORS

International News Service

HARRISBURG, Sept. 4.—Members of the Legislature will be paid $500 each in salary for attendance at the extraordinary session of the Assembly which will convene Monday at noon.

Half of the salary will be paid on the opening day of the session and the other half on the last day.

In addition, the lawmakers will be paid mileage by the shortest rail route to and from their home for each week of the session they attend and a postal allowance of $10 each.

Estimates based on past experience are that the entire cost of the session will range from $350,000 to $500,000 depending upon its length.

Legislators only during the two regular and three special sessions of the present Pinchot administration have totaled approximately $4,750,000 and with the coming session, will pass the $5,000,000 mark.

THRONGS JAM HIGHWAYS AS FAIR CLOSES

Allegheny County closed its second annual free fair at South Park yesterday after entertaining a record throng of holiday celebrants. Officials indicated that the attendance during the week reached 300,000 of whom more than 100,000 turned out for the program of horse shows, harness and running races, exhibit halls and polo games.

During the afternoon all roads leading to the fair grounds were crowded, traffic once being tied up for more than an hour as 125 county police and state highway patrolmen struggled to unravel the snarl. T. R. Tubbs, 28, of the state highway patrol, was thrown from his motorcycle while hurrying to the scene of an accident. He was taken to Mercy Hospital, suffering from internal injuries.

GIRL WINS RIBBON

As a climax to the interesting afternoon program, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern awarded the ribbon for the best horse in the show to Miss Alice Walton, who rode Gaiety, of the Green Tree stables. The reserve champion award also went to the Green Tree stables, the ribbon being won by Billie Arnold, ridden by William Masters.

Former Commissioner E. V. Babcock, recuperating from a long illness, visited the fair for the first time yesterday and in an address paid tribute to the present commissioners for "their vision in affording the people of the county a free fair.

TWO FALL DEAD AT FAIR

Two men were fatally stricken while attending the county fair at South Park yesterday, the Coroner's office reported.

Harry Parke, 54, of 425 Kathleen street, was pronounced dead of a heart ailment at the park's police headquarters after collapsing on the hillside overlooking the fair grounds.

Four Injured In Munhall Collision

'Ladies' Day' in the Mushball League

A RUNNER COMING HOME: 'SHE'S' EITHER SAFE OR OUT, BUT WHO WOULD BET ON IT?

A close play in the mushball game in Elliott, where two men's teams, one dressed in women's garb, played only four innings until it broke up in a "beauty contest." Here Batter Doodles Gray stands by to see whether Catcher Bill McCabe gets his "woman." Bill Knerler.

5 BOYS' DEATHS STILL MYSTERY

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Trifling colds might have caused the deaths of some or all of the five boys who died at the State School for Mental Defectives at Wassaic, Dr. Frederick W. Parsons, Commissioner of Mental Hygiene, said today.

Dr. Parsons expressed this opinion while the state and Dutchess County authorities pushed an investigation into the deaths. Three of the five boys, all apparently well at 11:30 p. m. Thursday, were found dead at 1:30 a. m. Friday.

Dr. Parsons said the state Health Department's report on the analysis of the boys' stomachs had not yet been received.

The Commissioner said:

"The physical condition of many of the children in an institution of this sort makes it possible for death to occur suddenly and from causes not immediately recognized. It may be that these children had trifling colds that would not be recognized in the autopsy. The respiratory, circulatory and digestive systems of such children are below normal."

SLAYER FIGHTS DEATH VERDICT

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Determined that Tullie McQuade, alias Thomas Jones, doomed San Diego, Cal., killer of his 70-year-old benefactress, should pay the death penalty, Attorney General Webb today had a respondent's brief on file with the State Supreme Court.

McQuade now in Folsom Prison's "death row," filed an appeal from the gallows verdict of the trial court.

A decision is expected from the State Supreme Court within three months. McQuade is accused of severing the legs of his victim and tossing them into San Diego Bay after the murder.

In his appeal, McQuade asserted the crime was committed without premeditation and argued that he should not be forced to pay the extreme penalty.

Wise Newsies Fall For Ancient Swindle

Two Oakland newsboys were out $2.50 today because they fell for one of the most ancient of swindles. They generously deposited that sum with a well-dressed stranger as security while they went to the strangers' room in a nearby hotel to get his watch and coat. When they returned he had disappeared. The victims told police they were Arthur Little, 13, and Robert Rebble, 14. Both have the corner at Forbes and Atwood streets.

The game, with one team dressed as women, took place before 2,000 spectators. The "women" taking prizes in the contest were Joseph Cue, S. Probicki, and Nick Selese.

JOHN D. GOING SOUTH SOON

DAYTONA BEACH, Sept. 4.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller plans to come south to Ormond Beach "sometime next month," it was said at The Casements, his winter home there, today.

Fred W. Perrin, caretaker of the estate, said he was not allowed to reveal the exact date of his expected arrival. Secrecy surrounds Rockefeller's goings and comings each year.

Last year Rockefeller did not come south until February 16, being delayed by illness.

Remodeling of The Casements, including installation of a small passenger elevator so the aged philanthropist will not have to walk up and down stairs, has been accomplished this summer.

1 DEAD, 15 HURT IN CHURCH FEUD

KOUNTZ, Tex., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The membership of the combination Baptist - Apostolic Church in Votaw was ripped asunder by a free-for-all fight that sent one man to the morgue, 15 to hospitals and five to jail.

Knives, fists and clubs were brought into play during services in the church yard at the East Texas sawmill town Sunday night. Sheriff Miles Jordan blamed the battle royal on a dispute over church matters. The sheriff said:

"During the services a man came up and called a member of the congregation aside. Directly another man got up and 'chose' another man and the first thing they all knew nearly all of them were fighting or hunting cover."

SPORTSMEN SEE SUICIDE LEAP BY BEAVER

SAFFORD, Ariz., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Life in a new beaver colony in the Graham mountains here continued its usual busy pursuits today, but the patriarch of the tribe is dead. Witnesses who saw the passing called it suicide.

Beavers captured in the White mountains, far to the north, were brought to the Graham mountains where it was hoped they would build dams and improve fishing conditions.

The furred engineers soon adjusted themselves to their new environment—all but the old one, which apparently could not forget the cool streams of his native mountains.

A group of Safford sportsmen said they caught sight of the old beaver in a canyon, slowly clambering up a cliff.

Up and up he labored, at last halting on a small out-jutting ledge 50 feet above the canyon floor. While the watchers stood amazed, the old one moved out to the edge, gazed slowly about him—then leaped into space.

INSIDE FACTS ON WEALTH OF HOLLYWOOD'S GREAT

GRETA GARBO . . . HER CAR'S AN $80-ONE!

JOAN CRAWFORD . . BUT HER'S LIST'S AT $2,010

Chaplin Leads; Lloyd Has Most Furniture; Rogers Most Land

Will Rogers is the largest land holder.

Harold Lloyd has the costliest furniture.

These are some of the facts about the private affairs of the movie folks in the records of the County Tax Collector and the County Auditor offices.

All the figures are assessed valuations. The actual value may be much higher.

The comedian who can't be moved to make a talkie after the one of a cane, derby, baggy pants and funny shoes raised him from poverty to riches, has property assessed at $2,279,230.

Greta Garbo's record on the assessment rolls is about as sparse as her interviews, which are nil.

The rolls show two things listed for the elusive Swede, who is reported to be getting a weekly salary of $10,000. The items are an $80 auto and $55,100 in bonds.

Will Rogers is known to the tax collector as William P. Rogers, landholder, and his long list of properties in Los Angeles County gross an assessed valuation of $322,920.

The comedian with the horn-rimmed spectacles, Harold Lloyd, appears to be comfortably fixed with property assessed at $864,345. The comfort is accentuated by two hatches of furniture, one assessed at $40,000 and the other at $44,000.

John Barrymore's property assessment aggregates $96,440. And here is found why he had Delores Costello and their two children spend so much time on their yacht, the Infanta. It is assessed at $59,040.

BARE DOPE RING IN KIDNAPING

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The kidnaping of a French woman by an international gang of smugglers and his torture during a month of captivity were disclosed by federal investigators today after 20 government agents, armed with submachine guns, had arrested two men and a woman.

The woman, William Rosen identified one of the prisoners as the leader of the gang and the man in whose Brooklyn apartment he was held captive. He identified the man's wife as the woman who cooked for him during his imprisonment.

Investigators said Rosen, a woman on the French liner Champlain, was abducted because he threw a package into the sea, believing it to contain potash. Instead, it held narcotics valued at $2,640.

The arrests were made in a raid early today on the apartment where Rosen said he was held captive. Those seized were identified as Salvatore Mancuso, 28; his wife, Nellie, 28, and Dominick Gallerno, 31, also of Brooklyn. Rosen was unable to identify Gallerno, agents said. All were charged with kidnaping and conspiracy.

"Mother Dear:

"Don't worry. I'll be all right."

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Roman, believe she started for New York. From a girl friend Ruth inquired the way to that city, police were told.

Her parents said she threatened several months ago to leave home and at that time declared she would assume the name of Ruth Roland, according to police.

BLAST WRECKS BOAT, 4 LOST

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—One man was killed, three were believed to have drowned and two were injured seriously when a terrific blast wrecked a 33-foot fishing boat moored at the Embarcadero here early today.

Force of the blast, which rocked a wide area, apparently broke the feed line from underground gasoline tanks at a service station, and the flaming fluid gushed out over the bay.

The dead man was identified by fishermen as Frank Principalo. The blast hurled his body into the bay as heavy timbers of the craft were splintered.

Pasquel Crorras and his brother Charles, also aboard the craft, were burned and bruised.

Three other men, listed as members of the crew of the boat, the Francisco, were unaccounted for. Fire and police investigators expressed the belief they had drowned.

Magnate Guarded After Death Note

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Private detectives today were guarding C. P. Warner, wealthy furniture executive, as police continued to seek the writer of a note threatening him with death unless he paid $250,000.

Warner gave the note to the police while a guest at the home of J. W. Stewart at Sands Point, L. I. A guard was thrown around the estate after a servant reported a suspicious stranger. Police think the letter was written by a crank.

500 ALUMINUM STRIKERS ON RELIEF

More than 500 of the striking aluminum workers in the New Kensington district are now on relief, J. P. Howlett, president of the Aluminum Workers' Union, declared today.

But the strike, he said, will be carried on, because:

"We are stronger than ever."

Seeking any possible proposals that could be submitted as means of ending the strike, members of the Aluminum Workers' Council assembled here in a meeting this afternoon.

The meeting is in preparation for resumption of negotiations with Aluminum Company of America officials tomorrow morning, with Federal Mediator Fred Keightly sitting as chairman at the parley.

Boris Shishkin, American Federation of Labor economist and spokesman for the strikers, declined to state whether any new plan might be developd from the meeting this afternoon. But it was learned the union leaders see little possibility of a change.

WHITE SLAVE RING BARED

GEORGETOWN, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Important clues revealing white slave and dope ring operatives with world-wide connections were in the possession of police here today as they completed the translation of letters and private diary of Alfredo Frisino, handsome young Egyptian, who was found shot through the chest in his hotel room nearly a fortnight ago.

Address lists and photographs of dancing girls, together with the heap of correspondence and the diary, have been ordered sent to the League of Nations secretariat, investigating the white slave and dope traffic, by Hon. H. Joseph, K. C., attorney general of British Guiana.

Police claim their finds are "highly important and might lead not only to smashing the ring with which Frisino seems joined, but might, through photographs, locate some thousands of girls lured from their homes annually by the white slavers.

'ICE BOAT' OFF FOR EQUATOR

DUNKIRK, France, Sept. 4—(AP.)—The floating ice factory Tunisie, designed to make tropical sea waters produce ice near the equator, steamed out of the harbor today, bound for Rio de Janeiro.

Her inventor Georges Claude, 4-year-old French engineer, is awaiting her there, ready to begin his experiments toward producing ice where the public most needs it.

Claude's idea is that the action of warm and cold water drawn from different levels of the sea will produce electric power. He intends to use this free power to produce 1,000 tons of ice a day.

The S. S. Tunisie is the latest venture in a series of Claude's experiments, two of which were those he conducted in 1928 at Ougree, Belgium, and in 1931 off the coast of Cuba. In the latter case, his sea pipe for transmitting his natural ocean power buckled under the pressure, halting the experiment.

3 Flee Penal Farm And Elude Search

PUTNAMVILLE, Ind., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Three men who slugged a guard and fled from the state penal farm here were hunted in Western Indiana today.

A few hours after their escape, they eluded police squads at Terre Haute. Informed by Sheriff Alva Bryan, of Putnam County, that the men had boarded a freight train, Terre Haute officers met the train and learned the men left it several miles east of Terre Haute.

The fugitives are Jess (Dusty) Rhodes, Harry Holding and E. Playton. A dormitory guard, Glen Campbell, was knocked unconscious as he carried food to the men.

'Old Gold' Bandits Loot Dental Offices

INDIANA, PA., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—State and local police were scouring Indiana county today for "old gold" bandits who looted at least 15 dental offices in Indiana and Blairsville of costly dental work over the week-end.

Gold and plate work valued at $200 was taken from each of the two offices, police said.

175,000 Textile Workers Reported Out in General Strike

land asserted that 22,000 out of 53,000 workers in Rhode Island were out on strike and 98 per cents of the 30,000 in Connecticut.

MANY IDLE IN SOUTH

Reports from the South indicated that the strike was 80 per cent effective among the 160,000 employes of the Carolinas.

Of Alabama's 40,000 textile workers, 15,000 were estimated to be on strike.

Unofficial surveys in Pennsylvania placed the number made idle by the strike at 40,000 out of a total of 100,000 employes.

In New Jersey only 850 out of the 30,000 silk workers were said to be on strike, while in the Cohoes (N. Y.) center the number was even smaller.

Partial reports from Georgia's 172 textile and rayon mills indicated that 21,000 of the state's 30,000 workers in the industry had obeyed the strike call.

45,000 Reported Idle In New England Area

BOSTON, Sept. 4. — (AP.) — Thousands of textile workers were absent from their posts in New England mills today as a result of a strike called by the United Textile Workers of America, but other thousands reported for work as usual following the Labor Day week-end.

Reports from large textile centers in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island, employing an aggregate of more than 125,000 workers indicated approximately 45,000 were idle. Of these, possibly 16,000 could not be definitely said to be on strike inasmuch as the mills employing them remained closed.

The full effect of the strike, however, could not be determined immediately, however, as many plants were operating on split shifts, and late shifts were not to report until after noon. In addition, many plants had been operating on reduced scale.

The entire New England area normally employs more than 233,000 cotton, wool, silk and rayon workers. Reports from all textile centers were not complete, however.

Picketers concentrated in several cities, but police reported there was no violence.

Thousands Join Strike Throughout Carolinas

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Additional thousands of workers answered the call this morning as the general textile strike gained momentum throughout the Carolinas.

A survey revealed the following approximate figures:

Workers idle—81,780.
Workers on jobs—79,000.
Mills closed—329.
Mills running with skeleton forces—20.
Mills operating practically at normal or normally—200.

The union made its greatest gains at Durham, N. C., where the strike was described as "100 per cent effective" by observers. Seven plants of the Erwin chain there were closed tight, with 4,500 walking out. The Durham Cotton Manufacturing Company and the Golden Belt Company, employing 3,300, opened their gates, but no workers attempted to pierce the picket lines.

The strike also spread into the Durham Hosiery Mill, which was not included in the general strike call.

Many plants continued to operate without molestation, but a large proportion of those which remained closed yesterday for the Labor Day holiday—an unprecedented action in the South—felt the strength of the United Textile Workers' Union this morning.

In Mecklenburg County (Charlotte) approximately 3,500, who yesterday were for the most part "on holiday," today became integral parts of the strike movement. None of the larger plants in the county was able to open.

YARN WORKERS IDLE

Similar conditions prevailed in Gaston County, North Carolina, center of the world's combed yarn industry. Approximately 25,000 workers were idle there as mills which observed yesterday's holiday were not able to resume operations. The Loray plant of the Manville-Jenckes Company, scene of months of bloody rioting in 1929, closed a few minutes after opening its gates when its 550 first shift workers were unable to pierce picket lines formed by unionists from Loray, Shelby and other Gaston mills.

W. M. McKilvie, superintendent, said the plant would remain closed indefinitely to avoid the possibility of a repetition of trouble such as that in 1929.

The South Carolina situation, which last night developed to the point that National Guardsmen were sent to three mill centers, was quiet but tense today. Sixteen hundred employes of the Pelzer mills, at Pelzer, joined the walkout, forcing a complete closedown. Denean and the American Spinning Company plants at Greenville were crippled, with 1,600 workers on strike, but managed to continue partial operations. Denean remained open behind the muzzles of National Guard rifles.

STRIKE-BREAKING RUMORS

At Winnsboro, S. C., the situation was tense, with townspeople worried by rumors, not confirmed, that the United Rubber Company was importing Negroes to fill the places of union strikers in its two plants here.

Five hundred pickets this morning forced a complete shut-down at Erwin, N. C., where two large plants of the Erwin chain, employing 2,000 workers, closed after yesterday's Labor Day holiday.

Eight hundred others joined the strike ranks at Selma, N. C., where three mills were closed "indefinitely."

The Cannon mills at Kannapolis, N. C., one of the world's largest concerns of its kind, employing approximately 15,000 in all its branches, continued to operate unmolested. "Flying squadrons" which union leaders had predicted would force a close-down, failed to put in an appearance.

The Great Springs chain in South Carolina, employing some 10,000, likewise was not affected.

Both Sides Claim Victory In Philadelphia District

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Divergent claims by warring interests in the textile strike, and the fact that neither side could offer definite numerical data made the results of the walk-out rather a matter of conjecture in Philadelphia and other parts of Eastern Pennsylvania today. Conditions were peaceful.

Bernard Levinson, spokesman for the United Textile Workers of America in Philadelphia, said five mills in this area are "completely out." He had estimated that 30 wool worsted mills and 20 spinning mills would be involved. Strike leaders estimate about 25,000 persons are employed in the mills in the Philadelphia area.

The mill operators had no one to speak for them as an organization, but one of them said "90 per cent of the mills in the Philadelphia arear are functioning normally."

HOPKINS WARNS STRIKE CHIEFS

International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 4.—President Roosevelt greeted with silence the general textile strike which settled over the nation today, but there was a blunt warning from his federal relief administrator, Harry Hopkins.

Hopkins has been a visitor at the Roosevelt estate for several days, and said before leaving:

"If there is any impression among the leaders that the relief administration is going to underwrite their strike, they will find out very soon that they are sadly mistaken."

The administration explained that this did not mean that people would be allowed to starve. He has studied relief figures in centers of other industrial disturbance, and apparently does not expect a heavy federal financial load as a result of the strike. He said:

"When the rell fefigures come in from the textile centers, I think you will find that the increase in the demand for public funds will be surprisingly small—you'll be able to put the increased cost for relief in your hat."

4 'LIFT' SAFE, GARAGEMAN

Four men stole a safe containing $400 from the Dinwiddie Garage, 414 Dinwiddie street, and also kidnaped the Negro attendant early today, according to police.

Andrew Muldrew, of 719 Kirkpatrick street, Negro attendant of the garage, told police that the men drove in for gas and to get a tire repaired. Then, he said, one of them forced him into the car, taking the safe also.

After driving him to Schenley Park and robbing him of $12, Muldrew said, the men let him out of the car and sped away with the safe.

Woolen Mill Men Join in Textile Strike

WASHOUGAL, Wash., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Blaming the "stretch-out" system for their action, 200 of the 250 employes of the Washougal woolen mills were on a strike today. The mills were not open.

The action is the second instance of Northwestern co-operation with the national textile strike. Union employes of the Oregon worsted mills in Portland voted for a strike Saturday.

Leader of Strike 'Loses' His Family

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Francis J. Gorman, diminutive leader of the nation's general textile strike, is such a busy man these days that he doesn't know where he lives.

His home is in Providence, R. I., but his family has moved to another home in that city since he last saw them and he has not received the new address.

Tieup of Trolleys Looms in Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The threat of a street car transportation tieup in Chicago grew stronger today. Some 1,500 members of the Amalgamated Union of Street Railway Operators voted last night to give union officials authority "to take such measures as in their judgment may be necessary to insure success" of the bus drivers' strike.

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

MAX AND A HUNCH -:- Sister Act For Crosby -:- NEW AIR MUSIC

Radio Roof Spot for Leibert

Remember that radio play called "Taxi?" Max Baer was in it and a girl named "Babs Wonderlee." Sponsor was a big time auto-shoe manufacturer who had a good hunch and the bravery to bet on it.

Sponsor carried the fight and Max won. Looked like the air show would be a wow . . . but sponsor dropped the whole thing like a hot potato. "Taxi" ended in mid air and Baer's dulcet tones faded from the ether.

Seems the sponsor with the good hunch and the bravery got another hunch. At the time of a big fight, fighters are popular, or are the champ loses the championship, so reasons the backer, but not while they wear a crown as a private citizen. So sponsor knew he'd had a good thing and that he had come away lucky. He quit while his luck was in. Pretty smart auto-shoe manufacturer, eh?

Things happen. . . Connie Boswell and the Boswell Sisters have been signed for the first three weeks of Bing Crosby's new show to begin on WCAE September 18. The show will come from Los Angeles.

Arthur Ballantine is going to speak tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock, and his subject will be "The Republican View of Federal Finances." Mr. Ballantine is a former under secretary of the treasury. (KDKA)

The management of the new roof spot on top of Radio City to be named "Stratosphere" has been dickering for an orchestra. Looks like Dick Leibert gets the job. Leibert has an idea for a color organ attachment for the big new pipe organ which he'll take along—if and when he goes. As the sweet music drifts over the night club, color in sympathy with the music floods the diners and dancers.

The pipe and bell branch of the instrument family are getting along in radio. Take notice of the new effects on Jerry Mayhall's broadcasts. The chimes . . . or bells are furnished by an instrument with a piano keyboard, that looks like a piano . . . plays like a piano . . . moves like a piano . . . but is a cross between a celeste and a Glockenspiel (sort of bells like)

Electrical instruments of this type are becoming more and more popular for broadcasting purposes and there are all kinds and types from the great big color-music organ idea to the little wee bell on the celeste. Vibra-harp is of this same family and one musical director predicts a day when electrically controlled instruments will be built into a studio expressly for broadcasting. When this is done, according to the director, the broadcast will be perfect, but the "thing" will sound like the dickens in the studio.

When Columbia takes on the job of re-doing the Chicago fire next week, they may find the job too warm for them. That fire, which is still a nightmare to Chicagoans, is the next to the biggest fire this country ever had. The broadcast will come from Chicago studios of the network which are located right on the spot where the 1871 fire was the hottest.

Ogden L. Mills is to deliver the "Constitution Day" address over WJAS, Monday, September 17. (That's Constitution Day) . . . Floyd Gibbons has got a sponsor all his own, who commences September 15. Rapid-fire talk will be all about houses, because that's what the boss sells . . . Ireene Wicker (The Singing Lady to boys and girls) saluted Canada last night and will repeat tonight. Just back from a vacation to Bermuda all by herself, the Singing Lady is looking forward to the new contract with Walter (Mr. Wicker) and Irna Phillips. The show is ROBBERS CAN'T BE TRUSTED!

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Robbers, Mrs. Leslie Marsdon, of De Kalb, Ill., has learned, are not to be trusted.

She came to the police today and said:

"I was driving my car west of St. Charles when two men stopped me and took the machine. They said they wanted it for a few hours and then I would find it on the outskirts of Chicago on Ogden avenue. Well, I've covered the district and the car's not there. The men broke their word."

REMOVE CORNS

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Mrs. B. Lassman of Bartlett street, can testify that Squirrel Hill is pretty good farming country. Her backyard peach orchard boasts some specimens weighing over a pound.

The corn belt is still in Lawrenceville where Mrs. Murphy reports corn stalks towering 12 feet high.

The name was changed from Fourth street in 1910, when Mr. Magee was Mayor.

The encyclopedias and other source books show no mention of any Fancourt, and a glimpse of the roster of councilmen at the time of the naming does not reveal any reason for the name.

It is one of those names that have been grasped from the air probably by the same gentleman who names Pullman cars.

Now that the younger Globe Trotters are going back to school their birthdays will be mentioned on the noon broadcast.

I am arranging for a series of talks by Dr. Ray P. Moser on child health. These talks will be on the 12:15 as well as the 6:45.

They will be especially directed to mothers.

If you have some special subject that you want discussed please write me.

The Globe Trotter is on the air each day at 12:15 and at 2:15. Keep those radio dates open for me.

Mother "GOT" the Surface Dirt . . .
The REST came off on Father's Shirt

It costs less than 2¢ for the electricity necessary to vacuum clean the rugs in a 7-room house

Now . . .
ELECTRICITY
gets ALL the DIRT.. Easier.. Quicker.. Better

Cleaning the rugs used to be something of a family affair . . . it required a good deal of time and effort from everyone concerned . . . and it was a dusty, dirty job. But no more! For what could be easier, cleaner, more thorough than using an electric sweeper on your rugs? Electricity takes all the physical effort out of the job, and accomplishes better results in half the time —at a ridiculously small cost. Just think—the electricity to run your vacuum sweeper for 1 hour and 5 minutes costs only 1¢ . . . the rugs in an entire house can be cleaned for less than 2¢. Electricity not only saves your own time and effort, it's a further economy in that it is also saving on your rugs.

The length of time the appliances named in this advertisement can be operated is based on 4c per Kwh, in which classification a large percentage of our customers come. If your use of electricity entitles you to the advantages of a 3c rate you can operate the same appliances proportionately longer. However, those who pay 5c for electric energy can operate these appliances only four-fifths of the length of time stated.

Now Praise This New 3 in 1 way To Add Weight Quick!

Gain 5 Lbs. in One Week or No Cost

Hosts of thin, pale, run-down folks—and even "Naturally Skinny" men and women—are amazed at this new easy way to put on healthy needed pounds quickly. Gains of 15 to 20 lbs. in one month—5 lbs in a week—are reported regularly.

Kelp-A-Malt, the new mineral concentrate from the sea gets right down to the cause of thin, underweight conditions and adds weight through a "3 ways in one" natural process.

First, its rich supply of easily assimilable minerals nourish the digestive glands which produce the juices that alone enable you to digest the fats and starches, the weight-making elements in your daily diet. Second, Kelp-A-Malt provides an amazingly effective digestive substance which actually digests 4 times its own weight of the flesh-building foods you eat. Third, Kelp-A-Malt's natural FOOD IODINE stimulates and nourishes the internal glands which control assimilation—the process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy. Three Kelp-A-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper than a pound of spinach or 7½ lbs. of fresh tomatoes; more calcium than 6 eggs; more phosphorus than 5 lbs. carrots; more FOOD IODINE than 1000 lbs. of beef.

Try Kelp-A-Malt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you sleep, how ordinary stomach distress vanishes, how firm flesh appears in place of scrawny hollows and how new energy and strength it brings you. Prescribed and used by physicians, Kelp-A-Malt is fine for children, too—improves their appetites. Remember the name, Kelp-A-Malt, the original and genuine kelp and malt tablets. Nothing like them so don't accept substitutes. Try Kelp-A-Malt today, and if you don't gain at least 5 lbs. of good, firm flesh in 1 week the trial is free. Kelp-A-Malt costs only a few cents a day to use.

BANDITS RIDDLE POLICEMAN

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—Spurred by the cold-blooded murder of a fellow policeman, Philadelphia police today were searching for three bandits who slaughtered Patrolman William C. Wilson, 45-year-old ex-Marine, last night.

The policeman was hammered into unconsciousness by a blackjack wielded by a bandit as he stood on the steps of the textile branch of the Industrial Trust Company with a satchel containing $630, the night receipts of the Kent Theater, under his arm.

As the patrolman lay unconscious, the gunmen whipped out pistols and literally tore his body apart with a fusillade of 11 bullets. Beside the officer's lifeless body detectives found his service revolver, which he had drawn in a vain effort to offer defense.

Dog Hunts 'Job' With Rankin Police

Rankin police have a new mascot today, a police dog which wandered in looking for work, no doubt. There being no provision in the Rankin budget for this type of employe, the police wish the owner of the dog would come and get him.

Women Seeking Answer To Vital Problem Of Attractiveness

SEX APPEAL, most women are doing their best to obtain this quality.

Let a few of the sisters be sitting around a samovar, or sneaking out to their favorite 5 o'clock cocktail retreat, and invariably the conversation drifts around to some one woman who has this much-desired attribute.

And how all of us are victims of the green-eyed monster.

For most of us can spend a half day walking about in hotel lobbies all done up in our best clothes, a finger wave, and rouge on our cheek bones, and not a single man follows us.

Or we can swing down the middle aisle of any local theater and get a choice seat and scarcely a RIPPLE greets us.

Something is WRONG WITH US!

NOT ALL ALIKE

We weren't meant to be like this . . . And so we blame it all on not having SEX APPEAL.

Maybe the woman next door has this attribute. Every little movement of hers has a meaning all its own . . . Men by the score haunt her, and merely without any apparent effort on her part . . .

Oh, we're all ready to oppose her . . . The unkind word about her trembles on our lips and falls when we have a good audience . . . We're jealous . . . We envy her that quality she has which makes LOVE such an OPEN BOOK for her.

One woman writes and asks for a formula, cut and dry, for this very SEX APPEAL. She'd rather possess it than be a Mme. Curie . . . Or a Lady Astor . . .

She admits she had had an average number of suitors . . . And always has she had plenty of women friends . . . She is well educated and has traveled . . . Even having been to Europe for a summer and Florida for a winter.

PREPARATIONS IN VAIN

And how she did prepare for those trips . . . All the time building her hopes high on the effect she would make . . . Duels would be fought over her . . . Some man surely would jump off the top deck when she refused his advances . . . But each time, she came home, chagrined . . . For nothing melodramatic had even seeped into her life.

Ah me, if the youth of the country would only LOSE THEIR HEADS OVER her!

That is her ONE BIG DESIRE.

And my answer, sister is you're a GREAT BIG CHUMP. You are seeing life all wrong . . . You're marching straight for an emotional doom. And there won't be any evangelist to drag you back, either . . . SEX APPEAL IS ALL PHYSICAL . . . It has none of the soul, the mind in it.

DIDN'T DEFINE 'IT'

A woman named Elinor Glynn went to Hollywood and saw a certain young woman on the screen, and she exclaimed: That girl has IT.

And not defining her meaning of IT, she did the entire sisterhood a great wrong.

For they have been struggling for their own idea of IT ever since. And they say it is SEX APPEAL. And all the while I have no reason not to believe that Miss Glynn may have meant PERSONALITY.

And that is worth having.

PERSONALITY begins where SEX APPEAL LEAVES OFF.

It can raise cream on skim milk . . . It can change a desert flower into a hothouse variety . . .

And it is allusive enough to suit the taste of any woman. For even those of us who possess it often are TOO LATE recognizing it. And all the while it is a PRIZE WINNER when put into action, which has better CLIMBING FACILITIES than had Jack's Bean Stalk.

ALWAYS IN DEMAND

When some one woman is always in demand, when no party is worth while without her. When hostesses have her heading their lists, well, we're sure to find a young woman with PERSONALITY.

No man keeps thinking of a woman, day in and day out, unless she has this quality.

She's got to have it or his mind won't stay upon her.

And what's best of all, you, I, and the next sister can cultivate PERSONALITY.

For it is being OURSELVES, and at our BEST.

It is letting charm and individuality and kindness have FULL SWAY . . .

It's developing the brain and the heart and the soul God gave everyone of us at BIRTH.

MAY GET PLACE IN SUN

So, sister, you may have your place in the SUN yet . . . It is true, no one may ever jump from the Woolworth Building over you . . . No two men may cross swords, and on your account . . . But, after all, upon second thought, do you desire such rash action? . . . Having had the AVERAGE NUMBER of suitors, is enough for any right-minded woman . . . Many men rushing pell-mell for your favor usually squeeze the life out of the one man who might make you happy . . .

Making the best of yourself physically . . . looking in the glass and improving nature where such should be done, these are aids in any young woman's quest for happiness. But more is necessary. A level head, a smoothly oiled soul, also are essential . . .

SEX APPEAL will play tricks on any woman who possesses it. For it will die while she is still on her feet . . . But personality toddles along with you to the grave.

For no man entirely forgets even a DEAD WOMAN who has had it . . .

HUDSON SEAL RENEWS ITS YOUTH

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The center model is full length, in Hudson seal. The round saucer collar is flattering and so is the draped sleeve with its trig cuff.

Models from Russeks

Hudson seal can be youthful as this model shows. Note the very full sleeve above the tight cuff, the three-quarter length and the restrained collar.

ONE OF THE delusions which can claim unusual longevity is the one which says that Hudson seal is an old lady's fur—and not any smart old lady, at that!! This department suspects that the legend sprung up because of the late Victorian custom of providing a bride with a coat of it, as well, so to speak, burying her in the same (and only) fur coat when she died a great-grandmother. Last year some feeble attempts to smash this unworthy canard involved putting gray krimmer onto it, as an accent. The result was ultra-Victorian rather than snappy; but this year the designers have gone in for manipulating this hoardy fur in much the same way that a rich fabric is used and there is plenty of swank as well as sterling virtue in the models.

THE MORE attractive models are really afternoony and dressy in effect. They enter that hard-to-fund class, the one which must supply the average woman, who can have only one fur coat for all purposes. She wants it for business and running around, and for dress-up wear by day or night.

SILVER FOX is something swell on it, which is a break for the girl who finds short haired furs not especially becoming. And in raglan, swagger cut, with a self Ascot, the sports type girl gets her prescription to order.

Fads, Frills Mixed in Schools

By ANGELO PATRI

We will have to step and examine the fads and frills again. They are getting all mixed up in the minds of city fathers and bewildered fathers and mothers. The fads and frills must be eliminated from the budget, says the voice of authority. Straightaway the shops, all the active phases of school life, vanish. All boys and girls of pre-adolescence, and up to 18, (or 16—according to the notion of the authority), must go to school and stay there. No children can engage in paid employment.

Can you see what this does to the schools and to the children? Making bricks without straw was a happy pastime to teaching adolescent boys and girls without the activities that normally engage their interests. Play is the activity of the infant and the child. After childhood the play idea merges into the occupational idea. The child wants to make something, wants to do something, wants to feel that he can change the world about him to the extent of creating some expression of his own thought. He is sent to school and the school is helpless.

Woodwork, metal work, shops, laboratories, studios, kitchens, music, art, the manual subjects are out. All the academic subjects are left. How essential are these essentials? By the time a boy or girl has reached junior or senior high school how much arithmetic is needed? How about cube root? And the plastering and the carpeting and the wall making and the compound proportion? How much of that is essential? Essential to what? How about parsing, endless parsing of sentences? And the long lists of cities that are to be memorized and located? And the history lists, dates and battles and campaigns, how essential are these to adolescent boys and girls who have already shown their anxiety to be doing something? These who have been at work and have been sent back to schools? Some of these things look very much like fads to me. They might well be curtailed and in most cases eliminated.

A great group of adolescent boys and girls were sent back to school, stayed for varying short lengths of time, and went away from there. They are out on the highways and byways. The laws say, "Come in." The conditions at school say, "Stay out." These children must come in and stay in. To accomplish that much to the desired end the schools must be equipped, staffed, and administered for them.

If you tell me there is no money I shall reply that these children are as important to the life of this nation as any of the other applicants for money. We need teachers, supplies, equipment, and we need them right away.

(Copyright, 1934, by Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)

Girl Finds Out She Cares After She Quits Boy

She thought she didn't care, so she quit seeing him. Now she's sorry.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 20 years old, and have been going with a fellow for a short while. I quit him because I thought I didn't care. But now I know I do. He is 22 years of age. So won't you please help me to get him back. He treated me wonderfully while he went with me.

JULIA.

Seeing a fellow in retrospective often awakens a girl's emotions. It has been so with you, Julia . . . To get him back, plan to see him somewhere, and then let him see that you want him to call upon you again. Chances are, he'll grab the opportunity . . . You may have a mutual friend who'll aid you . . . Also when you do see him, remember not to contradict everything he says . . . he may be just a little hurt over the former turndown . . .

Dear Miss Brunot:

I read your column every day and am inspired by your advice. I am 17, and I think I am suffering from real love. I am a constant companion of his sister. And at times he and I see each other alone. He is very nice to me and says that he loves me. But he never asks me for a date. Please help me.

WORRIED SO MUCH

Why ask you for an engagement if you're always with his sister? Practice a little more subtility, and don't be in his own home so much. And maybe he will be more anxious to arrange to see you . . . A man doesn't have to run after a girl who is right within reach. Does he?

Remember, Worried So Much, a man likes to do the wondering where loves comes in. It makes it more interesting for him . . . The chase, the gods of Mount Olympus used to call it.

Party at Home For Children

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Children's Party

1—I would like to give a party for my 6-year-old daughter. As I live in an apartment, I thought I would invite six children. Then by way of entertainment, I should like to take them to the movies and later serve refreshments at home. Can you suggest something better?

2—Should I personally write the invitations? If so, how should they be worded? Small invitation cards are available. Are these quite proper to use?

G.

—Since you are planning to have so few guests at the party, I suggest that, instead of taking your so-young guests to the movies, you plan to entertain them in your own home, with games appropriate for them and with interesting things to eat. There are such attractive and thrilling games for guests of this age.

2—To invite such young guests to your party an informal note written to the mother of each child is the proper thing. I'd write a note, if I were you, not use the ready made invitation cards. Your note might read:

Dear Mrs. Allen:

I am planning to give a little birthday party for my small daughter Cynthia—to celebrate her reaching the mature age of six!—on Friday, the first of October, at three o'clock. Cynthia and I would be so happy if your Dorothy will come to the party. Will this be convenient? We are going to have games and very simple "refreshments," and we will try to give our little guests a happy time.

Best wishes to you.

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Lane Gregory.

Gift for Boy Friend

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The young man I go about with, and whom I am to marry next fall, is to have a birthday very soon. I have been thinking of giving him a dressing gown and slippers. Do you think this would be quite all right?

K.

Yes.

Keeps Butter Firm

An ordinary flower pot inverted over a plate containing butter will keep it firm in warm weather. In very hot weather wring a cloth out of cold water and spread it over the pot.

Surface scratches on polished furniture will scarcely be noticeable if painted over with a fine camel-hair brush dipped into iodine or a solution of permanganate of potash. Afterwards polish in the ordinary way.

The Eyes Have It, but Not Unless Given Good Care

By CHARMION PENN

The eyes may have "it" . . . but they won't very long if you don't take care of them properly. And by this we are not referring to scientific lighting or anything like that . . . but just the simple little things that you can do for them to rest them, tone up the muscles around them, and keep them young and fresh looking. One of the better known beauticians of the country—among the first to start stressing the importance of caring for eye beauty as well as skin beauty—has a questionnaire as part of her booklet. In it, referring to eyes, she asks "are your eye-lids creepey? . . . is the skin puffy around them? . . . have they hollows under them? . . . crows-feet? . . . lines?" Her answer to these is that there are three simple rules to keeping the eyes healthy and beautiful:—cleansing them . . . nourishing them . . . and keeping firm the delicate tissue that surrounds them. And for this, there are a number of aids which are not only excellent in the results they achieve, but are accessible to most purses.

The reasons for the eyes becoming haggard (other than burning the candle at both ends!) are simple ones. The tissues under the eyes and those of the lids are extremely delicate and soon lose their natural oils. It is at this point that fine lines begin to multiply and deepen. For this, there is nothing better than a very delicate eye cream that is easily assimilated by these fine tissues.

Another cause of the skins surrounding the eyes sagging and growing creepy too early, is the fact that these tissues are so thin that they relax too easily and soon may form little pouchy places and creases. To combat this, make a point of gently stirring up the circulation around the eyes. In giving this skin a treatment, take care that you do not overdo it. A little is very good, but it is important that you avoid actual "massage." Take the third finger of each hand and, beginning at the inner corner of the eye, press very gently over the lids to the outer corner of the eye then back to the side of the nose again, under the eye this time. You will have made a little circle around your eye. Continue this a few more times . . . using a cream as you do it (or at least olive oil if you have nothing else) . . . for this is the very treatment that you would experience if you were having a facial from a professional beauty operator. NEVER stretch the skin around the eyes . . . it is delicate enough and ages enough of its own accord without helping it along.

Probably one of the most important things that any woman can do for her eyes is to keep them bright and clear . . . washed out with a good eye-wash (which you may already have) or one of the numerous types which are to be had from well-known beauticians. An eye-cup and eyewash should be two essentials on the shelves of every woman's toiletry cupboard. Also, the eye astringent or eye packs. The astringent (and for years witch hazel took the place of this which has recently come into use) saturates a strip of cotton long enough to cover the eyes. Then you lie down and closing the eyes . . . tuck this strip over and around them until they are completely covered. Allow this to remain on for about 10 minutes . . . it is wonderful for firming up the tissues and giving the eyes a nice rest. And there are eye packs for this purpose also. Little baglets that are cut to fit the eyes (something like a pair of spectacles!) and filled with herbs and flower petals to soothe, whiten, and relieve fatigue. These are merely dipped into hot water and laid over the eyes for some minutes . . . keeping them damp.

Vinegar Chases Flies

During sultry weather hang a piece of cheese cloth dipped in vinegar inside the larder window. Not only will this help to cool the interior, but it will keep flies and other insects away.

Animal Pastries Add Zest To Children's Parties

By ALICE BARRY

Here's another batch of party recipes that should be quite useful, since every one is simple yet different, which makes these dishes good for children's parties. A simple, yet effective trick is to use sponge layer cakes by cutting them into thick rounds, and covering with chocolate or any other type of icing, with a layer of the icing or preserves in the center of each tier. A little chocolate animal, obtainable in the popular-priced stores, can mount guard in the center of each cake, held there firmly by the icing.

Cakes shaped like a beehive can be made the same way. Ice with coffee or lemon icing and trace lines of chocolate icing around each cake to simulate the lines of the hive. Make a little entrance with lines of the icing. A child will delight in a simple layer cake if every layer reveals icing of a different color. The extra effort such a task requires is well worth it when one sees the happiness of one's little guests.

A dish more suitable to adult digestions is made by covering the bottom of a shallow, wetted pan with half of the amount of jelly needed, and when the mixture has nearly set, placing halves of walnut meats about one inch apart over the entire surface. Then pour the remainder of the jelly carefully over and leave to set till firm.

Cut into squares and garnish each with a little heap of whipped cream sprinkled with finely chopped walnuts. This is one sweet that most men usually like.

For important parties, chestnut sweets are quite the thing. A nice idea is to partly boil some chestnuts until the skins can be easily removed, then simmer in milk just enough to cover them till the meats are soft enough to rub through a sieve. Flavor with a few drops of vanilla essence, sweeten to taste and mix with an equal quantity of whipped and sweetened cream.

Fill glasses three-parts with this mixture, cover with whipped cream piled on roughly and scatter chopped pistachios on top. A variation of this is to pile the chestnut puree in a glass dish, cover with cream and then decorate with the nuts and a few halved glace cherries. A very grand party cake can be made by scooping out the center of a sponge cake, mixing the crumbs with chestnut puree and filling the cake with the mixture, after having first soaked it in fruit juice. Decorate the top of the cake with whipped cream and sprinkle with ground nuts.

NEEDLEWORK DESIGNS

CROCHETED BLOUSE PATTERN 799

Hand crochet in wearing apparel is the high note of fall styles, so much so that even the machine-made garment often is enhanced with a touch of handwork to give it distinction. In this blouse, two simple crochet stitches are contrasted—a more open one for the body of the blouse and a closer one for the yoke and sleeves. Variety in effect can be gotten too by letting the shoulders be perky and square or by turning the point down onto the sleeves as an added decoration. A long or short sleeve can be made, the blouse thus being equally practical without a coat or when worn under a suit. It is especially lovely in wool, but may also be done in string.

Pattern 799 comes to you with complete directions for making the blouse; material requirements, and illustrations of the blouse and of all stitches used.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Bridge Entries Given By Game Authority

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

By means of various kinds of plays the Declarer works to establish the maximum number of tricks possible from the cards he and the Dummy hold. Almost every play requires that the lead should be made by one particular hand. The fulfillment of practically any plan of play must therefore depend upon sufficient entries being available to each hand in order that that hand may make the requisite number of leads.

Mrs. Culbertson

The hand below illustrates several of the means by which a player utilizes every possible entry in order that the leads which are essential to suit establishment may come from the correct hand.

South, dealer.

	♠ 6 5 4 3 ♡ Q ◇ 6 5 4 3 ♣ Q 5 3 2
♠ 7 2 ♡ J 10 9 7 5 2 ◇ 9 8 ♣ A 9 6	North West East South	♠ K 9 8 ♡ A 6 4 3 ◇ Q J 10 ♣ J 8 7
	♠ A Q J 10 ♡ K 8 ◇ A K 7 2 ♣ K 10 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opens with heart Jack, which East wins with the Ace. East returns the Queen of diamonds and South is in the lead with the King. South can now see that his contract depends upon his losing at the most two more tricks. At least one trick must be lost in clubs, and at least one trick in diamonds, so that the spade finesse must be successful if the contract is to be made. But even if East holds the spade King, it is unlikely that a single finesse will be sufficient—a 3-2 division must be expected and if East holds the King twice guarded two leads from Dummy will be required. The club suit likewise can hardly be established without a finesse for the Jack to South's King-ten, and this makes a third time that Dummy must be in the lead. The problem is therefore to find three entries to Dummy.

The first and surest entry is a ruffing entry. South must not be led from the proper course by the fact that his heart King is high. It is worth nothing as a high card, since a discard from Dummy will do no good; but as a card for North to ruff it furnishes a ruffing entry. Another possible entry is the club Queen—if West holds the Ace, he cannot prevent the Queen from winning a trick and thus putting Dummy in the lead again. So, depending upon the position of the club Ace, there is a second of the three necessary entry cards. The third also becomes apparent upon close study. In all likelihood the division of the diamond suit is 3-2. Three rounds will therefore clear the suit and leave the fourth card held by both North and South established. If North's diamond is higher than South's, it will win the trick and consequently become an entry card. Since only the diamond deuce in South's hand is lower than the highest of North's diamonds, South must carefully save his deuce until the fourth round, playing the seven instead when he gives up the trick he must lose to East and West. Here then are the opportunities for the three much needed entries, and South proceeds to develop them.

First the King of hearts is led and ruffed, and a spade led from Dummy for the first successful finesse. Next South leads the club four, West plays the six, and Dummy wins with the Queen—the second entry. Another spade is led, and another finesse taken. Now, before leading out East's last trump South must be careful lest his last trump, which furnishes a stopper for the adverse hearts, be forced out before all his tricks are established. South must give up his diamond trick while Dummy retains a trump to act as an auxiliary heart stopper. So South next leads the diamond Ace and then the diamond seven, which East's Queen wins. West discarding a heart. East takes off Dummy's last trump by leading the spade King, and when South wins with the Ace he can re-enter Dummy with the fourth diamond, and finesse through East's Jack of clubs. West wins with the club Ace, and South has remaining the established King and the trump, so he loses only three tricks.

Nervous Fatigue Cause Of Serious Illness, Doctor Explains

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Dr. Copeland

How runs that old saying? "There's a time for work, there's a time for play, there's a time to eat, and there's a time to pray." In the prevention and cure of many diseases there is a time to give first attentions to the manner of living. Irregularities of every sort are dangerous.

The various forms of nervous fatigue are responsible for much trouble. Some are unaware of just what it is makes them unhappy. Others say they "have no time to think of minor discomforts." This ailment should not be considered a minor discomfort, because if it is neglected serious disturbances may follow.

The human body is a complicated and sensitive mechanism. It requires fuel in the form of food and in addition it needs sufficient rest. Continued lack of rest leads to real trouble with the machine. Many sufferers from indigestion, diarrhea, colitis, constipation and loss of sleep are unaware that the underlying cause of their ailments lies in prolonged nervous and physical fatigue.

If you have been working hard and have had insufficient hours of sleep and rest, nerve fatigue or nervous exhaustion is sure to appear. The victim of this disorder complains of a constant tired feeling and restlessness. There may be dull, vague pains here and there. He is easily irritated and difficult to please. Even when the opportunity offers the eyes refuse to close in anything but restless and unrefreshing sleep.

Nervous strain may result from unsuitable occupation. Some individuals are fitted only for quiet work and short hours, while others may engage in any sort of work without injury to health. When the work is of such nature as to overtax the nerves it is advisable to make a change as soon as possible.

It is easy to say this, but in these times it is not easy to find a new and better job. But if the nerves are on edge it is important to do it if possible.

In addition to rest and relaxation, diet is of great value in the cure and prevention of nerve fatigue. It should contain foods rich in vitamins and minerals, as well as the familiar proteins, fats and carbohydrates. Fried and greasy foods, salt, peppers, spices and condiments should be avoided or used very temperately.

Food experts claim that to maintain health the daily diet of the average adult should include one quart of milk, two salads, two liberal helpings of the leafy portions of green vegetables, one helping of any meat and two eggs. A liberal supply of bread and butter, fruits and various other vegetables may be added. For the nervous individual emphasis should be placed on the importance of milk, fresh fruits and vegetables.

Bear in mind that diseased teeth, tonsils or nasal sinuses may be the underlying cause of a nervous condition. In every case of nervous fatigue it is necessary first to determine the underlying cause. This is best accomplished by a visit to your doctor. Even if he finds no serious physical defect, he will outline the course of treatment that will benefit you. Very often a change of environment or a short vacation will help restore frayed nerves to normal.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

I hope that I never again experience the waves of humiliation that rolled over me after Lillian had departed in search of Philip Veritzen. They made me physically ill; rendered me mentally distraught, made me feel, generally, as if, in Hank's expressive parlance, I could "sell myself for a plugged nickel."

While Lillian was with me, her raillery and her laughter-provoking characterization of Avis Arlen and Edith Fairfax had kept my mind so occupied that I had not realized the full significance of her warning, and her anxiety to get Avis out of the house.

But now that I was alone, I had nothing else to do but to "loaf and invite my soul," and I contemplated the quest with loathing.

It is probably a salutary experience to "see ourselves as others see us," but when, as in my case, the seeing is with an unfavorable eye, and one realizes that there is reason for the criticism, while the experience may be beneficial, it is also distinctly depressing and makes one extremely unhappy.

I lost myself in miserable conjecture as to whether or not anyone besides Lillian had noted the signs of undue sympathy with Hugh Grantland that I had not even dreamed I was displaying. Avis Arlen I did not consider, even though Lillian considered her potential dynamite because of the little contretemps, so innocent in itself, yet so capable of misinterpretation, that she had witnessed. But my contempt for her opinion of me was so mingled with my conviction that accuracy of observation would be in no way a factor in what she might say of me, that I cared no whit whether she either thought or spoke well or ill of me.

But my soul writhed at the thought that other and less kindly eyes than Lillian's might have seen the concern for Hugh that I had not dreamed I was displaying. To think that I, who always have been so careful to keep myself poised and my emotions and impulses under control, should have given cause for the "clacking of idle tongues!"

I was pacing the floor in impotent fury at my own blindness and folly—I acquitted myself of anything worse—when the door opened quickly and Lillian came back into the room. She stopped short as she saw me, and her eyes narrowed.

"I thought as much," she said. "That's the reason I didn't knock. I thought you'd be staging something of this kind, and I'd be able to catch you at it. Now look at me, you anointed idiot, while I perform the well-known stunt of 'fixing you with my glittering eye.' And oh, boy, can I make it glitter!"

Lillian must have seen my wavering in my face, for she suddenly threw out her hand in a commanding gesture, and her voice took on a sharp, militant tone.

"Don't you dare to cry!" she said, and her voice was like a clarion call to my spirit. "In the first place you haven't the slightest reason for tears; and in the second, you haven't time. You're wanted down the hall."

I straightened myself involuntarily.

"Who wants me?" I asked. "Father?"

Lillian shot an odd look at me.

"He always wants you," she said, "and I think he has plenty of work mapped out for you after a little. But just now, Hugh is calling for you."

Master Not Plaid but Check

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(Universal)—This is the story of the "Master Shepherd" plaid, which, dear children, is not a plaid but a check, and which also is the theme of one of the newest tweed suits for fall.

It seems that in the ancient days of Scotland, the master, or No. 1 shepherd, was entitled to wear the biggest plaid, while the assistants, or Nos. 2, 3 and 4 shepherds, wore smaller.

Of course anyone who should inadvertently wander into Scotland wearing at one of the same time the plaid of the No. 1 shepherd and that of the No. 2 shepherd on duty would be expelled from the shepherd's union.

What's the newest thing in Pittsburgh society?

A prize fight.

Already a score or so of socialites have reserved the choicest of ringside seats for a championship fight a week from tonight at Forbes Field.

Teddy Yarosz, of Monaca, and Vince Dundee, of Newark, who are today making their debut in Pittsburgh society columns, will fight for the world's middleweight championship a week from tonight.

Social registerites who are treasuring ringside tickets for the fight are the Leonard S. Mudges, the James McKays, the McCook Reeds, Paul Mellon, the George Wyckoffs, the J. Scott Burkes, the Porter Gillespies, the Charles McFeeleys, the Halbert J. Blues, Mrs. Donald Scott Rodgers, the Herbert A. Mays and others.

A quartet of young motorists — Dorothy Curry, Vardi Marshall, Mary Rust and Nancy Chess—is in Biddeford Pool, Me., near Kennebunkport.

And the girls like Biddeford Pool so much that they're not expected home for several weeks more.

Vardi Marshall's sister, Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., is among those who've already returned from holidaying. Mrs. Rowe visited in two of Pittsburghers' favorite resorts—Beaumaris, Canada, and Hyannisport, Mass., on picturesque Cape Cod.

MISS DOROTHY CURRY

One of the most reluctant to abandon her summer home is Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, of Sewickley.

And no wonder, for their summer home at Eastern Point near East Gloucester, Mass., faces the ocean—and is in a glorious setting, as you can imagine.

Mrs. Baker and her family hardly ever come back to town until mid-October or even the last of October. Mr. Baker is expected home today, however, I understand.

Cape Anne Proves Strong Attraction for Sewickleyites

Others fascinated by the charm of Cape Anne, Mass., are the James Lyall Stuarts, of Sewickley, whose summer home is at Bass Rocks, not far from the Bakers' summer place. And the Stuart family are lingering on, too.

The Ira F. Brainards, II., who've been visiting Cape Anne, too, are expected home either today or tomorrow.

Mrs. David Marshall Humphreys . . . she's the former La Salle Dorrance—will probably be at Hyannisport all this month.

And her sister Eloise—a deb of the past season—may join her for part of September.

Eloise's visit all depends on the recovery of her father, Dr. Harold J. Dorrance, who has been critically ill. Mrs. Humphreys was in Pittsburgh for a week or so late this summer to see her father.

J. Frank Drakes Expected To Be Away Until October

Also summering at Hyannisport on picturesque Cape Cod are the J. Frank Drakes and their family. And the Drake family won't be back in Pittsburgh until around October, it's expected.

The Drakes' youngest daughter, Constance, by the way, took a leading part in a fashion show at smart Hyannisport this month.

Of course, even though there are more folks away this summer than in many a year, and though they are prone to linger until cold weather drives them home, events here at home will lure some.

For the horsey season is very near.

And those of the smart set who can't resist a horse show will be seen at Greensburg on that day.

For not only is it going to be a grand horseshow—but it's the first show at Greensburg in several years.

Bits of News About Pittsburghers Vacationing Here and There

On her way home from the East, Mrs. T. McKee Graham, of Sewickley, stopped over in New York for a brief visit. She was registered at the Hotel St. Regis.

SEPTEMBER SWIMMERS: MAKING THE MOST OF FADING SUMMER

Intoxicated Drivers Fought

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The first note in a campaign against drunken drivers is sounded in this month's issue of The clubwoman, State Federation of Pennsylvania Women publication. A call is issued to the women to see that drunken drivers be punished severely and barred from the street and highways.

In Mrs. Stephen M. Byers' department in this month's magazine is an article titled "A Murderous Mixture — Gasoline and Booze" in which is stated that in Pennsylvania during the first five months of this year there were 750 accidents in which drunken drivers were involved as compared with 472 during the same period a year ago and that there were twice as many drunken pedestrians figuring in accidents as in the same period last year, or the year 1932 the average monthly number of "apparently intoxicated" drivers reported was 92 and for the first six months of this year the average was 154.

The article quotes Director of Federal Alcohol Control Authority, Joseph H. Choate, as saying that "the bootlegging industry is thriving and that the government is losing more taxes than it is getting" and goes on to say that the liquor traffic recognizes no law.

Mrs. Byers, whose home is in Washington, Pa., is chairman of citizenship and of temperance education in the State Federation.

Emily Lowery, J. R. Sharp Married

An exceptionally beautiful wedding took place Sunday against a garden setting with flowers in vivid autumn reds, oranges and yellows from which the bridal procession came down a path lined with stately evergreens.

Officiating was the bridegroom's father, the Rev. Dr. Cecil J. Sharp, of Cincinnati. The bride wore a gown of white suede lace and carried a white satin bound prayer book with a marker of orange blossoms.

Her fingertip veil of tulle was finished with a cap of tulle and a cluster of orange blossoms. A shoulder length face veil was flung back after the ceremony forming the halo-effect in vogue this season.

Mrs. Lowery was her daughter's only attendant and wore carioca suede lace and carried white gardenias and lilies of the valley. Vaughn Parry, of Hammond, was best man.

There was a reception and wedding supper later. Mr. and Mrs. James Shaffer, of Hammond, gave a cocktail party in honor of the bridal party Saturday night in the home of Mrs. Shaffer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sigvard Simonsen, of Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp left on a short wedding trip and will be at home in the Lincoln Court Apartments, Philadelphia, when they return.

Mrs. Sharp is a graduate of Northwestern University, and the bridegroom of the University of Oregon. He received his law degree at the University of Chicago.

The bride's parents have been making their home in Butler for the past several months.

Dr. Frances DeBone Weds George R. Taylor

At a home ceremony Saturday morning one doctor became the bride of another student doctor. She was Dr. Frances Marion DeBone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeBone, of Clairton, who married George Ransom Taylor, of Pittsburgh, son of Mrs. Lloyd Taylor, of Canada.

The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock in the DeBone home in the presence of the immediate families. The Rev. John K. Bibby, of the First Presbyterian Church of Clairton, officiated.

The bride wore cream colored lace over pink satin and carried pink roses. Miss Elizabeth Chalmers, of Clairton, was maid of honor and wore brown crepe and carried yellow roses. Miss Anna Norcross played the wedding music. She wore white lace over peach crepe. Arthur G. Jeffrey, of Pittsburgh, was best man.

After an eastern motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will be at home in Mitchell avenue, Clairton, where the bride is a practicing physician. She was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh school of medicine, and the bridegroom, who is a student at the University of Pittsburgh, is assistant anatomy instructor in the school of medicine there.

Ann Harper Weds C. F. Coyne May 12

Although their marriage is just being announced today, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll F. Coyne are already at home in Beechwood boulevard. They were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., May 12, when the bride was still a student at the University of Pittsburgh.

The bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Harper, of Bayard street, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Ann, to Mr. Coyne, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Coyne, of Montclair street.

Golden Wedding Fete Planned

In honor of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Francies, who are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary, Mrs. James M. Lewis, of South Linwood avenue, Crafton, will entertain tonight at a garden party.

Mr. and Mrs. Francies have another daughter, Mrs. David F. Geissinger, of Meade street, and three grandchildren, Ensign J. S. Lewis and Jane and Edward Bream.

Diocesan Women To Meet Thursday

On Thursday the Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church will have its first fall meeting in Trinity House, Sixth avenue. The supply department will meet with the parish presidents and supply secretaries at 10 o'clock when the missionary work will be given out for the year.

Miss Cleveland Is Married In Home

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cleveland, of Eliska street, make known the marriage Friday night of their daughter, Miss Martha Cleveland, to Carl R. Moniger, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Moniger, of Eliska street.

The ceremony took place in the Cleveland home with the Rev. Milton Allison, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rennerdale, officiating. The bride wore blue and white crepe.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall were the only attendants and Mrs. Hall wore blue georgette. There was a reception after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Moniger will be at home in Milloridge street, Allentown.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Freddy Lewisohn, popular Riviera "unattached" did not mind sharing the honors the other night at Woolworth Donahue's Cannes dinner with Donahue's pet cheetah. But Freddy sulked when the beast stole the show and ate more than his share of the goodies.

Gigpure, the cheetah, acquired on Donahue's recent Indian visit, was the envy of all the women guests, who came in shorts 18 inches above the knee dimples and ably demonstrated that the duty of dinner guests is dine.

The fact is, two dinners were served during the evening in addition to 2,300 sandwiches, 160 hens eggs, and 1,500,000 caviar eggs, all washed down with 245 bottles of champagne.

It might have been an engagement dinner for Donahue had the guests then known he was shortly to announce his betrothal to Wendie Barrie, the British film star. Incidentally, Miss Harrington Gigpure is the week's social lion at Cannes. He resents the presence of anything that bites and caused a scene at the Miramar bar with Lady Castlerosses doggie which sent the guests into a panic and put the cheetah on the black list.

Brevities: Louise Van Alen, the first American Princess of Alexis Mdivani, keeps a full-length portrait of him hung in her Paris hotel sitting room . . . Lady Deterding, one of Paris' smartest hostesses and the Russian-born wife of the British oil king, arriving from America, said:

"The President, the White House, and all America are charmingly simple."

The Irish playboy husband of Gloria Swanson, Michael Farmer, gave a dinner the other night at Deauville for Countess Warwick, Lady Ursula Filmer Sankey, and Lady Mary Lyon.

Hope Hampton, who is Mrs. Jules Brulatour, at a Cannes chemin de fer table, and lucky, in a gown of yellow satin and carrying the prize compact she won as the Riviera's beauty queen . . . Mrs. Emily Burnside, of New York, in gunmetal lame with a split skirt . . . Mrs. Louis D. Beaumont, of Cleveland, in white organdie with emeralds and diamonds . . . Mrs. Eduardo De Mora, the former Lillian P. Martin, of New York, in black and white crepe with a shoulder spray of white chiffon flowers.

Countess Warwick

Josephine Armstrong, the former Mrs. Erskine Gwynne, in pale blue organza . . . At the palace hotel, St. Moritz, Mrs. Marjorie D'Aguirre, of New York, in a dark brown velveteen suit with a white stock color . . . Ada Norfleet Fuller, of Memphis, all in grey with gold jewelry . . . Mrs. Dorland Doyle, the former Pauline Munn, of Philadelphia, in a riding habit after her daily canter with Don Aspreno Colonna, son of Princess Marantonio Colonna, of Rome . . . Mrs. Charles U. Caesar, of New York, in a black riding skirt and jacket, white stock, and derby hat.

Bundle Bridge Hostesses Named

Additional hostesses are announced by Mrs. S. S. Cohen, chairman of the bundle bridge party to be given by Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, on Thursday at the Hotel Schenley.

They are Mrs. George Wasser, Mrs. Julius Bachrach, Mrs. D. H. Stern, Mrs. Joseph Leibovitz, Mrs. Max Arnold, Mrs. Charles J. Pinski, Mrs. Ben Silverman, Mrs. Jack Mankin, Mrs. Charles Yaffee, Mrs. Isidore Malasky, Mrs. Abe Cohen and Mrs. David Roth.

Events Listed By D. A. R. Group

One of the more unusual events listed for the season by the Gen. John Neville Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is "an evening with the sons and daughters of Chapter members." This will be in April and Mrs. A. B. Hooker will present the program.

Its first meeting this season will be on September 26. October's program will consist of papers on Lafayette and Colonial culinary customs. An antique show held in conjunction with a luncheon in the Ben Avon Pesbyterian Church is November's affair, and a guest day is listed for December in the American Legion Home.

First in the new year will come an afternoon devoted to study of the Saratoga campaign, February's calendar lists an evening meeting with a colonial play, for March there's a luncheon at the Lambskin Club and "Women of the Revolution" will be discussed.

Study of Ellis Island, election of officers, annual reports and a luncheon at the Pines with a talk by Miss Abigail Jackson and monologues and dancing by Miss Betty Jane Frazer are the year's concluding events.

For good digestion

—there is nothing that can take the place of your own gastric, digestive secretions. Frequently, poor digestion is due to lack of tone in the stomach walls—because of low blood strength. S.S.S., the great, scientifically-tested medicine, is specially designed to fill a two-fold purpose in this respect . . . it aids in stimulating the flow of natural stomach secretions . . . and by building up deficient red corpuscles, with their hemo-glo-bin, it restores to a more normal functioning the secretions of the stomach digestive juices . . . so necessary for good digestion. This double value of S.S.S. is important.

By all means try S.S.S. for better health and more happiness. Its benefits are progressive . . . accumulative . . . and enduring. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion . . . sound sleep . . . and renewed strength. This is why many say "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

WINTER TO BRING CRISIS IN CROWDED MAYVIEW

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Summer, in the memory of the oldest theater-goer, has been a season of lay-off and production inertia. Yet this summer and last have been a boom to established players willing to appear in the village playhouses of Long Island, Maine and Connecticut.

The billboards off the surrounding countryside threesheeted a list of stars that would in ordinary times have thrilled Broadway. Grace George at Dennis, Miss. Glenn Hunter at Long Beach; Francine Larrimore at White Plains. Mr. and Mrs. Coburn at Carmel, N. Y., and J. C. Nugent at Westport, Ct. And so on.

It was stimulating to watch the enthusiasm of these valiant troupers in carrying their art to starved Main Streets. They appeared in tacky theaters at often $1 top as though the legitimate theater was starting all over at scratch. Many financially secure were willing to do this without a whimper.

The red barn idea began several seasons ago. And this season gained such momentum that the listing of nearby summer theaters in New York newspapers tripled the space of the Broadway output. I am told some stars received only $50 a week. With such valour the stage is not likely to die.

Add sillies: A cabaret on 57th street sponsored an ice sitting contest. The girl who sat the longest on a cake of ice won a cuckoo clock or something.

America's most fervent dog lover is Albert Payson Terhune. A globe trotter who has bivouacked with Bedouins, mushed through the Artic Circle and slept in the camphor trees of Formosa, he has given up his wanderlust because of a devotion to his pets. All his time is spent on his Pompton Lakes, N. J. estate, writing and romping with collies. And he wouldn't have it otherwise.

Physical culture eating places that sprung up about New York with such a mushroom growth seem to have the same overnight vanish. Their drabness was accentuated by the ascetic type of customers, mostly men who carry pill boxes in vest pockets. The walls were hung with strange charts and systems of exercises and menus included protose-steaks, bean-cutlets, lentil-sirloins and special calory-combination dinner. Jack London, robust meat eater, used to like to drop in when slightly blotto and roar for raw hamburger.

And the depression has flushed out some strange new restaurant facades that once boasted Shanley, Rector and Churchill. A stone throw from Longacre Square—I'm stubborn about calling it Times Square—is a new Three Cent Coffee House, as gaudy in pretensions as the ham-hung Brass Rails that have had the favor of the moment. The Brass Rails are all meaty, robust and yeasty with banter. The first one was a hole-in-the-wall next to Earl Carroll's theater, but swept to the corner and up the stairs and now has one of the biggest, most glittering signs on 7th avenue.

As a cafe chaser with irrational affection for odd restaurants, I'm still bound to the depot short order house glamour. There's great fun about the clattery spots with marble-top tables and back-talking waiters. They are loaded to the muzzle with excitement.

Like hungry animals at the zoo, customers' nerves are on edge and anything may precipitate a dandy dust-up. Most are on the waterfront with open fireplaces and a sheaf of sporting prints. Beans are baked in cheese—a worthy idea. Coffee is ebony black in thick cups, the only way coffee lifts the spirits. Waiters career in with long arms as trays and skirl the dishes along slam-bang.

I've wondered about the afflatus of monogrammed bath and hand-towels. Nothing gives the home-owner such a feeling of grandeur when company comes as the consciousness his bathrooms sport a generous supply of these embroidered luxuries. He may have a Romney or a Tudor mantle from England. But grand monogrammed towels give him the greatest glow of richness.

I dropped into the continuous vaudeville-movie grind at the Palace the other afternoon. A perspiring comedian was using the familiar old tickler to win applause. Said he: "If you folks show that you like my act, I may get booked over at Music Hall." Once the Palace was the vaudevillian's valhalla. Today it is one of the steps up, and somehow that was a wrench. But no one appeared to mind. I seem the only vaudeville softie left.

FAGAN AND KANE SEE PLOTS TO WRECK NRA

Huge Salaries Paid to Organize Company Unions, Charge

Charges that "big industrialists are attempting to wreck the New Deal" had been made today by labor leaders, as organized labor returned to its tasks after the annual celebration of Labor Day.

Celebration of the day in the Pittsburgh district centered on six major demonstrations and meetings, each arranged by a district trades council of the American Federation of Labor.

The city's major meeting in West Park brought out a smaller number than in years past, but this, observers said, was because many had gone to attend the closing day of the county fair.

Attacking industrialists, P. T. Fagan, president of the Pittsburgh Central Trades Council, and Councilman John J. Kane both warned against attempts to wreck the New Deal. Kane declared:

"Big industrial firms are paying $75,000 a year—salaries equal to that of the President of the United States—to men to organize company unions and destroy the National Recovery Act and Section 7a which guarantees the workingman his right to bargain collectively."

'NEW DEAL' LAUDED

Stating that the 3,000,000 organized unionists have "been the deadline between freedom and slavery," Fagan said:

"I am not an alarmist, but if the New Deal fails, God help the United States."

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, speaking at West View, deplored the "weak and vacillating enforcement" of the collective bargaining provisions of the NRA.

He urged permanent abolition of child labor, and added:

"Labor should demand further reduction in hours of labor to give more employment to others, and increase in wages to give the laboring man the means to live."

ROOSEVELT PRAISED

The Rev. A. J. Pauley, of St. Paul's Cathedral, said that President Roosevelt was trying to get down to the cause of the depression. The cause, he said, was because workmen had not been paid "living wages."

Declaring that "labor is for peace, not strikes," State Senator Frank J. Harris said:

"If it hadn't been for the cool heads of labor leaders, the country would have been in the midst of a political and bloody revolution."

Other major celebrations of Labor Day were held at New Kensington, Washington, Pa., McKeesport, Cheswick-Springdale and Troy Hill.

Other speakers were Mrs. Frances Knapp, chairman of the Western Pennsylvania Commission of the Alliance, and Mrs. Rose Mazur, of Pittsburgh.

A banquet was held last night in the hotel in honor of Mrs. M. Nipierilski, of Chicago, national president.

FUNERAL RITE FOR G. H. BROWNE

Funeral services for George H. Browne, city engineer under E. M. Bigelow and aide of George Westinghouse during the development of the air brake, were to be held today in Calvary Episcopal Church, Shady avenue.

Mr. Browne, who had not maintained a home in Pittsburgh since his retirement about 25 years ago, died Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ralph P. Black, Atlanta, Ga.

Born near Dublin, Ireland, in 1847, Mr. Browne came to the United States after receiving his education at Trinity College, Dublin. After serving the city, Mr. Browne joined the Philadelphia Company as general manager. He was a charter member and former president of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, a director of the American Society of Civil Engineers, a charter member of the Duquesne Club, past master of St. John's Lodge No. 219, F. & A. M., Syria Temple and the Calvary Episcopal Church.

Mr. Browne had been married twice—to Anna Eva Anshutz and later to Julia Stinson. Besides his sister, two grandsons and a granddaughter survive him.

Honorary pallbearers are George S. Davidson, David F. Collingwood, S. L. Tone, John S. Craig, Samuel A. Taylor, E. K. Morse and Thomas R. Hudson. Burial was to be private.

4,200 Patients Housed in Buildings Intended For Half That Number—Cots Fill Hallways And Porches—Insane Wards Worst

With the buildings of the City Home and Hospital at Mayview crowded to the hallways, and another winter coming, a serious problem of housing is faced by city officials.

The present population at Mayview is 4,200 patients and 450 nurses, attendants and physicians.

Welfare Director Southard Hay declares that there are at the institution almost double the number of patients it was designed to accommodate.

A visit to the institution and a checkup of the cots which fill the hallways, rest rooms and porches indicates at once that more than 1,000 patients are sleeping in temporarily arranged quarters.

A bond issue of $2,000,000 is to be put up to the voters of Pittsburgh this fall, but what will be done for immediate relief is worrying city welfare officials.

MEALS IN A HALL . . . DINNER AN INSANE WARD

The worst condition at Mayview is in the insane wards. The beds are so close together in places that it is difficult to walk between them.

At times the wards are quiet, and then, in a moment, the shouts and shrieks of the inmates fill the air.

The administration at Mayview has been doing a heroic job in the face of a depression which has been pouring hundreds of unfortunates within its walls every month. It has herded them together like cattle in every available space, including basements, rest rooms, workshops, barns and recreation rooms, and has now reached its limit.

BETWEEN BEDS AISLES . . . AVERAGE 12 INCHES

There are 300 double-deck beds in the utility building, constructed for a shop. There are 500 homeless men there now, and more will be coming as colder weather arrives. Ninety men are quartered in an old horse barn.

In order to deal with the overcrowded conditions on a permanent basis Director Hay will suggest the bond program to Council.

In it will be $1,264,000 for a mental building to house 564 patients, $350,000 for a new female infirmary to care for 456 inmates, $316,300 for three modern tuberculosis hospital units for the tubercular insane, $78,000 for an additional floor in the general hospital and $30,000 for an additional story on the utility building.

Dr. J. J. Buchanan, of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League, has suggested to Council the expenditure of $175,000, of which $67,000 would be for an addition to the receiving buildings and $50,000 for the acquisition and equipment of the old Eye and Ear Hospital, 1905 Fifth avenue.

Dr. Buchanan has urged that the former Eye and Ear building be purchased as a receiving unit for all city hospitals. His suggestion did not find favor with the Welfare Department. Director Hay said:

"Our first concern is to relieve overcrowding at Mayview. The Eye and Ear Hospital purchase would be just a frill. It would add to our administrative expense."

HORSE BARN? NO, IT HOUSES 90 HOMELESS MEN

Dr. Buchanan had estimated that transfers and the purchase of the Eye and Ear plant might make possible relief at Mayview to the extent of 327 patients.

When that number was mentioned Director Hay said:

"That's only a drop in the bucket."

Although state law requires a definite area for each hospital bed, emergency conditions are being met in almost all institutions, and that regulation is now quite generally disregarded at Mayview.

BAD MONEY TRIO SENTENCED

Two men and a woman were sentenced in Federal Court today by Judge R. M. Gibson for conspiracy to pass counterfeit money.

Frank Joseph Valenti, 32, and Peter Albense, 38, were sentenced to serve two years each in a federal penitentiary and Marcellean Williams, alias Mrs. Frank Valenti, 27, was sentenced to one year in a federal reformatory.

The trio, arrested last February, were convicted May 25. Counterfeit $20 Federal Reserve notes, it was testified, were used in the purchase of rugs from a North Side furniture store, and women's finery. Valenti and Albense also were arrested in connection with the theft of goods, variously estimated at from $5,000 to $15,000, from the Winer style shop, Fifth avenue.

In the recovery of these goods, City Detective John Dean found himself involved in a controversy over the alleged acceptance of $300 to obtain recovery of the loot. Dean was subsequently exonerated in a police investigation of the affair.

SCHOOLS HAVE FIRST DROP

Teachers noticed an empty desk here and there in their classrooms today as approximately 332,000 school children answered the call for a new year of school in the city and the county.

According to Dr. Ben G. Graham, Pittsburgh schools superintendent, it's all because of a decline in the birth rate. For the first time in history, there has been a decrease in Pittsburgh school enrollment.

Officials expect 113,000 in city schools, 42,700 in city parochial schools, 85,000 in county schools, 40,500 in county parochial and about 30,000 in independent school districts.

HIT-RUN DRIVER SUSPECT HELD

Burt Schuller, 22, of 280 Oakland avenue, arrested by Oakland police early today after his automobile collided with another machine at Forbes street and McDevitt place, injuring a young woman, is believed, police say, to have been the driver who failed to stop after colliding with a car owned by a policeman.

The young woman, Floretta Wagner, 23, of 3251 Spring Garden avenue, was treated at Montefiore Hospital for bruises and possible fracture of the ribs. She was a passenger of Valentine Koeper, 22, of 320 Brownsville Road.

Earlier in the evening, Patrolman Steve Koteks, of 511 Kirk avenue, off duty, reported to South Side police a hit-run driver had struck his machine parked in South Fifteenth street, near Sarah street, while he was visiting friends there. Witnesses furnished police with the license number of the alleged hit-run machine.

COUSIN FIGHTS TO BREAK WILL OF M'AFEE

50 Charities Contest Suit Seeking Big Estate Here

Hugh M. Valentine, of Indianapolis, who recently filed a contest of the will of his cousin, Hugh McAfee, Farmer Pittsburgh glass manufacturer, stands to win an estate of more than a million dollars if Orphans Court decides McAfee was of unsound mind when he made his will.

If a release, signed in an Indianapolis bank in May, 1924, making Valentine a gift of $10,000, is ruled void on the grounds that it was not a legal release from receiving further gifts, nearly 50 Pittsburgh charities and hospitals will lose bequests close to a million dollars.

The release Valentine signed, according to his attorneys, Edward O. Brethen, of Indianapolis, and E. A. Montgomery, of Pittsburgh, is as follows:

"I, Hugh Valentine, hereby acknowledge to have received the sum of $10,000 from my cousin, Hugh McAfee, of Pittsburgh. He is giving me this in his lifetime instead of remembering me in his will, and I recognize this as a gift and hereby declare that I have no claim of any kind whatsoever against him or his estate."

Brethen claims this receipt really does not prevent him from participating in any other inheritance from McAfee.

Exceptions were filed to Valentine's action by Attorney J. Frank McKenna for more than 50 charities and hospitals that eventually may lose their bequests if Judges Thomas M. Trimble, H. Walton Mitchell and Edward C. Chaffant decide to exclude Valentine's release from the exceptions. If it is excluded there will be a hearing October 4 to determine whether McAfee, who was connected with the Consolidated Lamp and Glass Company in Corapolis, was of sound mind when he made his will.

If McAfee's mental condition is proved unsound the will would be broken and the estate would go to Valentine under intestate laws.

RACE FOR FISH PROVES FLOP

DEPOE BAY, Ore., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Those who wagered on Depoe Bay's first annual fish derby have just about decided to stick to horses.

The event came to an inconclusive end yesterday with no one knowing which denizen of the deep had won. In the absence of jockeys, the finny speedsters followed their own ideas of racing. A fish named "Shampoo the Magician" tried to bite off the tail of "Schooner Bill"; "Belter," a perch, refused to race at all, and "Tessie," a skate, had a tantrum at post-time.

The races, or what was to have been races, took place on a landlocked bay, in the center of which was a barge. Spectators draped themselves over the railing above the "track."

The race was complicated by the fact that each entry had different ideas about direction. Some went sideways, some went back and some just stood still.

Pari-mutuel betting was scheduled, but, like results of the races, income from the wagers remained unannounced.

Time for Boys To Start Old Time Debates

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Looks like time for the boys to start some of those famous debates of the old days.

Like the days when Lincoln and Douglas spoke from the same platform, or when Webster and Calhoun spouted like whales at sea.

They at least got first hand information on what the other guy was saying. But, these days all the orators have microphones to their chins and cotton in their ears.

There ain't been two of them yet agreed on how to take the handcuffs off business. Doc Butler denounced talk of wide prosperity and in the same paper Richberg says five million families will be on relief in February.

And on the next page we read that the state fairs are bigger and better than ever. Say, even the labor leaders made two conflicting statements and those boys should sleep in the same hammock.

If the leaders don't know, then it ain't any wonder that the people are as confused as fleas on a swimming dog.

The Oldest Skin Game!

(Things I Never Knew About Plastic Surgery)

That the art of plastic surgery was originated 2600 years B. C. simultaneously by the Arabs and the Hindus.

That when an Arab or Hindu woman was unfaithful to her mate, he mutilated her nose with a stone axe, and that when she promised it would never happen again, he took her to a plastic surgeon to have it re-made.

That, according to Dr. Beisinger of Hollywood, fighters and wrestlers are the most difficult to operate on—they always dread novocaine and insist they be put under ether.

The first first plastic surgeon was an Arabian named Norsini. He and his descendants practiced their art for more than 300 years without any local competition, the chiselers.

That after the Norsinis died out, the beautifying knife was taken up in Italy (where, while (they never caught [illegible] ancestors) and then passed out for more than over 2[illegible] years.

That face-lifting and nose-straightening are as painful as getting a shave in a barber chair.

(Whose barber do you mean?)

That more men than women have their faces adjusted for the sake of beauty.

That Princess Eric of Denmark came all the way from Copenhagen to Los Angeles to have her features re-formed. When her mother, Mrs. Fred Booth, 68-year-old Ottawa multi-milynairess, saw the job, she ordered one for herself.

That many people who come to the doctor's bring along the photo of their favorite movie star and insist that they be made to look like it.

(But suppose your favorite is Ben Turpin!)

That plastic surgeons have been busier since the depression than before. This is due to the impression among the unemployed that it is easier to get work if you are more presentable.

That most women visit the surgeon when hubby is away on a business trip and surprise him on his return.

That Jack Dempsey, whose schnoz was straightened 10 years ago this month, claims it is more rigid and capable of standing more punishment than before the operation.

(A married man should know!)

To the Dogs!

(T. I. N. K. A. Dog-racing, thanx to Long Branch Kennel Club.)

That greyhounds were originally called "gaze-hounds" because they course by sight instead of scent . . . And that their most important equipment is the tail, which is used as a rudder.

That greyhounds show the cleverness of human jockies in maneuvering for the rail, dodging "pockets" and saving their energies for the final spurt.

That the speed of the hounds is indicated by the trainers, who talk in 100ths of a second—and will call a track 100ths of a second faster than another . . . That if a male and female with the same racing speed are in the same race, the odds are on the female, who is smarter.

(With dogs, too?)

A "hamburger" is a cheap dog . . . The mechanical rabbit is a real rabbit stuffed . . . The "bunny rail" is the track on which the mechanical rabbit moves. It is operated by a man in midfield who hugs the rabbit just a pace ahead of the leading dog.

That the purses are usually around $100 for "first." The "second" gets half of what is awarded the "first," and "third" a quarter. The owners of the track do not own the dogs.

The dogs do not consider the "rabbit" food but use it only as a pace-maker. There are dogs that have been permitted to catch the bunny six times in a row, yet they chase it again immediately afterwards.

That the code for attendants is strict and once an attendant strikes or is unkind to a dog, he is immediately dismissed and blacklisted from all tracks.

That greyhounds were accepted by King John in lieu of money for fines. That in ancient Ethiopia a greyhound was elected titular king. And that Winston Churchill, when Chancellor of the Exchequer, called dog-racing "animated roulette."

That the dogs eat only one a day—after the races. That each dog has a registered weight on file with the State, and if it varies more than 1½ pounds at race-time, it is scratched.

That a few years ago, England and China almost came to blows because some Britishers opened a track in Shanghai and 90 per cent of the betting was done by poor Chinese. Frequently 70,000 attended at one time.

That many of the dogs are given away at the end of the season to people offering them a good home.

Burlesque Greeted

Red heads, blondes and brunets again caper on the Variety stage, where the season's opening show is "Red Hot." The Penn avenue theater, closed for the last four months, reopened the fall season Monday to a capacity audience. According to George Jaffe, proprietor and manager of the Variety, this is the first time in three years that there has been a complete sell out for an opening performance in his theater.

"Red Hot" is a typical burlesque show, with an abundance of dancing and singing throughout the two acts and 44 scenes. Maxine Deshon, called the "Georgia Songbird," and billed as "the most beautiful women in burlesque," who heads the feminine principals, responded to several encores in each of her two appearances.

In a specialty called "Dance of the Plumes," Dotty Wahl used two large ostrich fans. Gladys McCormick, a redhead, was seen in Oriental and hula dances and in art posing scene with the Variety chorus of 20 girls.

"Diana," a specialty dancer; Ann Juliet, prima donna; June Rhodes, dancer, and Inez Marvin are the other feminine principals.

Kate Hepburn Bedevils Gregory La Cava

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.—Madcap Kate Hepburn has been at her favorite sport again—bedeviling Gregory La Cava. The whimsical star, accompanied by an unidentified girl friend, probably Laura Harding, drove up to the M-G-M studio in Kate's small truck. They talked their way past the gateman and drove right down to the stage where La Cava is directing Helen Hayes in "What Every Woman Knows." Here began to send in a series of messages, under different names, demanding to see La Cava. In the end, the aggravated director finally came out to see who it was. He was greeted by uproarous laughter.

MISS HEPBURN

Little Anne Shirley is thrilled. The 16-year-old actress, who plays her first leading role in "Anne of Green Gables," has received a letter from L. M. Montgomery, author of the book. Not only that, but a request for an autographed picture. Writing from her home in Norvel, Ontario, L. M. Montgomery, who is, in private life, Mrs. Evan MacDonald, tells Anne that she saw her in "Finishing School" and is sure she can play the part. She sent an autographed picture of herself and requested one from Anne in return.

Ironically enough, Mrs. MacDonald will not receive any compensation for the movie that RKO is making from her best seller novel. The book is now in public domain.

Max Baer took plenty of kidding from Eddie Cantor when the champ was banqueted here, but Eddie, in fine form, leveled one of his funniest shafts at "Slapsy" Maxie Rosenbloom, sitting nearby among the welcomers.

"They tell me that Maxie just had his ears lifted to go into pictures," said Cantor. "He should have had his arms lifted and stayed in the ring."

One of the year's biggest social events in Hollywood's younger set took place unrecorded by cameras. Little Shirley Temple, the screen's newest rave, went calling on Harold Lloyd's youngsters in the big house on the hill. Mildred Gloria, Harold, Jr., and Peggy Lloyd have seen every one of Shirley's pictures and are among her most loyal fans. They begged so hard to meet her that their mother finally invited Shirley to a party. It was ice cream instead of cocktails at this soiree and everything was served in state in Mildred Gloria's playhouse on the grounds of the Lloyd home. Cameramen would have given their eye teeth to get pictures of this party, but Mildred Lloyd said no—it was just to be fun for the kids.

Harold's youngest, however, has an eye for business. He said:

White Mice Had Fine Debut

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Two white mice and 13 players acquitted themselves with distinction last night in "The Dark Tower," mystery melodrama presented by the Civic Playhouse as its last offering of the season. The mice, Abelard and Heloise, made their first appearance on any stage, but behaved like veterans. As for the players, all the favorites that have appeared during the summer season had a chance to display their accumulated histrionic powers . . . and they did not let the mice get away with the cheese.

Mr. Seibel

WORK IS COLLABORATION

This drama is the joint work of that genial expert in crime, Alexander Woolcott, and the dramatic maestro George S. Kaufman. Together they have concocted a grim mixture of Svengali and the Lunt-Fontanne "Guardsman." It is a point of honor not to tell who is the guilty wretch in a mystery play, but in the present case the mystery is rather well kept. Few of the audience are expert enough in crime to spot the noble villain in his bloody work. Meantime there is about a baker's dozen of interesting characters who say some very clever things and do some startling ones.

Honors for the stellar acting rest rather even between Edward Blaine and Robert Gill. Gill does some smooth character work, but so does Blaine. Gill's part has more picturesque qualities, but Blaine's has more surprises. This pair give "The Dark Tower" a mighty thrill.

TRILBY-LIKE CHARACTER

But Betty Harris as the heroine also achieved a difficult emotional triumph in the Trilby character. And Norman Porter was at his very best in the role of the doctor. Irene Cowan, Clara Landay, Beatrice L. Hirsch, Marx Hartman, Howard Blaine, Mrs. Petri Abbott, James Macfarlane, Edward Steinfeld and Oliver Evans completed the cast—and were all in the atmosphere of the Woollcott-Kaufman crime wave. The direction by Irene Cowan was evidently adept, judging by its results. The play held up well in comparison with the New York production, in which Basil Sydney was starred.

There was a large audience, which demanded a number of curtain calls. Too bad that many people have not discovered the excellent work being done by the Playhouse until the season is virtually closed. This is the last week at the Arnold School, and it bids fair to be the best.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

It is expected that the first play of the subscription group that will be part of the legitimate season in the Nixon will be "A Sleeping Clergyman," by James Bridie, which had a run of more than a year in London. As previously announced, "No More Ladies," expected early next month, also will be in the three to be given by the American Theater Society. Among the prospective three from the Theater Guild may be the musical version of "Porgy" and "Valley Forge," new play by Maxwell Anderson. Tentatively on the Guild list, too, are "Rain From Heaven," by S. N. Behrman, "Native Ground," by Virgil Geddses, and, perhaps a new play by Eugene O'Neill. The Porgy musical will have music by George Gershwin, lyrics by Ira Gershwin and librette by DuBose Heyward, who, with Dorothy Heyward dramatized the original play from the DuBose Heyward novel, "Porgy." Subscriptions are now being received in the American Theater Society office, 404 Nixon building.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.—When June Brewster ex-Broadway cutie, tossed away her dancing pumps at RKO, chirped "Nay, nay" to playing vamps in two reelers, and voiced her intention of studying "The Heavy Dramatic," most of her studio pals and playmates sadly shook their heads and cast meaning glances at each other—June, they thought, had gone a bit batty, as it were.

Miss Brewster

And so June took up her study of the drama and every day for many weeks has been with Laura Hope Crews, her tutor. Peristence, evidently, has its reward. Last week, June was signed for a featured role—that of the courtesan — in British International's version of "Madame Du Barry." Verree Teasdale enacted the part for the Warner (and somewhat satirical version) here.

Leo Morrison gave a lavish "knockout" dinner party for his client, Max Baer, at the Roosevelt Hotel. The "knockout" party comes from the word "rib, or insult." Bear proved to an audience of screen celebs, socialites, businessmen and stooges that he not only can dish it out, but he can take it—and then some! Joe Cunningham, introduced as a newspaperman (but in reality a scenarist at Fox), is a modest humorist, but he alone succeeded in turning the evening into the most hysterical laugh feast ever held in a city of a thousand wits.

Many years ago Lowell Sherman was donning the grease paint in the Bronx Opera House. The candy-butcher was Barry Trivers. It was also Barry's duty to fetch Mr. Sherman a glass of milk during the performance. One day the glass was broken. After a long argument, in which Sherman protested that he had not broken the glass, he finally gave Barry the dime. Last week, on the set of "Night Life of the Gods," which Sherman is directing for Universal, and for which Mr. Trivers prepared the screen play, the old argument arose . . . and ended by Mr. Trivers returning the dime to Mr. Sherman.

Now it's Phil Reed who is taking Genevieve Tobin places . . . Nate Dyches, Harry Brand's right-hand, has gone so social he's even wearing the noisy - checkered coats . . . Jack Cluett wants to know if M. Reingold, the Hollywood jewelry fella, produced "Debt on the Diamond?" . . . Hank Mann has returned to the movies and guess what—he's a stooge for the three stooges! . . Orville Knapp, who leads one of the dancing-ist bands, is pointed in the direction of Club Victor in Seattle . . . Roy De lRuth has secretly been going in for airplanes, and may dent the bank account any minute for a big bird . . .

Helman Play Title Is Mangled

Sam Hellman, humorist, who is writing the screen adaptation of George Ade's "The County Chairman" for a Fox film, thought until recently that Hollywood and the movies held all honors for changing stories and story titles. But now he is convinced that New York begins where Hollywood leaves off. Mr. Hellman has just sold his first play, "The Golden Sunshine." The title, he thought, fits the story perfectly. But he has received a telegram to the effect that the producers were changing it temporarily to "Mo Mad Monks in a Mortuary."

CONNIE BENNETT'S TEMPER SHOWN AT HOLLYWOOD RECEPTION

Star Angry After Her Wedding

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

[This series by the renowned Hearst film commentator, with whose Sunday column Sun-Telegraph readers are familiar, deals with heretofore untold stories of film celebrities whom she knows as neighbors and friends. "Just folks to me," she says in "HOLLYWOOD IS MY HOME TOWN," which is appearing in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan Magazine, by whose permission it is reprinted.]

In the first installment intimate closeups of Charlie Chaplin and the Harold Lloyds were given by Miss Parsons.

Constance Bennett is also one of my near neighbors. She lives in a low-built Spanish house, but she is moving away from Beverly to an estate in Holmby Hills that will rival Harold Lloyd's manor.

Her reason for building this beautiful mansion, the swimming pool and tennis courts, is to give her son, Peter, a place where he can have all the normal activity of healthy childhood.

Many times have I sat in Connie's pale blue and white boudoir and talked to her while the faithful Nora helped her dress.

Many Tales of Connie's Temper

Many tales about Connie's temper have been repeated, but Nora seems to like her blonde mistress and does not find her difficult. Peter thinks she is pretty grand, too.

I am one of those who feel that Connie's bark isn't half so bad as it has sounded in magazine articles written by people who really do not know her.

The eldest daughter of the mercurial Richard Bennett, famous actor, and Adrienne Morrison, also well known on the stage, Connie is uncomfortably frank.

I have reason to believe that Constance regards me as one of her friends and that she is fond of me. She has proved it on several occasions by going on the radio, which she hates, as my guest.

Miss Davies

She refused six thousand dollars for one night's radio appearance, yet a few days later she agreed to be interviewed, when I suggested she would be doing me a great favor.

"I wouldn't do it for another person in all the world," she said, "but if it means anything to you I'll do it, although I'll hope all the time we're on the radio that the building caves in."

Wears Slacks and Sweaters

Constance, who always wears slacks and sweaters in the morning, appeared at the radio station in her usual morning garb. Slacks were comfortable, and Connie didn't feel like wearing any of the beautiful Parisian gowns she had just the day before shown me.

Connie never minces words. She and I have had our little differences. She was furious with me for some fancied grievance on the day of her marriage to Marquis de la Falaise, and she stopped in the middle of her wedding reception to tell me what she thought.

Never had anyone talked to me as did the angry Bennett. I was about to walk out of the house when Marion Davies calmed me, saying:

"Oh, you know how Connie is! She will be all over it tomorrow and sorry for her words. Please stay."

No one can resist Marion, so I did stay, but I was thoroughly uncomfortable and unhappy. A few days later, Constance telephoned to ask me to dinner.

She Won't Lie Or Pretend

I told her how upset I had been at her tirade and she was that amazed. She had been peeved at me—and if I had been the Queen of England, she would have got it all off her chest.

That's what I like about Connie. You can trust her. She won't lie and she won't pretend. You need never wonder what's going on in her mind; she will tell you soon enough, and tell you the truth.

No one can accuse Constance Bennett of being the ordinary, conventional person. She has her own ideas. She couldn't be dull if she wanted to.

I had meant to write an introduction to this series before I started talking about my neighbors.

I am Mrs. Babbitt herself when it comes to telling about my home town, Hollywood. I just wrote on and on, and never did give you the foreword that I had in mind.

A Tale Told By Hometowner

I wanted to say that it is my intention to tell you about the Hollywood I know.

Not an outsider's story of an enchanted city, but a tale told by one of the hometowners herself. If this won't be anticlimactic, may I say just a word so you will understand why I so brazenly accepted the compliments of the editor?

In the first place, the daily column which I write in the Hearst newspapers originated nearly twenty years ago, and so far as I know, was the first column of its kind. It was really an experiment by a far-seeing editor who was interested enough in the new cinema to try out a motion-picture department.

His associate editors did not share his enthusiasm. They looked with scorn upon my carefully written stories of Wallace Beery as Sweedie the Servant Girl.

Interviews Mary Pickford

These editors didn't like the way I wrote. I used "I," instead of the accepted editorial "we," and this was considered the conceit of youth and the effrontery of an amateur. In spite of the obvious contempt the city editor felt for my daily effusions, I labored on trying to imitate our dramatic editor and his dignified criticisms.

But I couldn't write as well as Richard Henry Little, the critic, so I relapsed into my own way of scribbling. I wrote about the film stars of that day, and one of my most cherished treasures is an interview with Mary Pickford in 1917, which was published with a photograph of Mary and myself.

I interviewed Mary for the Chicago Herald, which is now the Chicago Herald-Examiner. She was then Mrs. Owen Moore, a slip of a girl with golden curls tucked upon her head.

She wore a simple little brown tailored suit and to me which I thought the last word in elegance. Today, it would look very anaemic in Mary's wardrobe of beautiful frocks and gorgeous furs.

Mary traveled everywhere with her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, who kept a watchful eye on the daughter who, she once told me, was dearer to her than the drops of blood that flowed nearest her heart.

Those words, culled from Shakespeare, may sound sentimental and dated, but I am quoting the adoring mother verbatim. A wonderful woman, the famous mother.

Mary-Doug Break Decision Due To Telegram

Intimate details of the break between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are related in tomorrow's installment of Miss Parsons' "HOLLYWOOD IS MY HOME TOWN," the truth about the famous film colony.

"A telegram . . . was the factor that decided her . . ." she says in describing the scoop, which she says she would rather not have had.

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"DEAR MARK," relates Jimmy Rome. "In one of the new-style cafes in the West Fifties there is a colored orchestra that is attracting a great deal of attention. It's a six-piece outfit, and the boys are working themselves daffy in their climb up the ladder of success. They're not making much now, but the future looks rosy.

"A few weeks ago, one of the boys staged a party in his home in Harlem. The weather was threatening, so one of the guests—also in the combination—brought along a tan overcoat that was his particular pride and joy.

"The party began late in the morning and didn't end until noon. The guests departed in various stages of plasteration, which is a word that should certainly be included in all dictionaries. And when the musician with the tan coat awakened in his own home, he found that he no longer possessed the coat of which he was so proud.

"He didn't bother about it, however, at the moment. He knew that he must have left it in his friend's house, since he had gone nowhere else. And when the boys gathered for their work in the cafe that night, he spoke about it to the lad who had tossed the party.

"'Sam,' he said affably, 'when yo' come down to work tomorrow, bring dat coat ah left at yo' house today. Ah sure wouldn't want to lose it.'

Same gave him a puzzled look.

"'Coat?' he repeated. 'What coat yo' talkin' 'bout? Ah didn't didn't see no coat in mah house this mornin'.'

The other man grew excited.

"'Don't yo' go lyin' to me,' he growled. 'Yo' know ver' well dat mah coat was left in yo' house. An' Ah want it back right quick. Yo' hear me?'

"'Don't know what yo're talkin' 'bout,' Sam insisted doggedly. 'Ah didn't see no coat at all.'

"The other musician verged on apoplexy.

"'Listen here, man,' he cried, 'don't yo' go pullin' none o' yo' crooked stuff on me. Yo're gonna gimme back mah coat, or Ah'm gonna put dis fist right in yo' eye.'

"The party-tosser drew himself up.

"'Is dat so?' he grunted. 'Well, lemme tell yo' somethin', mister. When Ah said Ah didn't have yo' overcoat, dat's just what Ah meant. And, furthermore—since yo' is gettin' so doggone fresh—Ah ain't even gonna give yo' the pawn ticket for it!'" . . .

"The young lady had gone to the races for the first time, and the nag she picked in the first had just romped in. Her boy friend was very excited.

"'What did I tell you?' he howled exultantly. 'I knew you'd be lucky. The horse you bet on won the race!'

"'Oh, dear,' ejaculated the gal. 'Whatever will I do with a horse?'"

"IT was 3 o'clock in the morning," reports Milton Berle. "The car stopped in front of the small apartment house, and out stumbled two lads, both beautifully boiled. Between them, they held a young lady who was also well boiled.

"Up to the door staggered the three. And one of the boys began to pound loudly on the door. A ritzy-looking dame stuck her head out of the second-story window.

"'What's the reason for the noise at this ungodly hour?' she asked angrily.

"One of the lads gazed blearily upward.

"'Lady,' he hiccoughed, 'You better come down and get your daughter. She'sh stewed.'

"The woman grew highly indignant.

"'I'll have you understand, young man,' she snapped haughtily, 'that that isn't my daughter. I carried my daughter up half an hour ago!'"

James J. Long's Sports Comment

AFTER HIS LONG career as catcher and manager, Gabby Street ought to know all about the handling of pitchers, but some California observers say the Pittsburgh club would be justified in registering a strong kick against the way he is working Pitcher Wayne Osborne on the Mission team in the Pacific Coast League. It is said that since Osborne was purchased by the Pirates, Street has been starting the youngster about every third day and giving him occasional relief jobs in between, in addition. The story goes that Dutch Lieber, whom the Missions hope to sell to the Giants, also is being overworked, starting one day and relieving the next. It is pointed out that too much work in the minors keeps a lot of young hurlers from making good after they join the big show, as they report with dead arms.

Gabby Street

O'Toole Case Recalled

ONE OF STREET'S critics declares that if he owned a major league club he would stipulate when he bought a pitcher just how often the flinger was to be worked before delivery. The situation recalls the Pittsburgh club's costly experience in the purchase of Marty O'Toole from St. Paul in 1911 for $22,500, then a record price.

O'Toole looked like a world beater, but after the sale, St. Paul proceeded to work him as often as possible to get the benefit of his drawing power, and the damage was completed when he was made to pitch on a rainy day. Marty's arm was affected and he never became the big league star he probably would have been if he had not lost something before reporting to the Bucs.

Tradition Favors Rowe

THE GIANTS ARE sincerely sorry that Schoolboy Rowe was stopped in August. They had hoped he would keep right on winning until a week or so before the World Series and go into the classic in a reaction.

Schoolboy Rowe

Tradition will favor Rowe in the big series. If history could be counted on to repeat, Schoolboy might be expected to win at least two games. Every other modern pitcher who had a record winning streak, and got into the World Series the same year, came through with two or more victories in the derby. In 1912, Joe Wood won three and lost one, and Rube Marquard won two and lost none, while in 1931 Lefty Grove won two and lost one.

Hustle Comes Too Late

SOMETHING A WHOLE lot better than fifth place would have been in prospect for Pittsburgh if the Pirates had displayed through July and August the hustle and fight they showed in yesterday's double triumph over the Cards, the first time both of the Dean boys ever were beaten by any club in one day.

At that, St. Louis is one club the Bucs usually can beat. Since the start of 1929, the Rovers have defeated the Missourians 79 times in 130 games. Counting the final three engagements of 1931, the Redbirds have lost 27 of their last 36 games at Forbes Field. They won only three out of eleven here in each of the seasons of 1932-33-34.

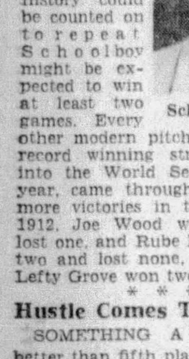
Sees Pitt Beating Troy

ONE SMART FOOTBALL man who does not string along with the dope that Pitt will be facing certain defeat in the game with Southern California, is Tom Davies, all-time Panther halfback and present coach at the University of Rochester. Tom picks Pitt to win. He thinks that the Trojans are apt to come here overconfident, and that when they discover they are up against a real football team it will be too late to avert defeat.



Tom Davies

Davies is impressed by the strength of the Minnesota team, but thinks the road of the Gophers will be made doubly hard by the fact that they have been so widely publicized. That will cause every opponent to point particularly for Minnesota, he figures. In football they all get a special kick out of taking a sock at a national standout.

WARREN RACER CRASHES, DIES AT SHARON

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 4.—Death canceled the scheduled automobile race at the Sharon Legion Speedway here yesterday. Don Elder, 29, formerly of Warren, O., died while being rushed to a hospital after his car ploughed through the guard rail after losing a wheel. The crash occurred during the qualifying trials and was witnessed by only about 100 spectators. Elder's wife was in the stands. Elder suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Elder had given up the racing game last year after having spent five years competing on various district tracks. He was employed by the Republic Steel Company in Warren.

The Sharon Legion Bugle and Drum Corps, in attendance at the speedway, took part in an impressive ceremony, during which taps were sounded for Elder.

Bill Carr, of Carey, O., escaped injury when he lost a wheel during another trial spin. Following the smashes, the race officials postponed the program until next Sunday.

DOWNS RACE HALTED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 4.—The 50-mile Labor Day auto race at Arden Downs was halted here yesterday with only three of the original 14 starters in the field after 1 hour and 10 minutes of racing when five wrecks and motor trouble to six other cars had spoiled the program.

Bones Bennett, of Donora, and Bob Carter, of Dennison, O., were the more seriously injured in the smashes. Bennett suffered a fracture of the right leg when his car overturned, and Carter received serious face and neck injuries when his own car went through the fence. Jack Juarrso, of Pittsburgh, escaped injury when his car caught fire and Jack Hornbeck, of Donora, suffered leg and face lacerations when his car went through the fence.

The prize money was divided among the starters. A crowd of 10,000 was on hand.

UNGER WINS RACE

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Sept. 4.—Harry Unger, of Mt. Pleasant, Pittsburgh, led the field in the 25-mile feature race at the New Kensington speedway here yesterday. Mike Felber, of Syracuse, N. Y., was second, and Robert Bell, of Pittsburgh, was third.

Mickey Voytosh, of West Etna, and Clyde Swartz, of Natrona, won the two preliminary events.

In the only accident of the day, Swartz crashed into the rear of the machines of Voytosh and Roy Porter, of Mt. Washington. Pittsburgh, driving his own car and that of Porter through a steel-mesh fence and into the crowd. None of the spectators was injured. Swartz received leg lacerations.

JOHNSTOWN MEN WIN

JENNERSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Johnstown drivers won the major share of prizes in the annual Labor Day automobile races yesterday. Mike Serokman taking first place in the 50-mile event and Roy Young winning the first 10-mile feature. Harold Brunner, of Columbus, O., took the second 10-mile race.

RACE PILOT KILLED

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Silas Schindler, 30, of Buffalo, automobile race driver, was fatally injured yesterday when his speeding machine left the track, crashed through a fence and turned over at the Niagara County fair grounds during the Labor Day races. He died in a hospital last night.

WESTON NINE WINS

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The Weston Mouse piled up seven runs to score a shutout yesterday against Clarksburg in the third game of the series for the West Virginia state league baseball championship. The score by innings:

Batteries—Coleman and Barnett; Grimes and Robinson.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: NEVER NEVER LAND—Lycurgus, the great Spartan legislator, ninth century, B. C., who was praised as the wisest of men and who was worshipped as a god after his death, enacted a law forbidding all citizens of Sparta to do any kind of labor in their lifetime. He held that labor was unworthy of a Spartan citizen, but rather was the task of the Helots or slaves held in cruel subjection by the Spartans. Since Lycurgus, Spartans enjoyed the most unlimited leisure in all history.

TOMORROW: THE RIVER OF BLOOD.

VINES ACCORDS LOTT CHANCE WITH PERRY

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—George Martin Lott, Jr., of Chicago, the Davis Cup doubles veteran, is rated by no less a talented performer than Ellsworth Vines as having the best chance of dethroning Fred Perry, the sparkling Briton, in the current men's national tennis championship.

George Lott

Vines, twice winner of the national crown and a professional since the first of the year, based his calculation on the belief that it will take a heady player as well as an able shotmaker to defeat Perry. He said:

"George has both, the shots and a smart, quick-acting brain. I had lunch with Perry the other day and he impressed me as being a little dubious about his chances against Lott. If form holds true they'll probably meet in the fourth round and their match very likely will develop into the best in the tournament."

"In order to take Perry, Lott will have to be in good physical condition as well as having his serve working. If George can keep Fred back I'd say he has a 50-50 chance of beating him."

Two contenders for the title, Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, and Clifford Sutter, the transplanted New Orleans star now living in New York, share Vines' viewpoint.

The day's program of the championships today was postponed until tomorrow and the whole program moved back another day. An overnight rain made the courts unplayable. The final now will be played Monday, instead of Saturday as originally planned.

OLDTIMERS PLAY SUNDAY

Ottie Cochran has arranged an unusual baseball program for the Oldtimers' Day celebration at the Pleasant Valley field Sunday afternoon. The present Ottie Cochrans will oppose the old Pleasant Valley team for three innings, and then will take on the 1915-20 Cochrans for three additional frames. The old Pleasant Valley team will oppose the old North Side Board of Trade team in the concluding three innings.

PIRATES ANNEX BOTH ENDS OF DUAL BILL

The shades of night were falling fast
When over Frisch's "noodle" passed
A liner from Pie Traynor's bat
To knock the Redbirds plenty flat.
The Fordham Flash had done his best
His Cards had fought with eager zest,
So in that fateful twilight dim
Frank must have said, "The Gints are in."

How many of those in that 20,000 throng read the grief that took possession of Frank Frisch as the gallant pilot of the Cardinals made his wild, yet futile leap for Pie's liner in the gathering shadows of the Oakland Orchard last evening?

Fred Lindstrom

The significance of the uncaptured liner stung the Fordham Flash to the quick the instant it passed beyond his desperate reach. Here are a few of the things that rode on that base hit:

The natural admission that the Giants, owning a six-game lead could not be overtaken. In other words, another pennant for New York.

TEAM DEMORALIZED

The difference between a snappy team with which to begin the last eastern drive and one demoralized by two devastating defeats. Had the Cardinals broken even with the Pirates they would have carried on with spirit.

The realization that one club had practically deprived them of their flag chances. The double setback suffered by the Redbirds meant that they had lost 12 out of 20 battles to the Buccos.

Jerome (Dizzy) Dean's most painful defeat of the season. The league's ace pitcher rushed to the bullpen without waiting for an order; he had no chance to win the game after being taken out, yet he was charged with the defeat.

A big financial loss to the Cardinals, and probably to every other club in the impending intersectional series. Had the Redbirds won the second game flag interest would have been sustained and reflected at the turnstiles.

So you will see that when Manager Traynor drove his liner to center with Fred Lindstrom sprinting plateward in the ninth inning, Pie had "something on the ball."

The timely hit gave the Buccos a double victory over the Redbirds as the home season of the Pittsburgh club almost came to a close. The scores were 12 to 2 and 6 to 5.

But while Pie capped the climax, time should be taken to say something about Lindstrom and a few others who kept the 20,000 at the home of the Buccos until such an hour that it was not possible to get to the family table for the evening's repast.

Lindy's seventh hit of Labor Day really was the blow that felled Dizzy, Frisch and the rest of the St. Louis cast.

CARDS STAGE RALLY

That banner crowd that waited until almost 7 o'clock was well rewarded. The fans were thrown into a sombre setting in the first half of the ninth when, as they prepared to leave the exits with clever Wait Hoyt holding a one-run lead, the Redbirds broke out of their coop.

In a jiffy the tieing and winning runs were on the sacks and before you could say Jack Robinson, Pepper Martin had scored them both with a triple. Pepper rushing over in the same inning to give the foe a two-run advantage.

It was at this point that Dizzy the First ran to the Redbird bullpen to warm up. He then moved in on Fogarty Knoll and stopped Woodie Jensen. Woodie batted for Tom Padden.

Up stepped Earl Grace to hit for Meine and Earl spanked a single to left. Pep Young ran for Grace, and the stands were in an

CRAWFORDS GET EVEN BREAK

The Pittsburgh Crawfords and the Chicago Giants got exactly no place in the resumption of their duel for first place in the National Negro League as they battled in a double header at Greenlee Field yesterday.

The Crawfords took an early lead to win the first game, 7 to 6, but lost the second, 7 to 4, when the Giants pushed over five runs in the first inning.

Mayview defeated the Hazelwood Verhovays, 7-6, at Mayview in the first game of the final round of the Greater Pittsburgh Baseball Commission's amateur tournament. The second game of the series will be played at 4 p. m. tomorrow at Forbes Field, and a third, if necessary, at 6 p. m.

In other independent games of importance yesterday, the Dormont tossers walloped the Crafton Church League All-Stars, 10 to 1, and then lost to the Resurrection nine, 5 to 4; Parmelee won both ends of a dual bill from Swissvale, 15 to 14 and 10 to 3.

CARNEGIE TECH GRIDDERS INAUGURATE TRAINING DRILLS

TOUGH SEASON AHEAD FOR TARTANS

By JESS CARVER

Another football campaign, the second under the generalship of two of its favorite sons, Howard Harpster and Don Lovewell, rings the bell at Carnegie Tech today. Messrs. Harpster and Lovewell gathered their squad of 39 varsity candidates about 'em this morning, delivered themselves of the usual opening day "do it for dear old Tech" speech and then put the boys to work. Double workouts are carded daily.

Howard Harpster

This year's Tartan squad is captained by Lib Lewis, veteran and brilliant end, and Thurman Croft, giant tackle. Ten of the boys will be putting in their third year on the squad, 10 more are two-year men and the remainder are sophomores. The seniors include the co-captains, Lewis and Croft, George Goodridge, another terminal; Cliff Doloway, a tackle; John Anderson, a guard; Bill Carlson, Joe Mihm, Owen Bowser, Elmer Vorderburg and Bill Spisak, backs.

Coach Harpster must dig up replacements for such stars as Heinzer, Dreshar and Bugnio, guards; Colin Stewart, end; Angelo Bevevino, quarterback; Jerry O'Toole, center and fullback; Carl Forsman, tackle; John Sayles, fullback; Joe Brower, halfback, and Lee Nutter. All save Nutter, who has left school, completed their three years of varsity competition last year.

At present, the coaches are figuring on giving Sanford, a converted back, a shot at Stewart's end job and constructing the backfield around Steve Terebus and Bill Spisak, diminutive but fast-stepping halfbacks, with Babe Patt, sophomore quarterback, running the team and the veteran Joe Mihm in there at fullback. Joe was given a try at halfback during spring practice, but it is likely that he'll be returned to his former post.

Patt is the boy they'll be watching. If he comes through, a good portion of Coach Harpster's worry will be over. Harp is hoping, therefore, to stand pat on Patt.

Confronted by a stiff schedule, once the first two games with Geneva, on September 29, and Miami University, of Ohio, the week following, are out of the way, the Plaid has no soft snap ahead.

WOMEN CLASH AT CHURCHILL

By TOM BIRKS

Women golf stars of the district are matching shots today in a special invitation tournament over the Churchill Valley Golf Club course, the event topping, in fact, dominating the district links card.

Tomorrow, at the Pittsburgh Field Club, the popular father and sons tourney is carded. The event will be an 18-hole medal play, Scotch foursome tourney.

Mrs. Chester H. Lehman, president of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, has sent out an urgent call for all women golfers in the section to file their entries for the annual championship tourney, booked for Oakmont next Monday. Prizes will be awarded for all flights.

Playing at Wildwood, Father D. H. Hegarty, of St. Agnes' parish, Fifth avenue, sank his his tee shot on the 128-yard No. 4 hole. He used an iron. The other hole-in-one was recorded at South Hills, H. G. Woeckner dropping his tee shot in the 160-yard No. 12 hole.

BILL HALLAHAN RELIEVES DIZZY WITH BASES FULL . . . AND PIRATES WIN

The Pirates did something yesterday that any club would be proud to achieve. It knocked out both Dizzy Dean and his brother, Paul, in winning the holiday doubleheader with the Cardinals at Forbes Field. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows dramatic moment in second game when Bill Hallahan (No. 23) was called in to relieve Dizzy with the bases full and one out in the ninth. Two runs followed and the Pirates copped. Runner sitting on third base is Lloyd Waner. Lindstrom is on second. No. 1 is Pepper Martin, Cards' third baseman; 14, Whitehead.

Yarosz Wins Seven of 10 Rounds in First Meeting With Dundee, Title Bout Foe

(Ted Yarosz and Vince Dundee will be meeting for the third time when they clash for the latter's world middleweight title in a 15-round bout at Forbes Field, one week from tonight. Yarosz won both of the former clashes, both 10-rounders, last year, the first at Forbes Field, August 21, and the second at Newark, N. J., September 18. Their forthcoming bout will be a 15-rounder. The round-by-round story of the first fight by Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor, is reprinted today. Tomorrow, the story of the second bout, written by Hype Igoe, New York critic, will be reprinted.)

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

A record attendance for a boxing show in Pittsburgh was set as Ted Yarosz defeated Vince Dundee at Forbes Field last night. A crowd of approximately 15,000 paid $21,308.10. The paid attendance was 14,446 and each boxer received $4,600.61 for his end. Yarosz won seven of the 10 rounds.

Yarosz was first in the ring, at 9:55 p. m., accompanied by his manager, Ray Foutts, and the latter's brother, Byron Foutts, and Mike Ray as seconds. He wore a dark bathrobe with red trimmings. Dundee followed a minute later from the opposite corner, wearing a checkered robe. His manager, Max Waxman; his trainer, Benny Benjamin, and Jim O'Grady were his seconds.

Yarosz came half way across the ring to shake hands with Dundee. A wait ensued until George Murren, chief of county detectives, appeared in the ring with the gloves for the bout, which had been entrusted to his care.

Red Robinson was introduced as the referee, and Al Grayber and Frank Brown were named as the judges for the fight.

Just before the introductions were made at 10:02 p. m., Ed Yarosz, brother of Teddy, climbed up into the latter's corner and shook hands with him and wished him luck. The bell rang for the first round at 10:03, after Manager Waxman and Referee Robinson had discussed some technical points following the instructions. The fight by rounds:

Yarosz darted in suddenly with a clean right smash to the jaw and forced Dundee to the center of the ring, where he bombarded him with both fists. Dundee stood and claimed one of the boxes was low, but the referee did not recognize it. Yarosz kept up the double fire until Dundee finally broke away. As Yarosz rushed again, he ran into an uppercut to the body. Two sent a left and Vince a right to the body. Yarosz again forced his foe to the ropes and scored cleanly with both fists. Ted's left went to the body at the gong. Yarosz' round.

They traded jolts, and in a terrific, slugging exchange that followed Dundee was forced to the ropes by four clean swinging rights. He scored one to the body, then was wild with both left and right to the body. Yarosz again forced Dundee into the latter's corner, and Vince leaped into a perfect right to the head. They were in Yarosz' corner with Dundee trying his docking and slipping act as the round ended. Yarosz' round.

ROUND SEVEN

ROUND EIGHT

Yarosz rushed out of his corner with a confidence not quickly interrupted as Dundee blocked his path. They traded rights to the jaw. Dundee protested a backhand punch. Yarosz sent a right and then a series of left jabs to the jaw. Dundee, getting back on balance, Yarosz again sent a right to the head. Dundee was taking the punches with his hands down, ranking the fast-moving Yarosz, trying to get to close quarters. He finally got a hand to the body and Teddy appeared to be hurt. He followed with two more and Yarosz pulled away along the ropes. He came back with a good left to the body. They traded rights to the body. Dundee covered to a right. Teddy sent a right to the head and they exchanged blows. The crowd was roaring as they ended the round with a session of mutual mixing. Yarosz' round.

ROUND NINE

"Throw everything!" was the injunction given Dundee by the man in his corner as he went out for the ninth round. He started off with jolts to the body and head, and followed with another left. They exchanged lefts to the head and body, but he landed another left and they clinched. He blocked a left by Yarosz. He blocked another left. Dundee was short with a right to the head and a left to the jaw. Dundee was stalking Ted again and he sent a left to the head and a right to the body. Yarosz tied him up in a clinch and landed both right and left over the break. Dundee was interrupted and came rushing across the ring after him, talking to him. He sent two rights and a left to the head. Teddy came back with right and right to the body and Dundee replied for right to the body. Dundee sent another right to the body and in close planted a right to the head and missed another. Dundee's round.

ROUND TEN

They shook hands for the final round and then circled about and sparred. Dundee

SHAMROCKS SET FOR INVASION OF CHICAGO

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

In their last tuneup game before leaving for Chicago Thursday in quest of the national softball championship, the East Liberty Shamrocks, champions of the senior division in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's first annual Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament, will oppose the Morningside boosters on the latter's field at 6:30 o'clock this evening. The champions are to represent Pittsburgh in the national event under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph.

Manager Perry Thomas' softballers have been holding batting and fielding sessions daily and are in tip top shape. Anthony (Bullet) Oskin, who was the sensation in the pitching ranks, is perfecting his speed ball delivery. He may pitch this evening against Morningside.

Sixteen, including the manager, will make up the Shamrocks' squad. They will leave Pittsburgh at 8:33 a. m. Thursday and arrive at Chicago at 7 p. m. daylight savings time.

According to the latest statistics released by J. Frank Lash, manager of the West Newton Scholastics, who won the West Penn girls' championship in the Sun-Telegraph tournament, Lorena Davis, Negro shortstop, was the outstanding performer for the West Newton lassies. She hit safely 68 times in 131 trips to the plate for a .519 average. Miss Davis has scored 58 runs, one less than her nearest rival, Capt. Mildred Hill, who is only 13 years old and the regular short fielder.

Softball Slants

The West Newton girls' Saxe won 19 of their 20 games. They won 18 of these only six for a season average of .857.

Frances Simon is second in batting with a .438 percentage. Mildred Hill follows one point behind. Helen Sereka has a .429 mark; Sophie Trifone, .345; Elizabeth Fusilli, .300; Catherine Fusilli, .276; Martha Natoli, .231; Jane Fusilli, who leads the team in home runs, and Pearl Bodus, .190; Mary Lee, .000 and Helen Kowalchuck, .125. Only two of the regulars are behind the previous .500 mark.

Marion Natoli is the Scholastics' leading pitcher. She is credited with all of the victories scored in the softball tournament. Sereka also pitches.

PIRATES RUIN CARD HOPES

The fans pleaded with Lindy, who answered them on the first pitch with a drive to right that netted two bases, scored Pep and put Lloyd on third.

The Redbirds were in a panic as Frisch gathered them around Dizzy, whose feathers were ruffled. Out of the welter of confusion, Jerome took Frisch's order to put P. Waner, the league premier hitter, on first base.

This done, the elder Dean got the office to vacate his throne in favor of Southpaw Bill Hallahan. Frisch was actuated by the fact that Arky Vaughan, a lefthand batter, was waiting at the plate.

PIE COMES THROUGH

The Pirates had to have one more run to stay in the game and Arky caused still another wind scene as he fled deep enough to Orsatti to give Brother Lloyd a passport to the plate. Orsatti flung the ball to third to hold Lindy on second with that all-important marker.

Traynor had two balls and one strike when his bat flashed with the hit you already have heard about. As Frisch failed to head off the sphere he turned and saw Orsatti fumble the ball, but Ernie could hardly have stopped Lindy.

Other details of the holiday triumph you doubtless read in yesterday's editions of the Sun-Telegraph. It is timely now to note it was a grand double bill, and the first the Pirates had won on their home grounds all year.

Well, the Pirates have gone. They're playing an exhibition game in Hazelton, Pa., today, and tomorrow they will challenge Bill McKechnie and the Braves for that fourth-place spot.

Larry French pitched a six-hit game to subdue the Cardinals in the first game of yesterday. Paul Dean was the losing hurler.

Waite Hoyt and Bill Walker staged a slab duel through eight rounds of the nightcap. Heine Meine received credit for the Pirate victory.

The Cardinals are to meet the Greensburg Redwings, of the Penn State Association at Greensburg this afternoon. The Wings are a member of the Cardinals' farm system.

Big Coaching Turnover

By W. A. (BILL) ALEXANDER
Member All-American Board of Football.

One factor in the increased interest being shown in the approach of the football season is the great number of changes in coaching personnel. This is especially true in the South, where from Texas to Maryland institutions are seeking to change their football luck with new coaches.

Alumni and friends of a school always manifest new hope and enthusiasm when the old coach leaves and the new one takes charge. They expect the new man to push up his players and instill an unbeaten string of victories out of the hat. This is contrary to the record, which shows that new coaches almost always have a hard time getting started and thoroughly grounding their ideas of play to a drastic squad.

Bill Alexander

In Texas, the turnover has been almost complete. Rex Morrison, Southern Methodist, and Morley Jennings, Baylor, are the only veteran coaches who still have their old jobs.

SCHMIDT AT OHIO STATE

Francis Schmidt, who coached at Texas Christian since 1929, has gone to Ohio State to replace Sam Willaman. Dutch Meyer, freshman coach at Texas Christian since 1923, has taken the head man's megaphone.

Matty Bell, coach at Texas A. & M. since 1929, has become an assistant to Morrison at Southern Methodist. Bell is replaced by Homer Norton, of Birmingham Southern.

Jack Chevigny, the old Notre Dame star, left St. Edwards to become head coach at the University of Texas. He replaces Clyde Littlefield, who, after coaching football there since 1927, will devote his entire attention to track.

Jimmy Kitts, who was at Abilene (Tex.) High School, has succeeded Jack Meagher, another Notre Dame man, at Rice Institute. Jack has crossed over to the Southeastern Conference to succeed Chet Wynne at Auburn.

The interchange continues up the line. Wynne has replaced Harry Gamage, of Kentucky, who has retired.

HUNK INVADES SECTION

The University of North Carolina has replaced Chuck Collins, head coach since 1926, with Carl G. Snavely, lately of Bucknell.

Greatest national interest perhaps centers in the engagement by North Carolina State at Raleigh of Heartley (Hunk) Anderson, who followed Knute Rockne at Notre Dame. Anderson takes the place of John (Clipper) Smith.

Gus Tebell, assistant to Fred Dawson at the University of Virginia, has taken Fred's place as head man. Curley Byrd, for 23 years active head coach at the University of Maryland, has stepped aside to become athletic director and has turned the team over to Jack Faber, his chief assistant. Ted Twomey, line coach at the University of Georgia, has gone to Kentucky to help Chet Wynne, and he has been replaced at Georgia by Tiger Bennett, former Georgia guard.

It is interesting to note that in all of these changes not a single "new" coach appears. All have had a fair share of success and all have been in the coaching game for a number of years. Colleges change coaches like patients change doctors, but, like the patients, insist on experienced men when they change.

COACHES MOVE UP

As hinted, great interest will center in the progress of Anderson at North Carolina State. Hunk had the misfortune to follow Rockne at Notre Dame. Any man who did that was doomed. There was only one Rockne, and no man could take his place. Hunk knew this when he accepted the job, but Notre Dame was his school and he was willing to try.

Southern fans will be keenly interested in Big Ten football this year, for four former coaches from down this way are in the Conference. Bernie Bierman at Minnesota was once-mighty for years at Tulane. Clark Shaughnessy, forsaken of Loyola in New Orleans, is at Chicago. Bo McMillin, once with Center College at Indiana, Francis Schmidt, of Texas Christian, is at Ohio State.

In contrast to the careers of these coaches, who are in process of changing base, old Dan McGugin is beginning his thirty-first season at Vanderbilt with prospects of another great football team and the high hopes and the backing of alumni and friends of the school.

America's Cup History

MAYFLOWER WINS IN DOLDRUMS

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—True British sportsmanship was never better exemplified than in the 1886 America's Cup yachting series between the English challenger, Galatea, and the successful American defender, Mayflower.

Mayflower, a broad-beamed sloop built for the same Boston syndicate that had sponsored Puritan the year before, took the first race of the series of three from Galatea with more than 12 minutes to spare.

The second race, sailed over the 46-mile windward-leeward course, was declared "no contest" because neither yacht finished within the time limit owing to a combination of a light breeze and rainy and foggy weather.

Lieut. Henn, of the Royal British Navy and owner of the challenger, was taken seriously ill during the re-running of the second race. Although he was unable to pilot his vessel he refused to ask for a postponement and installed the mate of Galatea at the tiller.

Henn remained aboard his boat and requested that the race be shortened in order that he could secure the services of a physician as soon as possible.

The wind died on the outward leg of the race and Mayflower's crew worked faster than Galatea's in setting light sails and reached the mark-boat more than a quarter of an hour ahead. A light breeze came up on the beat back and Mayflower drifted across the finish line within 11 minutes of the expiration of the time limit. Galatea followed her nine minutes later.

GIANTS, TIGERS PAD LEADS

CRONIN BREAKS ARM; OUT REST OF SEASON

Associated Press.

Even the weather man has climbed aboard the pennant band wagons of the Detroit Tigers and New York Giants.

Joe Cronin

Both leaders spent Labor Day in their hotel lobbies as rain wiped out scheduled doubleheaders, but both likewise gained ground thereby in their race toward the major league flags. The Giants picked up a full game on the St. Louis Cardinals, walloped twice by Pittsburgh and now lead the National League parade by six games. The Tigers actually advanced not at all in their quest of the American League bunting, but the second-place New York Yankees split two with the Philadelphia Athletics and thus saw two more games wiped off their schedule without cutting into Detroit's five-and-one-half-game lead.

CUBS, CARDS TIED

The Cardinals' double reverse at Pittsburgh not only put them another full game back of the Giants, but also allowed the Chicago Cubs, who split even with Cincinnati, to tie them for second place.

Lon Warneke pitched the Cubs to a 6-3 10-inning victory over the Reds in the opener, but successive triples by Mark Koenig and Jim Bottomley in the seventh accounted for four of the five runs the Reds scored in that frame to win the second game, 6-4. Good pitching by Fred Frankhouse and Huck Betts gave Boston two victories over Brooklyn, 1-0 and 4-2.

BABE HITS NO. 21

Babe Ruth's twenty-first homer and 11 other hits gave the Yankees an 11-7 triumph over the A's as Vernon Gomez staggered to his twenty-fourth victory and his tenth in succession. The A's, however, came right back with a 14-hit drive, including Jimmy Foxx's fortieth homer, to win the second game, 10-3, behind Sugar Cain's effective pitching.

Cleveland strengthened its hold on third place by taking two games from St. Louis, 9-5 and 6-4. Washington lost the first game to Boston, 6-3, and the services of Manager Joe Cronin to boot, and then held on to gain a 4-4 tie in the second contest, halted because of darkness after eight innings. Cronin suffered a broken bone in his right arm when he tumbled to the ground after a mixup with Wes Ferrell at first base in the eighth inning of the opener. He will be out for the rest of the season.

SOCCER CONFAB

The M and Y Soccer League will hold an organization meeting at Turner Hall, Second avenue and Duquesne street, Monessen, tonight at 8 o'clock. All managers should be on hand for this important session.

CHILLYSAUCE

As yet this writer has not seen Pagliacci, but if the treat were to come I doubt that I should see one with a heart sadder than that carried by a so-called clown who trudged from the pitching mound of Forbes Field to the Cardinal dugout in the dusk of last night.

Boos from the grandstand fans generally bring a smile to the pleasant face of Dizzy Dean, but here was pain in his expression and not once did he raise his gaze to answer the jeers.

The tall Texan had the exuberance and good nature of a child as he sallied forth from the dugout and down to the bullpen as Pepper Martin's triple put his club out in front . . . In the bullpen, Tex Carleton had been warming up for an emergency, but Tex gladly handed the ball over to the kingpin pitcher who had just been restored to the good graces of his employers.

Did you see any optimism in the personality of Dizzy a moment later as he took Manager Frisch's order to leave the slab in favor of another? . . . The triumphant gait was gone . . . Perhaps it was all for the best. Jerome being a youngster, he may think a long time before he steps out of line again . . . His predicament melted the feelings of one writer of long standing—Roy Stockton, Redbud correspondent, who suffered with Jerome in the latter's misery. Said Stockton:

"Well, that's too bad, Dizzy. They may have some counts against you, but through it all you have shown a good heart."

Holiday doubleheaders are likely to become the vogue at the Oakland Orchard in view of the size and exuberance of the Labor Day throng . . . The attendance exceeded the expectations of the Pirate officials who realize that the Buccos have long been out of the pennant fight . . . The big crowd confirmed the theory that many people will go to a ball park any time they figure they can see a fine display of skill.

Pep Young was glad to rejoin his mates and Clarence Struss, Little Rock pitcher, had a fine time in his first day in the big league . . . The youngster pitched to the batters and made a good impression on Manager Traynor . . . He will be available for duty on the present Eastern jaunt . . . Most of the Pirates first-string pitchers will leave for Boston tonight.—CHILLY DOYLE.

PHILS RELEASE HACK WILSON

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Hack Wilson, once the mightiest right-hand hitter in the National League, has been released, the Philadelphia National League Club announced today.

Harvey Hendrick, outfielder and pinch hitter, and Cy Malis, pitcher, also were released.

Wilson lasted less than a month with the Phillies, having been signed August 10. He was given a chance to play regularly, but he failed to hit and finally was kept on the bench.

Hendricks had been with the Phils all season, coming from the Chicago Cubs as part payment for Chuck Klein. Malis is a Philadelphian and it was the second trial the Phillies had given him.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

To the Sports Editor:

Every one knows that not long ago talking about prohibition was our national indoor and Pullman car sport. Now what I can't understand is why the drys (there still are some) get so much satisfaction out of the stories about how there still is some bootlegging going on. No sensible fellow will say there is nearly so much as there was, and I think that if it has been cut down we have made progress. If drys say the fact that we still have bootleggers is an argument to go dry again, I wonder if they think bootlegging would increase or decrease under a second prohibition.

crunched his left to the body. He followed with two rights to the body. He sent three left to the face and a right to the jaw, with Yarosz moving away, protecting his lead. Dundee sent a left to the jaw and a right to the body and they traded rights to the body and Yarosz shot one to the head. Both missed a right to the jaw and took one to the body. Dundee forced Teddy to the ropes with a left to the body. Yarosz sent a left to the body and Dundee came back with two rights to the head and one to the body. He added a jumping right to the head and then another before he took a right to the body. They traded and Dundee brought up a short right uppercut. Both were short with swings. Yarosz scored with a right to the body and forced Dundee to the ropes, but Vince came off with a left to the body. Each landed a right and they were clinched on the ropes at the final bell. Dundee's round, but Yarosz' fight.

GRONIN BREAKS ARM; OUT REST OF SEASON

Associated Press.

Joe Cronin

Both leaders spent Labor Day in their hotel lobbies as rain wiped out scheduled doubleheaders, but both likewise gained ground thereby in their race toward the major league flags. The Giants picked up a full game on the St. Louis Cardinals, walloped twice by Pittsburgh and now lead the National League parade by six games. The Tigers actually advanced not at all in their quest of the American League bunting, but the second-place New York Yankees split two with the Philadelphia Athletics and thus saw two more games wiped off their schedule without cutting into Detroit's five-and-one-half-game lead.

CUBS, CARDS TIED

The Cardinals' double reverse at Pittsburgh not only put them another full game back of the Giants, but also allowed the Chicago Cubs, who split even with Cincinnati, to tie them for second place.

Lon Warneke pitched the Cubs to a 6-3 10-inning victory over the Reds in the opener, but successive triples by Mark Koenig and Jim Bottomley in the seventh accounted for four

STOCKS SLIDE IN LISTLESS SESSION

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The prophets of doom and boom in the financial markets were not so vociferous today and speculative enthusiasm continued at an extremely low level.

Stocks were virtually at a standstill throughout most of the session and prices pointed moderately lower. Traders returned from the holiday with little inclination to bid for equities of any description. The labor outlook was the principal factor in accentuating the timidity. Efforts to gauge the effects of the textile strike brought a variety of conclusions.

The foreign exchange picture was further confused by a sharp rally of sterling. The British currency rebounded about 3 cents from its Saturday's closing rate. The recovery was attributed largely to continental short covering. Grains declined a cent or more a bushel and cotton displayed a rather heavy tone. United States government securities were again under pressure and corporation bonds were nervous.

The slowness of the proceedings was exemplied by the fact that American Telephone and a number of other leading issues did not appear on the tickers tape until nearly an hour after the opening.

In view of the labor situation and economic conditions generally, most market commentators were of the opinion that stocks, in all probability, will grope cautiously for a while further. It was pointed out, though, that the averages are resting approximately at a point from which prompt recovery could greet a turn for the better in the news.

The more optimistic recalled that the season for normal improvement is near at hand, that labor disturbances are characteristic of the early stages of a cyclical recovery; that the credit structure is by all odds favorable to both business and market recovery; that, failing of achievement along conventional lines, the stimulating forces of inflation loom ahead; that security prices, on a gold basis, are still at depression bottom and that the low level of brokers' loans shows the market's internal position to have been considerably bettered.

The normal course of the stock market in September, statistical services reported, is upward during the first half or two-thirds of the month, to a level moderately above the August break; then downward to a close somewhat below that for the previous August. In 14 of the past 19 years, it was said, the September highs have ruled above those for the preceding months.

POUND STAGES BRISK RALLY

Associated Press.

The British pound rallied strongly against the dollar and the French franc today, as gold continued to flow from New York to Paris.

The pound rose 2¾ cents over Saturday to about $5.01¼ in New York, after the dollar had closed in London at 4.01¼ to the pound. This compared with yesterday's London quotation of 5.00⅛ to the pound. In Paris, the pound advanced to 74.97 francs from 74.68. The pound's strength was attributed to speculative covering.

The price of gold in London declined 8½ pence from yesterday's new peak of 141 shillings 7 pence, quoting today at 140 shillings 10½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $35.26).

French francs held at the gold point in New York, selling around 6.69½ cents. The dollar closed in Paris at the equivalent of 6.68¾ cents to the franc, after opening weak at the equivalent of 6.70 cents.

Announcement was made of a consignment of $2,500,000 in gold for shipment to Paris today.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Raw sugar was quiet early today with neither buyer or seller showing any interest, awaiting news from Cuba as to what action would be taken there in order to secure the full benefits of the new duty which became effective today.

Futures opened at advances of 1 to 2 points on further covering and Cuban buying of December. Houses with Cuban connections absorbed the offerings and this together with more active trade buying toward the end of the morning rallied prices from 2 to 3 points.

In refined withdrawals against old contracts were of liberal proportions, but only a small amount of new business was reported.

Forbes

The Best Qualifications. Employers State Views. What Qualities Have You?

By B. C. FORBES

WHEN LARGE employers look around for responsible aides, which quality which characteristic do they rate first?

Mr. Forbes

I have obtained from 51 heads of big corporations and other prominent executives replies to this question:

"If you were to name one quality which you regard as the most important, the most valuable, the most desirable of all in a man, which would you specify?"

I NEGLECTED to ban character as being too general, too all-embracing. Consequently, more cited character than any other one quality.

Which, could you guess, ranks next?

Courage.

Incidentally, my observation and experience have impelled me to conclude that the one outstanding characteristic most common among men who have achieved notably is courage.

Here is how the 51 voted:

CHARACTER

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Thomas J. Watson, president, International Business Machines.

Gerard Swope, president, General Electric.

F. W. Smith, president, New York Edison.

A. F. Hockenbeamer, president, Pacific Gas and Electric.

INDUSTRIOUSNESS

Charles E. Denny, president, Erie Railroad.

F. H. Ecker, president, Metropolitan Life.

JUDGMENT

C. C. Conway, chairman, Continental Can.

Concentration—Eugene G. Grace, president Bethlehem Steel.

Ambition—E. C. Faustmann, president Royal Typewriter.

Persevering Patience—Matthew CV. Brush, chairman American International Corporation.

Self-Control—August Heckscher, capitalist and philanthropist.

U. S. PREPARING RAIL PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The administration's transportation experts are laying the groundwork for a railroad rehabilitation program to be submitted to Congress early in the next session.

Facing the possibility of forced government ownership and operation of many roads, the administration seems to be reaching a stage which will call for a conclusive handling of the problem and a genuine overhauling of the rail transportation system.

President Roosevelt from the beginning of his administration has expressed determination to set the railroad problem right. Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation, will continue to play the key role. He has had and continues to have the confidence of the chief executive.

BUREAU SEEKS OIL PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—A comprehensive oil program whereby the federal government purposes to achieve stability in the industry by bringing the petroleum regulations and proration laws of the producing states into conformity is being formulated by the oil administration for submission to the next session of Congress. A similar attempt failed during the last session.

The administration will seek to achieve its goal through a general tightening up of existing weaknesses in the oil code. The necessary statutes are now being drafted by the legal department of the oil agency.

August Defaults Under Last Year

COST FACTORS SEEN CAUSE OF CRISIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP)—In a study of the effects of industrial profits and their distribution on purchasing power and the general welfare, the National City Bank's review for September seeks to refute the theory that "the crisis was caused by the greed of business."

This theory the bank review says, supposes that wages, prices and profits and the relations between them are arbitrarily determined by employers. The bank says:

"They are governed by changing conditions with which employers contend as best they can, but do not control. Wages, prices and profits were all under the influence of abnormal conditions during the war and years following, with the relations between them to a great extent incalculable.

"The great rise of wages inevitably induced much investment for the purpose of lowering costs, which intensified competition and was the chief factor in the movement complained of.

"It is said that the industries in their prosperity failed to distribute purchasing power freely enough to enable the products to be bought and consumed, and that excessive profits, invested for the enlargement of production, increased the glut.

PROFIT RATIO CUT

"No fallacy is more persistent in economic discussion than the assumption that disbursements of profit, either for investment or otherwise, do not distribute purchasing power; for, whatever follies individual investors or spenders may commit, purchasing power cannot be used without making employment."

The review cites home statistics to show that aggregate net incomes of all corporations from 1923 to 1929 increased from $5,720,000,000 to $7,950,000,000, after payment of taxes, while gross income was rising from $118,564,000,000 to $160,622,000,000. The banks calls this "not extraordinary when judged by the ratio of net income to the volume of business." This ratio was 4.53 per cent in 1923 and 4.70 per cent in 1929.

The average ratio for 14 years ending with 1932 was 2.42 per cent. The review states that these figures refute "the theory that private ownership of capital affords a monopolistic control over the industrial product, also the theory that increasing profits brought on the depression." The bank review concludes that "the economic system is effectively governed by economic law, when the latter is not interfered with."

TRADE FLOW NEEDED

"Criticism is based mainly upon the present state of disorder, which has no mystery about it to anybody who understands the principles upon which the system is based and the far-reaching derangements in it occasioned by the war.

"The system from its earliest beginnings has been based upon the advantages of co-operation in production and trade, and the increasing efficiency of the system has inevitably signified an increasing interdependence between all the parts.

"Recovery from every period of disorganization experienced in the past has been accomplished by the free and independent efforts of every industry to reduce its costs and prices. Always the problem is to restore the exchangeability of products.

"It seems reasonable to believe that instead of accepting the present volume of production as permanent, the aim should be to regain the balanced relations which will afford full time and employment for all."

RELIANCE LIFE SALES RISE

The largest number of life insurance applications for August in the history of the company was submitted last month to the Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh. There were 2,904 applications totaling $7,436,466. The volume was an increase of 75.7 per cent over August, 1933. It was the result of national organized effort as a testimonial to Arthur E. Braun, president of the company.

Life insurance submitted to Reliance Life in the first eight months of 1934 totals $41,965,296, a gain of 40 per cent over the same period of 1933.

In the Pittsburgh district, Reliance agents produced 712 applications for $2,024,266 life insurance in August, an increase of 48 per cent over August, 1933. It was the largest volume and number of applications for the month in the history of the western Pennsylvania department.

Bureau Report Notes Trade Recession

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—In contrast to recent rosy pictures painted by Donald R. Richberg, director of the administration's national emergency council, the nation today digested a Commerce Department report showing that business had receded during recent weeks.

Seventy of 90 industries lowered their production during July, even more than the seasonal decline, but higher farm purchasing power also was revealed.

Steel led the decline with a capacity percentage of 21.3 the last week in July in contrast to 27.7 during the last week of June. Percentages decreased even more during August.

Farm income will be 20 per cent higher this year than the $5,051,000,000 total of 1933, however, the report estimated. This revenue, it was pointed out, probably will be less evenly distributed than last year.

Employment dropped three per cent, payrolls, 6.8 per cent, and department store sales, two per cent, according to the report.

Chicago, nevertheless, was an exception to the rule, with a 10 per cent gain in domestic trade during July as opposed to eight per cent in June.

Both exports and imports declined during July. Exports were $161,787,000, which was five per cent less than June, and imports were $127,342,000, amounting to a six per cent drop.

Wholesale food prices, however, rose, with hogs at the highest quotation since August, 1931. Retail food prices likewise climbed to a peak of 10.4 per cent above the depression low of April, 1933.

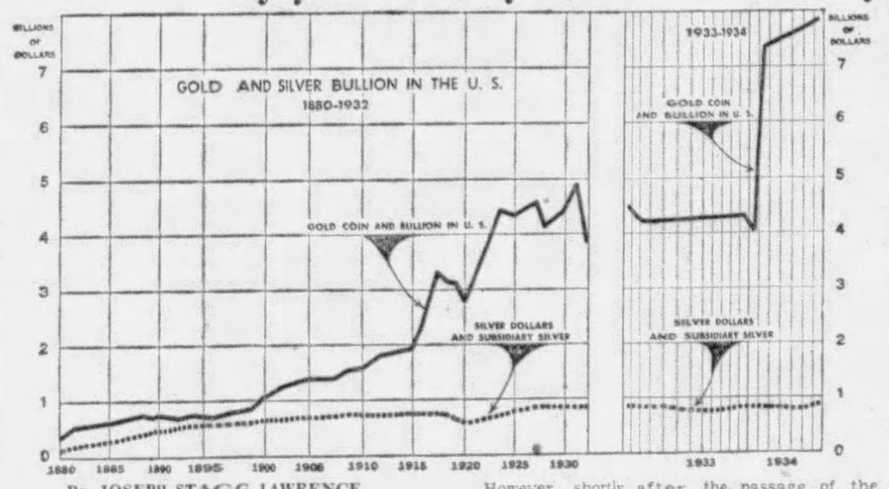
Silver Metal Resumes Standing Enjoyed Early Last Century



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE

As a result of the silver legislation passed since the present Administration took office it appears probable that silver will shortly resume the important part in this country's monetary system which it enjoyed during the first hundred years of our history.

Until the passage of the coinage act in 1873 this country was on a bimetallic standard; that is to say, a standard in which gold or silver could be used alternately at the option of the public, at a ratio, roughly, of 16 parts of silver to 1 part of gold. At the time the legislation of 1873 was passed 16 parts of silver in the market had a greater value than 1 part of gold. As a result no holders of silver would bring their metal into the mint to convert it into currency when it was possible to secure the same currency with an amount of gold which was worth less in the market than the required amount of silver.

However, shortly after the passage of the coinage act of 1873, which excluded silver from the privilege of free coinage, vast new deposits of the white metal were discovered in this country, increasing the supply. Silver in the open market dropped in value. Holders of the white metal tried to take it to the mint to be coined, only to find that the legislation of 1873 had eliminated this privilege. The coinage act was labeled the "Crime" of 1873.

Until the present Administration assumed office silver, barring only the brief revival of its fortunes during the war, suffered a steady decline in favor which not even its great industrial and chemical uses could revive.

The harm done to the white metal through its elimination as one of the two primary monetary metals is about to be remedied by the Silver Purchase Act of 1934. It is likely that the lines in the chart two or three years from now will show an entirely different relation.

Capt. Midnight

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

CHAPTER XII

"I am innocent, I tell you," said Paul. "I could not kill this defenseless man. It was a ghastly thing. I could not do it."

The sentries came and led him away.

Yvonne heard of what had befallen her brother—heard it early the next morning. It stunned her for a moment, then she went at once to the intendant's palace, where Paul was held in a room guarded by a sentry. Bigot, when her presence was announced to him, asked that she be ushered into the audience chamber and there, with hypocritical sympathy, he received her.

"My brother, sire—it is not true, this story they have told about him! He did not kill this man——"

"It looks as if circumstances were against him," he said. "He owed this man money, they had quarreled before this, once your unhappy brother used the whip upon him and several times threatened his life—all these things, Yvonne, are not in Paul's favor——"

"But they do not prove he did it. No, he could not do it. He was not bad, only wild, only heedless. Has he no plausible explanation, my lord?"

"He has—an explanation. It is such that no one seems ready to believe it. He claims that it was Capt. Midnight who fired the shot. There is only one way to settle that, of course—an impossible way—by the capture of this outlaw. He is, I believe, your husband."

"He is—my husband." But Paul is by brother. Let me go to him, please—let me speak with him."

The intendant called for a servant to conduct her. When she was gone he laughed.

Visits Brother

"Petit Paul! What have they done to you?"

"It is too awful, Yvonne, they think I—I killed Moise Cordet. I did not. I tell you, dear, I did not kill him and—I have never lied to you."

"I knew, of course, it was false. But what——"

"It was he; it was Capt. Midnight——" The words poured out of Paul now that, at last, he found one who believed him, who did not listen to him with the skeptical, tolerant smile that proclaimed unbelief.

"If it is true—and I believe it—what you tell me, then I do not care for him. Did I ever care? I do not know. It may be that, as they said, he is insane, or it may be that he has come to despise me because of — of something else."

"But, Yvonne!" Paul was again his weak, pleading self, forever reliant on her, ready always to shift his burdens to those frail, slim shoulders and let those clear black eyes reflect his caress. "Is there nothing you can do to get me out of this? You know more about this man than does any one else in Quebec. If they could find him, bring him here—he could not deny. Is there no way——?"

Yvonne was silent. Paul's eyes, the fear in them, haunted her; they would always haunt her unless——

"But, yes," she said slowly, unwillingly, "there is a way. I shall speak to the intendant about it. Do not despair, Paul. It may be that I can show them how to take—Capt. Midnight."

"How?" he demanded eagerly. "How could you——?"

Rose a Death Warrant

"Very simply," she answered, but her voice was dull, flat, toneless—not her own—for there had been magic in that last but never-forgotten moment—magic and poignant sweetness and some bliss that cannot speak its name—"very simply, my brother—with a rose."

"A—a rose!"

"A rose—" it was a mere whisper, broken, piteous—"of the color and softness—of my cheek."

Bigot, amazement vying with triumph in his eyes, stared at Yvonne.

"A rose, you say! This outlaw, this marauder, this man who hates the world and the life that is in it, will come to you—because of a rose!"

"So did he tell me, sire, and I do believe him."

"Yes," muttered Bigot. "It would be like him, like Laurent, to think of something like that. He was ever romantic, a troubadour, a lover of brightness and beauty—"

"I would," said Yvonne, "that my brother's life be purchased for something less than the blood of another man. He stood before the altar at my side that night. He kissed my lips. He came to me—before I knew—and it was good to have him come."

"No other way," said Bigot, unmoved by her wretchedness.

"You have done the best, indeed the only thing. And you will go to Sillery and place the rose within the tree? That is all you need do—we will attend to the rest. I would send one of my own men to do it but for the chance of his being observed. You will go?"

Promises to Act

"For Paul—I will go. But I have done nothing in life before to cause me such shame. I hate to think of it."

"You do but deliver a murderer to justice. You are wrong not in doing it, but to having any compunction about it."

Slowly she rode homeward and the day, though the sun shown brightly from a cloudless sky and was a burst of glory on rock and river, was for her dull and gray and wretched. She felt as if she had never smiled or sang and never would again.

It is a most disconcerting thing to be shown that one's ideas about a person which have influenced one's conduct toward that person, were wrong and unsound—especially if they have influenced an unkindly attitude.

Hence was it then when Yvonne took from Maryse the letter that had that day arrived from Montreal, and read it, her first impulse was to discredit it entirely, her second to go to Jean Pierre and say, "I am happy, m'sieur, to learn you are not a rogue, but dismissing both these, she reread the letter, frowned, folded it, opened and read it again.

The letter—she knew it pretty well by heart. It did not, she told herself, matter one way or another whether Jean Pierre Martel was saint or sinner. But Leonie d'Amours had been her dearest friend at the Ursuline convent and once she had met Leonie's lover, Armand de Guast—and this must be truth:

Stories False

"And I have heard, dearest Yvonne, that Jean Pierre Martel is now in Quebec. How I should like to see him, for ever since Armand's visit to France and his meeting with Jean Pierre I have heard so much of this famous Martel that, were I not almost in love with him, I could almost be jealous of him. Armand idolizes Jean Pierre—and you know how unready Armand is to deify any one.

"The real cause of Jean Pierre's so-called exile is the king's mistress, la Pompadour. It is too droll. She loved Jean Pierre; he would have none of her. She sought to impoverish him by pitting him against dishonest gamesters; Jean Pierre hated them. She set professional thugs upon him to injure him; he killed one and wounded others. she could not win his love nor ruin him nor take his life. He left France, perhaps to be rid of her—she makes it known that he is exiled for having dared to love her—la-la! And out of this, Jean Pierre has won a reputation as a gambler, a swashbuckler and a lover—deserved yet not deserved. Armand says that Jean Pierre is, of all noble men, the noblest. Have you met him, Yvonne?"

Most disconcerting to know, that. When you have snubbed a man and slapped him and generally treated him as you would a rake and a knave into the bargain, your sensations, on finding out the honest truth about him—that he has done no harm, but would not blame his ill reputation on a woman's jealousy and hurt pride—are very much involved. Yvonne did not know quite what to do about it.

Dreads Mission

Capt. Midnight—she had for a little while forgotten. That letter had made her forget. But soon now she must be off to Sillery. She dreaded it more and more as the minutes sped by. But she had to go. Paul was there, a prisoner. She held the key for his release. She must use it.

Quickly she plucked the rose and put it away in the pocket of her riding habit. Luitpoidel was saddled and ready. They stopped to gaze at her, the townsfolk, and to whisper as she passed, for was she not the bride of Capt. Midnight and did not her own brother lay at that one's door the evil thing of which he was accused.

She passed the Inn of the Fox, disregarding her horse's intention of tarrying there. She thought of that other afternoon—again of Jean Pierre, of Melusine d'Artois who had once loved Laurent de St. Hilaire.

Swiftly, furtively, at the bole of the oak she knelt, took the rose from her pocket. She thought of the handkerchief she had left there for him—a pretty, cruel caprice to leave that, to taunt him with the hope of what he might not have. Yes, the bit of lace was gone.

Now Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

We went back to school today, fellows!

For some of our Junior Patrol members it was the first time. We hoped they liked it and that they will do well this year. And all the other Junior Patrol members who started today in a new class, we hope they have the best year of school ever.

Sending children to school these days is taking a lot of thought and work to raise the money. Not everybody can pay their taxes and the taxes the people pay are what make it schools free to the children. It is a real sacrifice for Catholic families to send their children to the parochial schools, too.

So it is up to Junior Patrol members who go to school to prove that they are grateful. They can do that by doing good work. Let's go to school this year with the feeling that we have been given a wonderful chance to get ahead, fellows.

"Winter means long lonesome and dreary days for me. I'm afraid of falling on the icy walks and of being hit by snowballs. Last winter I had a cold all the time. I was always too cold to run home and I often got hit by snowballs.

"Summer is swell. I go for walks every evening. Often I join my friends playing ball. I love to pick apples so mother can bake pies and tarts. My friends and I buy ice cream and enjoy eating it. I often go to picnics to have a good time."

It's too bad you can't have more fun in the winter, Irene. Don't you ever feel happy curled up near the fire, under a good lamp, with a good book during the cold winter evenings? Don't you think it's a big thrill to sledride? We know it isn't any fun to be hit by snowballs.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Chewing Gum : Daily Short Short-Story

By HELEN FAIRLAMB

Raber looked into the pale blue eyes of the old reporter asking asking as if he hadn't explained three times about Jennie just as he had told it at the coroner's inquest.

Well he'd tell it all over again. Yes he had come to the little advertising agency office about midnight. The hall light right over there was shining into Jennie's room. He saw Jennie on the floor beside her desk.

She was dead—of course. And, of course, he had called police.

The police saw the wound in her head and saw the big automatic pistol fallen between her knees. Jennie must have bought the gun. The police said it was a clear case of suicide and the verdict at the inquest was "suicide."

SUICIDE! Raber almost screamed the word at the dull-eyed old man.

That all? Had he and Jennie been partners? Why, yes they had started the agency together and had done quite well.

That girl looking at the ledger? Yes, his wife. His bride? Yes. Married then? Raber glared as the question was asked.

"Four days ago."

Raber snarled the answer. The reporter's eyes regarded him dully.

"Uh-huh, thanks," the reporter grunted.

Raber sighed with relief as he saw the gray-haired man in the faded blue suit go out the office door into the Florida sunshine.

"Lulu Mae," he said, putting his arm around the blonde girl seated on the desk. "I'm sorry about all this. The funeral soon, and then it will all be over."

Sunlight streamed through the windows of the undertaker's parlor and into the alcove chapel as Raber, entered with a bent, white-haired man wearing an ancient frock coat of black.

Raber glanced toward the white casket. Jennie lying there. He could see her, in the white dress with the pink collar and the pink sash that she had liked so well.

A girl, slender, dark-eyed, dark-haired. A white dress with a pink collar and a pink sash. A hibiscus bloom, wilted but vividly scarlet, pinned at the shoulder.

"Please, sir, I'm from the Evening Globe."

The girl was silent for a moment.

"Mr. Raber," she said softly, "do you think Jennie shot herself?"

The girl's jaw moved slightly, slowly up and down. Her lips parted a little. Chewing gum. Raber's eyes narrowed and a picture rose in his memory. Just like Jennie—Jennie had chewed a morsel of gum like that, opening her mouth a little, those nights working late on her copy.

"What did you say?"

The girl's eyes were eager, intent.

"Had you seen Jennie earlier that day? Your wife—she was in town, too?"

The organ played softly in the alcove.

"Of course, I had been in the office earlier."

Chewing a morsel of gum, slowly, languidly, as Jennie had done those many nights over her desk. He had joked with her about it.

"Did Jennie know about Lulu Mae? That you were to be married?"

"I don't want anything more in the papers. There's been too much already. I won't talk to you."

"You won't say that you think Jennie shot herself?"

Chewing gum, slowly, thoughtfully, like Jennie.

The girl was silent and her dark eyes were looking into his. She was chewing a little gum, slowly. Like Jennie. She extended her hand toward him.

"Stop!" Raber cried. "Stop that chewing."

He struck at her.

"It was suicide, I tell you. It was suicide. The police, everybody said it was. Get away from me!"

His voice rose, frantic, with a note of terror.

A strong hand gripped his arm and Raber saw a blue coat and a shiny badge. A policeman, and near the old reporter with the pale blue eyes.

Raber struck out with both hands.

"It was suicide. I saw—don't you believe me?"

"I broke a story like this once before in Tulsa," he said. "I saw the fellow was scared, just like this Raber was when I talked to him first. The fellow confessed, like Raber. He'd killed a sweetie, too. I put on an act with a girl.

"I was sure about Raber when I saw the big automatic they found on Jennie. A jane likes a pearl-handled .32. None of 'em wants to ruin her looks with a cannon that big."

Candidate for Congress Makes Strenuous Leap Forward!

If everyone will remain seated (Stop those children running up and down the aisles!), Horace Walpole Frisby, the people's candidate for Congress, will make a revolutionary announcement!

"My dear friends—I feel that I have known you intimately all these years. Your problems are my problems. We're just one big, happy family. Oh, of course we have our spats now and then—but what does it matter if we love one another? What I wanted to tell you may hurt just a little bit. But I have been analyzing the situation, and I have come to a decision. I have decided, after consulting with Public Health authorities, not to kiss any more babies during my campaign. But, on the other hand, I have decided, due to popular demand, to let the babies kiss me! We Saw Him Do It

Bugs was a water witcher the summer down in New Jersey.

He was from Indiana. But claimed he could witch for water anywhere.

He couldn't find a willow wand. There was no cedar. So he cut himself a Y-jogged stick from a privet hedge.

The thing looked like a giant wishbone with a small sharp point. He grabbed the shanks of the wishbone firmly with the point in the air.

Then he walked around the lawn. He stopped in one spot and the witch stick started to quiver. The more it quivered the tighter he held on to it. But the apparently couldn't control it. There seemed to be 20,000 invisible mules pulling on it. It slowly turned until the point was forward the lawn.

"There's water right under there," he says, wiping the sweat off his face. "There's wetter there as sure as a polar bear's coat in January. It's about 15 feet down. Tap that lawn and you'll get water."

Well, we couldn't tap the lawn because we were leasing the place. The stick certainly turned in his hand. Whether the water was pulling it or whether he was pushing on an act we will never know. He claimed to be on the level and to be able to witch for oil, coal, silver and gold if those things were around.

It was the first time we saw a fellow use a witch stick. We are still skeptical about the thing but it was a good show. The witcher shook all over like a modest T on a hill.

We forget to state that one of the shanks on the witch stick broke under the terrific pull. Later on we rubbed a silver dollar on the point of the witch stick. Then we had the dollar in the ground. The man with the witch stick found it in about three minutes after walking around an area of two acres.

He couldn't witch for gold because there is no gold. Finding the silver dollar didn't convince us. But he claims there are witch stickers in Indiana who can locate anything in the ground, and can follow a twisting vein of subterranean water like a speckled trout.

Well, there may be something to it. But when we want water we will depend on the plumbing. And that ain't so good in summer homes. The cold water runs cool and the hot spigot runs cinders.

There may be some folks who know more about this water witching business than we do. We have a hunch that the man from Indiana knew the lawn didn't belong to us.

Investigate the Lotteries

The "Numbers" Racket Deserves the Attention of the Police Research Commission

A single "numbers" racketeer arrested in Philadelphia last week, one of hundreds that have been prosecuted there recently, is reported to have received on the average $45,000 a day from his lottery.

We have no idea what the daily "take" in Pittsburgh's "numbers" racket is, but the total probably is so large that if disclosed, it would astound those not familiar with what is going on in the underworld. Certainly many thousands of dollars are taken, day after day, by the lottery harpies from the weak and gullible in the city and suburbs.

When commercial vice yielding enormous profits is tolerated by the public authorities, as the "numbers" racket is tolerated in Pittsburgh, it becomes decidedly pertinent to inquire why it is being tolerated.

It is reported that persons close to the city administration are prominent in the regulation of Pittsburgh's lotteries, and it is hinted that the Police Research Commission is thinking of giving the situation its attention. We hope it will.

The open operation of unlawful lotteries has become a public scandal, and cries loudly for investigation.

A Test of Authority

Questionable Practices of the Magistrates Are Properly Being Challenged

Attorney Herman P. Eberharter is rendering a public service in challenging, on behalf of a client, the right of the police court magistrates to assume jurisdiction in certain kinds of cases which ought properly to be referred to the grand jury.

The case in which he is interested is one in which a client was accused by the police of having a pint of moonshine whisky in his house and fined $50 by Magistrate Anthony Lucas on the charge of keeping a disorderly house. Later, on the same testimony, the man was fined $25, plus $14.25 costs, by Alderman Ray Schneider, on the charge of violating the liquor law.

Attorney Eberharter contends that Magistrate Lucas lacked authority to impose sentence—that he should either have discharged the defendant or held him for the Quarter Sessions Court.

It has been stated by a Supreme Court Judge that where a prima facie case is presented against a defendant in police court of violation of the liquor, gambling or morality laws, the magistrate has no alternative but to hold the defendant for the grand jury.

But it is notorious that Pittsburgh's magistrates habitually ignore this requirement and usurp authority to pass on cases that are outside their jurisdiction. They let bootleggers, professional gamblers and operators of immoral resorts off with light fines almost every day.

The effect, of course, is almost the same as if these vices were to be licensed. The criminals, no doubt, look on the fines that they are called upon to pay from time to time as much the same as a license fee.

It is to be hoped that the field of inquiry opened by Attorney Eberharter's appeal to the Common Pleas Court will be broadened to cover this whole question.

It is a subject well worth the Bar Association's attention.

Putting Recovery First

The British Wisely Perceive That Reconstruction Should Come Later

One of the best treatises on the Constitution of the United States is one on the British Constitution, written years ago by the late Walter Bagehot.

He discussed the one in the light of the other, presenting their contrasting approaches to the same subjects, comparing the virtues of one with the defects of the other, and achieving a study in comparative constitutions which is as profitable to a student of our Constitution as it is to one seeking an insight into England's.

A very interesting article employing the same method appears in "Current History." It deals with the efforts now in progress both in England and the United States to bring about economic recovery.

It is entitled "BRITAIN TURNS THE CORNER." The author is Lord Elton, a lecturer on modern history in the University of Oxord, and a member of the Labor Party until he was expelled for supporting Prime Minister MacDonald on the formation of the present coalition or national government.

"The British have always been suspicious," says he, of theorists and of paper constitutions, and it has been no coincidence that our economic advisory council has never come within a thousand miles of developing into a brain trust.

"For my own part, I fancy that the British government, by CONCENTRATING SO RESOLUTELY UPON RECOVERY FIRST, as the essential preliminary and basis of subsequent reconstruction, is not only rightly interpreting the wishes of the electorate, but is giving both recovery and reconstruction a better chance than they are likely to receive, as yoke-fellows, in the United States."

Yoking the two—recovery and reconstruction—is precisely the mistake against which Mr. Hearst was the first to raise his voice in warning.

It will be remembered that he spoke with particular reference to the NRA. It was before the AAA and all the alphabetical train of administrative bureaus and departments had sprung into being.

All, however, have the weakness of pursuing ends that are supposed to be reconstructive and recovery at the same time, with the result that the double aim recoils on both objectives. Both reform and recovery have been slowed up.

Insisting that the NRA was a measure of social amelioration and not a measure of recovery, Mr. Hearst predicted that the burden of reduced hours, higher wages and increased material costs could only be sustained through the legitimate profits of business.

But the profits of business have been the constant target of the National Recovery Administration with its thrusting interferences and the attempt to everlastingly "regulate" business through incompetent outsiders.

By wisely perceiving that the one is not the by-product of the other, the British have made great progress in their business recovery.

They have not lost sight of strengthening, and, in places, revising their business and social structures where weakness has been shown.

They have not subordinated reconstruction to business recovery, but only postponed it—very wisely—until they possessed, as the result of business revival, the strength and resources to make their work in the field of reform solid and permanent.

The Creeping Hand

By Nelson Harding

Beware that handclasp, which at first
So friendly is and warm,
But all too often slowly creeps
Along, the outstretched arm.

Then, swiftly shifting to the throat,
That former friendly clasp
May change into a strangle hold
In unrelaxing grasp.

Fish Has Troubles

By Winifred Black

"No, no," said the little brown man who was showing us the gold fish, and the little black shiny fish from Japan that looked as if they were all dressed in black and gleaming armor.

"No, no, you must not give the fish fresh water too often. The fish will catch cold!"

Wasn't it shocking of him to say a thing like that and brush away with one sweep of his small-ish brown hand our ideas about the glorious carefree life of the gold fish.

Nothing to do but swim round and round in a nice clean little fish pond with the sun shining on it a good deal of the day, and find clean shells to make a shade where a sleepy fish could roll over and take a nap without danger of sunstroke.

I wonder what a gold fish does when he takes cold, you never hear him sneeze, do you, and there isn't a cough in a million of them.

Sore throat, bronchitis, asthma, pneumonia—I shall never go near a nice little fish pond again without feeling just a wee bit anxious about the delicate little gold fish.

How selfish and self-centered we human being are, to be sure.

I wonder if that impudent blue jay that has been bold enough to build a nest in the tree right by my window thinks so, too? He bosses the whole garden. Not one of us can take a step on the porch without his knowing it and telling the world about it at the top of his voice.

He and the little tan colored puppy have a grudge—I wouldn't let the puppy into the garden alone for worlds, not with that spiteful blue jay around.

The other day someone hung a few bits of this and that on the line in the back garden and who sailed over to inspect it and tell the neighbors all about it, why he actually sounded as if he were calling the police—but that blue jay!

And little mamma blue jay sat on the nest and went into absolute hysterics to think how brave and public-spirited her lord and master was.

And did he strut when he came back to the tree and told her what he thought of the whole outrageous business.

I wonder if he takes cold, too, like the gold fish and does little Mrs. Blue Jay have to be very careful about drafts and is she subject, perhaps, to indigestion?

And tell me what happens to birds when they die?

They must die some time somewhere and yet I have lived a long time where there are many birds and I never saw but one dead bird in all my life, and that was a poor little thing that had fallen out of a nest in a high tree.

They seem such free, happy creatures, the birds—sometimes it is hard not to envy them, but for all we know they have just as many troubles of their own as we have of our own.

I wish the little brown man hadn't told us about the gold fish taking cold so easily, it sort of takes the glamour off of things.

Sometimes it is better to be quite ignorant, isn't it?

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Sentimentality Is an Escape

Sentiment is the sweetest thing on earth.

Sentimentality is the slimiest.

For example—consider that word around which clusters the most delicate sentiment and the most disgusting sentimentality—HOME. Instantly you think of the phrase—"HOME, SWEET HOME!" But it doesn't necessarily follow.

Some homes are sweet. Multitudes aren't. Some homes are kind. Some are cussed. Some homes instruct children in generosity, good sense, sportsmanship, courage, brotherly love. Others are breeding places for incredible selfishness, stupidity and cowardice.

It is fine sentiment to cherish the memory of A GOOD HOME. It is dangerous sentimentality to honor—and teach children to honor—ALL homes, regardless of their quality.

The same distinction applies to a great many other subjects. It applies to Patriotism. It is noble sentiment to love and honor your country when your country is in the right. It is vicious sentimentality to insist that your country should be honored, right or wrong—that it should never be criticized—that the one who dares criticize it is a traitor.

It applies to Mothers. There is no service more sacred than that of a mother. But it is absurd and demoralizing to reverence any woman merely because she is a mother. A mother MAY be loving, unselfish, wise and loyal. Or she may be—and frequently is—a sour-hearted, shallow-pated fool. SENTIMENT enshrines good motherhood. SENTIMENTALITY gushes over all mothers, regardless of their individual merit—and thereby does immeasurable harm to homes and family life.

Every life is enriched by Sentiment, but endangered by Sentimentality. Sentimentality undermines any character—eats away sound sense, good humor, courage, self-confidence. Sentimentality is Sentiment turned cancerous.

Why do people become Sentimental? Because it's easy, safe and popular—and provides a perfect alibi for stupidity and cowardice.

Most human beings are lazy-minded—hate conflict and criticism—love power and approval. It's hard work to think. And because it's hard, it's unpopular. People who think are apt to disturb the comfort, convenience and conceit of people who won't. So the majority of people dislike thought, distrust thinkers—and by the same taken are extremely grateful to those who provide them with a good excuse for not thinking. Which the Sentimentalist does.

Take again the examples quoted—Home, Mother and Native Land. It is obvious to any honest person that none of these institutions is all it should be, and they all need some constructive investigation and reconstruction. But suppose we admit this—where would it stop? And imagine the rumpus it would raise!

So with practically unanimous vote we decide that There's No Place Like Home . . . America Is God's Country . . . and a Mother Is A Girl's Best Friend. That's our story, and we intend to stick to it. And God help the honest, brave idiot who dares to challenge our smug security!

All of which seems a swell system, but of course it isn't. You can fool almost everybody, including yourself, but you can't fool life. Life can always spot a coward—no matter how big the crowd at the box office . . . or how big the balance at the bank. And she gives her great adventures and rewards only to those who have the courage to risk them. She leaves the lazy, lying Sentimentalist at home, playing his patty-cake.

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

The Painter

You climb a steep and creaking stair
Where smells of grease and smoke
Lie on the dull and stagnant air,
You climb and cough and choke.

Still up and up until at last
An attic door you face.
With that grim barrier safely passed
You gain the sacred place.

So bleak, so bare it well might seem
Your quest is all in vain;
This room, can it house glory's dream,
Yet scarce keep out the rain?

The painter stands with spotted smock,
Tossed hair and absent eye;
But at all these the splendors mock
That on his pallette lie.

The splendors that will blossom soon
In wave and sky and field—
You climb a steep and creaking stair,
And genius stands revealed.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You admire the person who is well poised.

You realize that some of your actions and conversation indicate that you are not always in command of yourself.

You do and say foolish things.

Later you are ashamed of your words and actions and wonder at yourself.

You excuse yourself in the thought that those with you realize that you really possess more brains than your actions and words indicate.

But this is a poor excuse, for you are judged by what you do and say in all circumstances, and not only in your self-controlled moments.

You are not controlled mentally in all conditions—only a drug addict could find excuse for some of your foolishness.

You have allowed your mind to get the habit of wandering.

This is difficult to overcome, and only concentration and determination not to speak or act until the matter has your undivided thought will give you the poise you admire.

But you can't do this while you allow your tongue to wag, even though you have nothing worth saying.

Human Side of the News

Daniel Frohman, Dean of the American Show Business, At 83 Is Still Sprightly, and Enjoys Life

By Edwin C. Hill

"WHO'S WHO" says that Daniel Frohman was born in 1853, which would make him 81. But Mr. Frohman himself doesn't mind revealing that he is in his eighty-third year. It doesn't make so much difference, really. The point is that Uncle Dan can step out in the morning, play 18 holes at better than a hundred and twenty, take out on the beach in the afternoon, attend a party as evening comes on and then, during and after dinner, sling the liveliest, trickiest foot on the dance floor you ever looked at in your life.

That's Mr. Frohman's daily routine during his six-week stay in Florida, and when his sojourn there is ended he will go on to Augusta, Ga., to foregather with old cronies and continue the same lively gait.

It takes a vigorous young buck to keep pace with the dean of the American theater, and as for anybody in the sixties or seventies, Mr. Frohman would run him ragged in a week. He is the admiration and despair of a hundred elderly gentlemen with bay windows almost as big as their bank accounts, for he is slim and tireless and full of pep and good humor and the pet of all the ladies from seven to 70.

More than that, he has lived a long time and in an interesting way, and his mind is filled with bright and cheerful things. A great many old gentlemen, some of them as celebrated as Mr. Frohman, are double-barreled bores, but this agreeable old gentleman of the theater knows how to be amusing for hours at a time.

He is a gracious soul and dearly loves entertaining companionship whether it is on the golf course, the beach or at dinner. He refuses to make a long face about anything in this world or the next.

An Encyclopedia Of the Theater

HE JUST GOES along in his gentle, tranquil, cheerful, orderly way, getting all he can out of life, and that is a great deal in the way of contentment and friendship. He is, of course, a human encyclopedia of American theater, and there is not a dull page in the great volume of his recollections.

Probably few men have made a closer study of Shakespeare, and Mr. Frohman has found a lot of interesting and diverting things in the plays—the anticipation and prediction of radio, for example. Mr. Frohman spotted it in the last scene of Act 1 of "Twelfth Night"—in Viola's speech to Olivia:

"Halloa your name to the reverberate hills, and make the babbling gossip of the air cry out—Olivia!"

"I have always thought," he tells this writer, "that Shakespeare had the greatest mind, the best-furnished mind, of any man that ever lived — greater than Aristotle's or Plato's. His knowledge of the technical side of science, in the fields of botany and medicine and horticulture and many other highly specialized activities was amazing. I have devoted more than 50 years to the study of Shakespeare's plays and there is hardly a week that I don't get a brand new thrill out of them.

You can't play Shakespeare without first rate actors. The second raters won't do at all. They make a ghastly mess of things. If all of our actresses and actors were Mme. Modjeskas and Edwin Booths, there would be plenty of Shakespeare played all over the country. There would have to be some cuts and modifications because most of the plays are too long for modern taste and convenience. Some of the soliloquies and declamations are too ponderous and grandiose to please most people. But there is still a great treasure house of art and beauty there if we only had the right artists to explore it and carry its treasures to us."

He loves his golf. Like John D. Rockefeller, he doesn't play a long game, but he plays a mighty deadly one. He's poison on the greens, and his card one day with this writer showed only 14 putts for 18 holes. That, good friends, is sinking 'em. A match between John D. and Mr. Frohman would be worth going miles to see and it should be a pretty even thing. Possibly at nine holes, Mr. Rockefeller would come out ahead, but he would know he was in a battle.

Was Office Boy For Horace Greeley

UNCLE DAN likes conversational sport, where a fellow can stop for a minute or two and tell a story and have a laugh. His mind went back to his early days.

"Did you ever know I was Horace Greeley's personal office boy when I was 14?" he asked me. "Well, I was, and part of my job was to copy the old gentleman's manuscript. They were holy terrors and there were only two people in the Tribune office who could decipher the Greeley hen tracks, myself and a veteran compositor. I have some of these original Greeley manuscripts among my mementoes of the past.

"Yes, sir." Uncle Dan continued, "I was a newspaper man myself once, even if I was only an office boy. I began my theater career as advance agent for a fly-by-night company far out in the sticks. I used to ache for the time to come when I would be a regular swell of an advance agent with gloves and a cane and spats and a week-stand company behind me. My tools consisted of a chewed stub of a pencil and a paste brush. I carried my own ammunition, consisting of plenty of pounds of bill and when I struck a town, I got busy with the brush. I used to route a show for a week by climbing a hill and asking the stage coach driver the names of the towns that were in sight."

The Congressional Attack On Gen. Foulois

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt shares with the country the good fortune of having in his cabinet a Secretary of War with the faith to believe that the government of the Constitution is "a government of laws and not of men" and with the courage to follow where that faith leads.

Secretary Dern was put to the test recently, when a sub-committee of the House Committee on Military Affairs demanded that he immediately remove from office the Chief of the Army Air Corps, Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, upon unproven and sweeping allegations made against him by the sub-committee.

This demand was published from the Capitol before it was received by Secretary Dern, and the allegations brought against Gen. Foulois attack not only his competency as an administrator, but his integrity as an officer and a gentleman.

By way of adding insult to the injury that it attempted to inflict upon the Chief of the Army Air Corps, this sub-committee insinuated that unless its demand was complied with, Secretary Dern could expect no additional appropriations for the expansion of the Army Air Corps.

When the sub-committee's extraordinary allegations were referred by Secretary Dern to Gen. Foultos for comment, the latter promptly appealed to the sub-committee for a chance to see the evidence, that he might prepare an answer to the charges or ask for a court of inquiry. His appeal fell on deaf ears. It went unanswered for weeks—finally it was formally denied. And all this was done by a sub-committee of the House Committee on Military Affairs, presumably with the approval of the chairman and other members of that committee.

Meant Conviction Without Trial

SECRETARY DERN was quick to see that something far more vital than the expansion of the Army Air Corps, or even the appropriation requisite for the support of the Army, was involved in the issue raised by Congressman Rogers, of New Hampshire, and the members of his sub-committee.

Secretary Dern saw that to surrender to the demand of this sub-committee would in effect put the seal of approval of the Secretary of War upon the conviction and punishment of an officer of the Army without his day in court. As Mr. Dern said in his dignified reply to the insulting demand from Congressman Rogers, and the Congressmen who joined in this un-American proceeding, their report was "not limited to an indictment, but in effect finds the accused guilty, fixes the sentence and calls on the Secretary of War to execute it."

Of course, this is exactly what Postmaster General Farley did last winter, when he cancelled all domestic air mail contracts without giving the American citizens who held them a chance to be heard in their own defense.

And Attorney General Cummings resorted to somewhat the same procedure a few months later, when he broadcast his allegations against the former Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, before the latter was given a chance to be heard in his own defense.

In the case of Mr. Mellon, however, a federal grand jury went to his defense, by refusing to indict him.

Secretary Dern Is Different

IN THE Secretary of War, however, those who seek to overthrow the government of the Constitution by supplanting a government of laws with a government of men, are dealing with a different kind of an American. He has effectively demonstrated this fact in his refusal to purchase the favor of the House Committee on Military Affairs, or of its sub-committee, by sacrificing an officer of the Army whom Mr. Dern believes is entitled to a presumption of innocence until he is proven guilty before a court of law.

As a matter of fact, the Secretary of War has no authority under the law to remove the Chief of the Army Air Corps, or the chief of any other branch of the Army, except in execution of a sentence following his conviction by court martial. Only the President has the power of removal of a chief of branch.
